PROCEEDINGS OF THE MOST WORSHIPFUL GRAND LODGE OF A. F. & A. M. OF ILLINOIS

In compliance with the provisions of the Constitution and By-Laws of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois, the eightieth annual meeting was held in the city of Chicago, at Medinah Temple, commencing on Tuesday, the 14th day of October, A. D. 1919, A. L. 5919, at 10 o'clock a. m., and was opened in ample form by Bro. Daniel G. Fitzgerrell, most worshipful grand master.

MUSICAL CONCERT.

At 9:30, preceding the meeting of the grand lodge, a musical programme was rendered by the following talent:

- Bro. G. M. Palmer, Dearborn Lodge No. 310, Tenor.
Bro. Chas. E. Gould, St. Cecilia Lodge No. 865, Cornet.
Bro. Geo. J. Kurzenknabe, P. M. St. Cecilia Lodge No. 865, Organ.

On motion, a vote of thanks of the grand lodge was given the brethren who participated.

PRAYER.

Rev. Bro. Walter Aitken, the right worshipful grand chaplain, lead the devotions.

Gracious Heavenly Father:

We beseech Thee to grant us Thy blessing so that the proceedings of this grand lodge shall be in harmony with the worship of God, the unity and solidarity of our order.

We have much cause for rejoicing. Marvellous changes have taken place since last we met. The cessation of hostilities with a foreign foe, the welcome with delight of our brothers who went across the seas to fight for principles so dear to the people of this land.

The building up of our Masonic order in numbers and material wealth is cause for thanksgiving, for, what we have achieved is but a faint prophecy of what we are yet to do; our responsibilities have just begun; the problems of peace call for as much thought and consideration as the problems of war, and we trust that our country shall emerge from the present social unrest, with a clearer conception of the rights, duties and responsibilities of citizenship, and with a more striking fidelity to the flag and the institutions for which it stands. To this end impress us with our line of duty, and help us with morning hearts and morning faces; with courage of conviction and strength of manhood to achieve that for which we have been divinely called.

Gathered here this morning a peculiar hush comes to our spirits, as we recall the faces of our brothers who met with us last year, but who are absent now. They have fought a good fight, have kept the faith and have finished their course in triumph, but their memory is a benediction.

Our beloved grand master, whom we learned to regard with brotherly affection, has been called home, in the midst of his busy plans and splendid activities. For years, a familiar figure among us, his counsel was eagerly sought and freely given. Noble in purpose, upright in life, reverent in spirit, brotherly in affection, enthusiastic in the cause of Masonry, a lover of God and a believer in men, he has wrought a good work. We feel the impress of his personality, the touch of his spirit is here, for altho dead, he yet speaketh, and the good he did in life, lives after him.

Altho we are compelled to recognize the mutability of all things on which rests the earthly stamp, we are also glad to know that God and truth are eternal. The workman is removed, but the work is carried on. Thou art raising up men to finish the tasks begun by others, so we rejoice that in the midst of human changes, the order, of which we are a part, is founded upon the eternal principles of truth, and are not subject to decay; that the mantle of one man falls upon the shoulders of another, who is duly and truly prepared for the responsibilities of his office, and now we pray that Thy blessing may rest upon him who has been called upon during the year, to assume the duties of grand master, that he may have the wisdom and help of Thy spirit in discharging those duties in the spirit of true helpfulness. Give him health of body and happiness of mind in this great office.

Bless the members of this grand lodge, and may all that is done here be in the spirit of unity and true fraternity! Amen.

The grand marshal, with the grand stewards, retired and returned with the flag, and presented it to the grand master who placed it in the grand East while the brethren sang "America."

FIRST REPORT—Committee on Credentials.

Bro. Emmett Howard, chairman of the Committee on Credentials, announced that representatives from a constitutional number of lodges were present, and asked further time to complete their report. The request was granted.

A MEMORIAL SERVICE.

The Grand Master:

When the present Masonic year falls out of the calendar it will bring to a close the most memorable twelve-month in the World's history; not only from a fraternal standpoint, but from the standpoint of all nations and all peoples. No year in history has been so crowded with events of large meaning and none has shown more remarkable progress. But in the midst of our season of success in growth and material prosperity we were again reminded of the slender thread upon which our lives depend.

During the year this grand lodge has suffered an unprecedented loss in the passing of our beloved brethren, Most Worshipful Brother Monroe C. Crawford, dean of our past grand masters, and our Most Worshipful Grand Master, Brother Austin H. Scroggin.

Brother Crawford had lived past the years allotted to man. He had passed through the green of his spring-time, the gold of his summer, the crimson of his autumn and had long since put on the ermine of his winter. His spirit grown weary of its earthly tabernacle returned to the Father who gave it.

At the zenith of his manhood, just when his greatness was still aspiring, Austin H. Scroggin answered the final summons.

Not only have these illustrious men gone, but many of our beloved brethren who were engaged in the mighty conflict just closed, made the supreme sacrifice in order that Liberty may not perish from the earth.

And now "lest we forget," let us reverently pause in our labors and devote our time for a little to the sacred memory of our brethren "who are away."

With this end in view I have requested Most Worshipful Brother Goddard, past grand master, to speak for Brother Crawford, Most Worshipful Brother Owen Scott, past grand master, for Brother Scroggin, and Brother Henry R. Rathbone for our soldier dead.

M.W. Bro. Leroy A. Goddard:

After an earthly pilgrimage of eighty-four years, sixty of which had been spent in one home in Jonesboro, Illinois, our brother, Monroe C. Crawford, entered upon the Sabbath of eternity as the dawn broke on Sunday morning, the ninth day of last March.

It is not for me to record his personal history, as upon the pages of our proceedings will appear the memoir of this distinguished Mason, this kindly gentleman and conscientious American; the dean of our past grand masters, and whose citizenship was an honor to the great state of Illinois.

A man of generous sympathies, he possessed a character of sterling excellence. Ever truly regardful of the interests of others, he understood the art of making allowances for the frailties of human nature, and by his cordial handshake, his kindly words and helpful advice, carried the gospel of hope and courage to the aged, of strength and resolution to those in middle life, while his influence was an inspiration to multitudes of young men privileged to enjoy his personal acquaintance.

He gave forty-four years of service to the public as a judge upon the bench, and exemplified faithfully the highest ideals of fine, clean, strong manhood. He labored industriously in a dignified, straightforward manner for the common good. No word of adverse criticism was ever justly uttered against his integrity of purpose.

This great soul was generous to a fault and possessed a lovable, sympathetic nature. With attractive personality, always courteous and kindly, yet he was physically and intellectually a fearless man, and conscientiously sincere and loyal to his convictions. He was untinged by prejudice, and admirably discharged the most difficult tasks in full recognition of the rights of others and with consideration of all God's people, regardless of class, caste or social standing.

To those of us who knew him intimately in the level of everyday life, his ever loving and gentle disposition in the home was a benediction. Monroe and Sarah had walked together in understanding companionship for nearly forty-seven years; together they proved themselves unselfish and useful to the community, until her spirit departed this life in September, 1905. The blow was hard, but he bore it with fortitude, continuing his lonesome way along life's path, high-minded, honorable and just.

From a close personal acquaintance extending over a period of more than forty years, I knew him as a man who spoke in language clear and expressive in the highest degree, always actuated by the most laudable motives, it impressed me that I never knew a man who really fitted his environment more perfectly than did Monroe C. Crawford.

In his passing the world is poorer, but our heritage is the example he has left of a life well lived and duty adequately performed. He yet lives vividly in our affections and in our gratitude, and will so continue until the last note of time is sounded in our own lives. His fleshly body lies buried in Jonesboro's cemetery, but he, himself, has passed on to other fields of life and of service.

M.W. Bro. Owen Scott:

His life was gentle; and the elements so mixed in him that Nature might stand up and say to all the world,
This was a man. —Shakespeare.

There are moments when only dumb lips can fathom the depths of the human heart. On that April day when the word came that Austin H. Serogin was no more, there were literally thousands who stood speechless in their uncontrollable emotions. His stalwart form gave no suggestion of the secret enemy that lurked in ambush in his vital powers. Scarcely a month had passed since he stood beside the open tomb of the patriarch of the past grand masters, Monroe C. Crawford. There he rendered the impressive ceremonies for the Masonic dead in such a faultless manner that every word seemed to be the dew of love distilled from his great heart. Neither he nor those about him dreamed, that the silent messenger would so soon call for him. At the very zenith of his manly powers he was taken without warning.

Acting as the worshipful master of his lodge, he was accompanying his brethren to the city of the dead to consign to the earth the body of one of his life long friends. While thus on the way his summons came, the silver cord was loosed, the pitcher broken at the fountain and his spirit went to God who gave it.

It was a rare privilege to have been for many years the intimate associate and companion of Austin H. Serogin. Few men excelled him in the true elements of manhood. Strong, brave, courageous—yet he was gentle as the mother as she caresses her child.

During the war his thought was ever of the men who wore the uniforms of their country. His patriotism knew no bounds. The fervor with which he entered into the campaign to raise large sums of money for the men in the field and camp, on sea and in the air was only exceeded by the loathing and disgust he felt for the slacker and secret traitor at home.

Every fiber of his being was saturated with the true spirit of the great fraternity which was his pride. From his first step as an entered apprentice to his exaltation as grand master, there never was a moment when he was not true to every precept and principle of the craft. No man in Illinois ever knew the ritual of Masonry better, had a clearer conception of its meaning or was more expert in its presentation. If he erred at all (and who does not?) it was on the side of the tenderest consideration for the welfare of others. He did not merely do his bit—he did his best.

Last February he made me his companion to the meeting of the George Washington Masonic Memorial Association at Alexandria, Va. On the 22nd, the natal day of Washington, in the pilgrimage from the city of Washington to Mt. Vernon, Bro. Serogin was honored by being one of two grand masters chosen to bear the great floral wreaths placed in the tomb by the Memorial Association. On this occasion grand masters, past grand masters and others of the most distinguished Masons of the country gathered from every one of the forty-nine grand jurisdiction of the United States. Among these no one stood higher in the estimation of the assembly than Austin H. Serogin, Grand Master of Masons of Illinois.

His administration, during the trying times of the great war, rang true on all questions and policies. Bro. Serogin died in the harness. He is the only grand master in the history of Masonry in our grand lodge to be called in the midst of his labors. His record, though cut short by the inexorable decree of death, will ever stand as one of the best. We as Masons not only respected and admired our departed brother but we genuinely loved him.

As a citizen no man stood above him in Lexington, McLean County or in Illinois. He was ready to give his time and was prodigal with his money for every good community movement. My personal relation to him was such, that I know of no higher compliment to pay him than to say that he was a brother as close as though he had been of my own blood.

We can accept the thought of James Whitecomb Riley as he writes:

I cannot say and I will not say
That he is dead. He is just away!
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.

And loyal still, as he gave the blows
Of his warrior-strength to his country's foes—
Mild and gentle as he was brave,—
When the sweetest love of his life he gave To simple things.

Think of him still as the same, I say,
He is not dead—he is just away!

Bro. Henry R. Rathbone:

We pause for a moment to pay a fitting tribute to the heroic dead, to lay a wreath on the graves of those who paid the supreme sacrifice, who gave their lives for their country in the great war. As long as we live we shall never forget them. While memory lasts those who loved them living will not cease to love them dead.

They responded nobly, cheerfully to the call of duty. They came from the farm and the great city, from the factory and the field. How proud we were of them as we bade them the last long lingering good-bye.

They were summoned by their country from the factory and from the field, from the city and the farm. In a few months we expected to make soldiers of them. The world said that this could not be done, that it took years to make a trained fighting man. But we had confidence in our boys. We knew that they would hold their own against any forces that might be sent against them. We were confident that they would do just what they did do—bring Old Glory home again crowned with victory.

In a few months we did what no nation had ever done or ever dreamed of in the history of the world before. We created a merchant marine. Before the war the flag of the United States was seldom seen on any sea. Now we have become the second, and I hope we will soon be the first, maritime nation of the world.

We poured out the munitions of war in a flood. We raised the greatest crops that man has ever seen. We mustered an army of millions of men. We sent two millions of the best blood of our nation across three thousand miles of water to fight on a foreign soil.

And our boys reached there not a minute too soon. The Germans were sweeping towards Paris. The battle-line of the allies bent backward. The great super-cannon was shelling the capitol of France. The French and British were in retreat. Many threw down their arms. They were exhausted by four years of terrible struggle. The cry was heard that all was lost, that the war was over. And then the word came for the Americans also to retreat.

But suddenly a new hope dawned and the world was electrified when the American commander sent back the thrilling reply—"The American army is not here to retreat."

From the moment our boys met the foe at Chateau Thierry they never went backward. There were days of awful suffering, days of dreadful slaughter as they toiled through the tangled mazes of the Argonne forest or stormed across the fire-swept hills, but there was not a single hour of retreat.

The world was astounded. Could these "raw levies," as they were called, meet successfully in battle the trained soldiers of Europe? The world can answer now. Our boys met there not the poorest, but the best men that the enemy had. They were matched against the famous Prussian guards, who were said to be invincible, and our boys sent those guards reeling backward towards Berlin in defeat. I am proud of our boys.

Our hearts were with the boys as they embarked on the vessels that were to take them across the perilous ocean, where lurked the deadly submarine, the assassin of the deep and any moment a torpedo might come and their fate be the fate of the victims of the Lusitania. But when I speak of the glorious achievements of the American soldier, I do not intend to overlook the heroism of the marines who first stemmed the tide of battle, of the gallant American navy, that showed itself worthy of its splendid traditions. What a record our jackies made! Their ancestors fought with an enemy that could be seen, but these boys in blue foiled and conquered an enemy that could not be seen, that struck without warning. But so well did our navy guard the transports as they crossed those three thousands miles of water, freighted with the precious lives of our sons and brothers, that not a ship, protected by Americans, was sunk, not a single soldier lost his life of all the two millions and more who crossed that perilous sea.

Our hearts were with our boys as they landed, as they tramped wearily on all the toilsome marches, as they dropped their heavy packs at last, wrapped themselves in their blankets and lay down to sleep.

Our hearts were with them in the trenches, deep down in the earth, fifteen or twenty feet below the ground, in the snow, in the rain, in the mud, among the rats, among the vermin there.

Our hearts were with them when the shrill whistle sounded, when they sprang over the top and charged across no-man's land amid the storm of shot and shell.

Our hearts were with them as they lay in the hospitals of pain, row upon row of eots, suffering uneomplaining the torments of wounds or the agony of death.

Our hearts are with those heroes now, who paid the supreme sacrifice, who laid down their lives, who sleep in that far-off land, their graves marked only with a rude wooden cross or perhaps without a stock or stoue to mark the spot. We shall never forget these heroes. Those who loved them living will not cease to love them dead. Their heroism is part of the imperishable glory of their country and of all the world.

Let us always remember our heroes living and dead with hearts full of gratitude. Let us never forget how they won the great war. Let us see to it that no soldier or sailor of the United States shall suffer loss because of the sacrifice he has made. Let us never forget our duty as citizens and as patriots. Let us see to it that all the sacrifice and suffering, the blood and tears of the great conflict shall not have been in vain. Let us keep our country forever, what it should be, a land of justice and liberty, the leader of the nations, the hope of the world.

REPORT OF GRAND MASTER.

The grand master, Bro. Daniel G. Fitzgerrell, presented his annual report.

BRETHREN OF THE GRAND LODGE:

The shades of the night of war haye vanished. The sun of freedom is mounting the sky. His rays are dispelling the gloom and bringing healing for the wounds of strife and discord. True there is yet comotion in all lands, even our own not excepted. Strikes, lock-outs, bitterness and rancor still are seen. These were to be expected. They are but the birth-pains of the new freedom secured through the blood of battle. The tyrant has been dethroned and the people have come into their own. Hereafter the ruler must be chiefly the servant of all. The spirit of universal brotherhood is the solvent that is to soften the asperities of mankind. Freemasonry is and has been pre-eminent in bringing the gospel of peace and good will to all people. Though not assuming to be the equal of religion, yet, it has been content to be her handmaiden in all that goes to make man happier, woman more secure in her queenly position in her social state, and childhood purer and sweeter in its development.

From this attitude Masonry will continue to be a dominant force in the restoration of the world to pre-war condition and to aid in se-euring that permanent peace that is so devoutly desired by the world at large.

It is peculiarly pleasing to advise you that the craft in Illinois has never been on a higher plane. Its growth is almost miraculous, so much so that some have feared that too many were gaining admission. Yet, no one can reasonably object to permitting the beneficent influences of our great fraternity to be extended to all good and true men. With the safeguards of the ballot, the evil, the designing and the unfit can be kept without our doors.

INTO THE SILENT LAND

One year ago the grand master congratulated this grand lodge that during the preceding year the ranks of the grand and past grand officers had not been broken. The hand that prepared that message has forgotten its cunning and the heart so full of love for his brethren, his family and friends has ceased to pulsate.

AUSTIN H. SCROGIN

is no more. His life is a royal heritage to the thousands who knew and admired him. On April 26, 1919, at the very crest of his manhood, when apparently at the full tide of his manly vigor, while performing a Masonic duty in laying to rest a brother of his own lodge, he sank down and passed away within less than one hour. This is the first instance in the history of the grand lodge where a grand master was called in the midst of his labors. He died literally in the harness. One other time a grand master was compelled to leave the state on account of his health and his place was filled by the deputy grand master, Most Worshipful Brother Joseph Robbins. This was in the case of Most Worshipful Brother Lounsbury. In the passing of Brother Scroggin the world is poorer and heaven richer by his transition. The Committee on Obituaries will give suitable tribute to his life and services.

MONROE C. CRAWFORD

Not content with gathering in the stalwart grand master in the midst of his usefulness and power, the grim reaper garnered a ripened sheaf. The dean of past grand masters, Monroe C. Crawford, was called home on the 9th day of March, 1919, and laid to rest on March 11, Grand Master A. H. Scroggin in charge. At the time of his death Brother Crawford was the senior past grand master having served in 1891 and 1892. Few men have measured up to a higher standard of service in every relation of life than Judge Crawford. As a jurist, as a citizen, as a Mason, as a Christian gentlemen—no man exceeded him. I may be permitted to refer to Brother Crawford with a peculiar feeling of pure affection. He was almost like a father to me in the many years of our closest and most intimate friendship. Further reference to his great work and service will be detailed by the committee.

DISPOSITION OF WAR FUNDS

The close of the world war and the demobilization of the military forces of the United States call attention to the disposition of the two funds contributed by the Masons of Illinois. The first of these was where appeal was made for a contribution of at least one dollar per member. The purpose for raising this money was that our brethren in the service should not lack for necessities and comforts whether at home or abroad. From this was raised the sum of $133,762.35. This sum has been kept intact and has had the accumulation of interest added to it. The question now is as to the disposition of this fund. The men in large part have been discharged whether at home or overseas. The direct purpose for which these contributions were made has ceased. What shall be done with this money is before us. It is a well-known principle in the laws of the land that where trust funds are collected for a specific aim and that fails, that they shall go to that which comes nearest the original purpose. Just now unusual demands for money are made for the homes. This is especially true of the Children's Home at LaGrange. The number is such that some are now compelled to sleep in the halls and corridors. A number of children of deceased soldiers have already been admitted and this is just the beginning. No doubt dependent men from the army and navy will seek admission at Sullivan. In view of these considerations, I recommend that the sum now in the hands of the grand treasurer, known as the "dollar fund" be placed in the grand lodge treasury to be used especially for additional construction and maintenance of the homes.

There is a considerable sum of money known as the National Defense Fund remaining in the treasury of the grand lodge. Very important activities for the relief and entertainment of the men at Camp Grant, Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes have been carried on during the past year under the direction of the committee heretofore provided.

It has been my privilege since assuming the office of grand master to visit these places and to inspect the work done by those in charge. I find the highest grade of efficiency prevailing. The men in charge have been faithful and industrious in providing for the wants of the soldiers at these three stations.

A recent visit to Camp Grant led to the information that most of the men enlisted for the duration of the war have been retired from the service and that those remaining are simply taken there for the purpose of discharge. I recommend that the work at Camp Grant be discontinued.

The work at Waukegan near the Great Lakes Naval Station, which is a permanent station, is placed on a rather different basis. After consulting with the morale officer and other authorities at Waukegan, I was convinced that there is still work for us to do in maintaining a club house and other means of entertainment. I, therefore, recommend that this be continued under the direction of the committee.

Fort Sheridan is now a permanent army hospital and the reasons for attention on the part of Masons have been made almost entirely unnecessary. What is necessary to do at this station can be done by the brother who is in charge at Waukegan, under the direction of the committee.

Too much praise can not be given the committee in charge of this work. They have unselfishly devoted their time and energies for the relief of the unfortunates and have invariably paid the expenses incident to their duties out of their own funds. They are entitled to and should receive a vote of thanks by this grand lodge.

JURISDICTIONAL COMPLICATIONS

Serious complications have arisen regarding jurisdiction assumed by lodges and even by one grand lodge, regarding temporary sojourn of men in the service of their country who desire to petition lodges. The Grand Lodge of New York has organized what they call Sea and Field Lodges. They have assumed to take men from Illinois and without the consent of the lodges where they reside and which have jurisdiction over them and confer the degrees. They have gone so far in one case as to notify one of the lodges that a certain man had received the three degrees in Masonry and that he had "automatically" become a member of this Chicago lodge. The fact that lodges in Chicago have concurrent jurisdiction renders it impossible for anyone to become a member of one lodge in the city rather than in another. However, that objection is not fundamental. Under the law of Illinois each lodge has jurisdiction over all those who reside within its territorial limits. To divest it of this jurisdiction it is necessary that application be made for a waiver. This can only be granted by a unanimous ballot. Some lodges near the army stations in Illinois have accepted petitions from those who reside elsewhere. A man in the service at any of the military stations does not become a resident of the place where he is temporarily located. Hence the lodge within whose territory he lives retains its territorial jurisdiction. I have held that where petitions have been received by Illinois lodges without waiver of jurisdiction that the action of the lodge is void. The lodge where the man resides has not surrendered its right unless by vote it waives jurisdiction.

ARMY AND NAVY LODGES

The question has arisen as to the right of members of the so-called Sea and Field Lodges, authorized by the Grand Lodge of New York, to visit in or affiliate with lodges in Illinois. If they have the necessary documentary evidence and can prove themselves to be Masons by due examination, I am of the opinion that they would have the right to visit or affiliate. However, I have enjoined lodges to unusual care in testing applicants as to their regularity. These men are not members of any lodge in Illinois and cannot be without petition and election. In one case a man had been elected and received the first degree in an Illinois lodge. He received the second and third in France without the consent of the Illinois lodge. He had had no instruction in Masonry and could not prove himself as a Mason. I held that the lodge should ignore the work in France and give him the second and third degrees again in the lodge in which he received the first. This whole matter has been embarrassing and I have advised the Grand Lodge of New York that we do not recognize any power or authority on their part to waive jurisdiction. Our laws must be complied with in that respect.

THE SCHOOLS

By reference to the report of the grand examiners it will be found that five state schools were held during the year in conformity with Code 76. The results obtained prove beyond question that the schools are not only justified as to efforts and expense incident thereto but that they are invaluable in keeping our ritual up to its present high standard.

DECLARED A VACANCY

During the lifetime of the late Bro. Serogin, R. W. Bro. Welles W. La Moure, D. D. G. M. for the 8th District, reported that the worshipful master of Avondale Lodge, No 921 had proven to be a defaulter in the Chicago post office and was sent to the federal prison at Ft. Leavenworth for 18 months. Before Bro. Serogin had been able to make an order in this case he passed away.

The facts coming before me, I declared the office of worshipful master vacant as provided by law and issued a dispensation to elect a new master. There were circumstances tending to show that the master was not mentally sound. In view of this I did not order charges preferred, thus leaving the case open for future adjustment. The arrangement made was entirely satisfactory to the lodge and all concerned.

MASTER DEPOSED

Complaint was made to me by the senior warden and secretary of R. F. Casey Lodge No. 948, located at Kell, Illinois, against the worshipful master. The charge was made that his conduct was unbecoming a Mason, seriously involving him in moral turpitude. His actions were so open and flagrant in his attention to the sister of a Master Mason that he brought disgrace upon the lodge of which he was the master. I referred the case to the district deputy grand master, Right Worshipful Brother David B. Robertson. Acting under my proxy he made thorough and complete investigation and found the charge made to be true. In fact the worshipful master admitted his improper relations and refused to agree to change them. Under my order the district deputy deposed him from his office and placed the lodge in charge of the senior warden. I recommend that this be approved and that he be expelled from all the rights and privileges of Masonry.

CHARTER SURRENDERED

The affairs of Orient Lodge No. 323 of Lisbon, Illinois, became in such condition that I referred the master to Right Worshipful Brother E. E. Mull, district deputy grand master, for investigation and report. On July 14th he reported that he had visited the lodge on July 12th and after a full investigation found that the lodge was dormant and that there was no prospect of resuscitating it. Ten members were present and after thorough explanation voted unanimously to surrender the charter. The district deputy grand master thereupon took the charter and property of the lodge into his possession. The same is in the hands of the district deputy and the grand secretary to be disposed of according to the requirements of the law. I therefore recommend that the action of the district deputy under my instruction be approved and that the name and number of the lodge be erased from the roll.

GERMAN-SPEAKING LODGES

There have come into my possession petitions addressed to the grand lodge regarding the resumption of work in the German language. These petitions are addressed to the officers and members of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge.

There have also been written letters to one of the past grand masters seriously attacking him for an alleged speech that he made before a lodge in the city of Chieago. In these letters a spirit of insubordination and rebellion against the authority of the grand lodge is strenuously exhibited. In one of these letters language reflecting seriously upon Masonry is used. Words were employed designating certain classes of Masons as "blaek hands" and "moral cowards." The writer of these letters is evidently more a German than an Ameriean or a Mason. His letters are so extreme that I have ordered charges preferred against him for his willful insult to the past grand master and for defamation of Free-masonry in general.

The petitions referred to do not come within the purview of the Committee on Petitions, hence I have not so referred them. The use of any other than the Ameriean language in the work and business of our lodges has been disposed of completely by the edict of the former grand master, Most Worshipful Brother Austin H. Serogin. On July 10, 1918, this edict was promulgated. In this it was provided that after August, 1918, the English language should be used exclusively by all constituent lodges in transacting their business and keeping their records. It was further ordered that "after the 15th day of January, 1919, the English language only shall be used in all ritualistic work in all the lodges of the state." This edict stands as the law of the grand lodge at this time. Until it has been nullified by action of the grand lodge or by an edict of a succeeding grand master it stands without further question. Petitions of the character referred to cannot be considered by the Committee on Petitions because the law of the grand lodge would prohibit any action taken thereon. The grand lodge stands for work and business in the language of Ameriea. Any persons who are so much German in their tendencies as to feel aggrieved because the grand lodge insists on the American language being used have the privilege of withdrawing from the institution. The people of the United States would not object if such persons saw fit to leave the land where they have been protected and prospered and return to that country from which many of them fled to escape oppression. An overwhelming perecentage of those of German birth or descent in this country are thoroughly Ameriean in their ideas and in their language. It is only a small number who object to making Masonry in this state what it must be to be true to the instincts and prerogatives of the Ameriean Republic. This is presented, not that any action of this body is necessary, but that the representatives of the lodges of the state may know the undereurrents that are sweeping through the office of the grand master.

ORGANIZATIONS OTHER THAN MASONIC

Sometime prior to my becoming grand master the question was raised regarding the use of the name of Masonry in connection with organizations that are not Masonic, but whose members are all of the fraternity. In some places these organizations have staged entertainments such as parades and picnics which in no sense are in harmony with the practices of Masonry. In connection with these demonstrations they have used the name in such a way as to leave the impression that these institutions are Masonic. This went to such an extent that the attention of Grand Master Wheeler was called to it. He took the matter up with the principal officer of one of these organizations and advised him that unless the practice was discontinued he would be obliged to issue an edict forbidding Masons being associated with or parties to such un-Masonic demonstrations. The executive to whom he addressed this replied very cheerfully, agreeing with the grand master and instructing the subordinate bodies that they should desist from using the Masonic name in such a way as to lead the impression that these were Masonic organizations. It is not my purpose to cast any reflection on these outside organizations. They are no doubt valuable and within the scope of their activities are accomplishing much good. My purpose in calling attention to this is that Masons throughout the state may know that if they are members of these institutions that make membership in Masonry an essential qualification for admission to their body, that they should not prostitute the name of Masonry by using it in connections that confer no credit upon it. The dignity and prominence of Freemasonry are often sought to be used for the purpose of building up and strengthening other organizations that in no sense can be classed as Masonic. It is therefore my purpose to caution members of lodges throughout the state to avoid any repetition of the practice condemned and referred to herein.

GEORGE WASHINGTON MEMORIAL

The grand master, Bro. A. H. Serogin, attended the 9th annual meeting of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association held at Alexandria, Va., on February 21 and 22, 1919. P. G. M. Owen Scott, by appointment of the grand master, accompanied him to this meeting as a representative of this grand lodge. This was very largely attended by grand masters and other representatives of grand lodges throughout the United States. Of the forty-nine grand jurisdictions few were unrepresented.

During the war little was done toward raising the memorial fund. It was determined to proceed to raise a million dollars for the erection of a building at Alexandria. This edifice is to house and safeguard the relics now held by Alexandria-Washington Lodge. These are of such priceless value as to challenge the interest of the entire Masonic world. A great library of Masonic literature is to be accumulated as a part of the enterprise.

The Washington Monument in the capitol stands as the nation's memorial to George Washington, the patriot and statesman. The proposed memorial to be located just across the Potomac and in view of the monument in the city of Washington is to be the tribute of the craft throughout the United States to George Washington, the Mason. He was the first master of the lodge at Alexandria, near which he lived in his country place at Mt. Vernon.

During the time he was master of the lodge at Alexandria, George Washington, acting as the grand master of Maryland, laid the cornerstone of the nation's capital at the city of Washington.

The plan of campaign for creating this memorial fund is to appeal to individual Masons throughout the entire country. There are to be ten divisions, each in charge of a chairman. Illinois is placed in the Great Lakes Division, with Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin. Each grand lodge has a state chairman. Bro. Owen Scott was designated by our late grand master as chairman for Illinois. Further details will be developed and announced at the session of this grand lodge.

During the meeting at Alexandria the members of the Memorial Association in a body visited Mt. Vernon. This was on February 22nd, the natal day of the father of his country. Our beloved grand master, Bro. Austin H. Serogin, was accorded the distinguished honor of placing one of the two large floral pieces on the tomb of Washington as the tribute of American Masons to his memory. It is my desire to urge that the Masons of Illinois as individuals contribute toward this fund. There are now in the treasury of the association about $120,000 and it is hoped that the remainder of this fund may be contributed before the next meeting of the association February 22, 1920. During the session of the grand lodge I shall confer with the district deputy grand masters regarding methods of securing our share of this fund. It is well known that our late lamented Brother Austin H. Serogin was deeply interested in Illinois doing its share toward the erection of this great memorial.

MASONIC SERVICE ASSOCIATION OF THE U. S.

At the invitation of the Most Worshipful Brother George L. Schoonover, grand master of Iowa, Grand Master Austin H. Serogin attended the conference of grand masters in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on November 26, 27, 28, 1918. It was desired to obtain through this conference a truly Masonic opinion on our concerted war activities in the future. Fifty representatives were present, representing 22 grand jurisdictions.

The outcome of the conference was the formation of the Masonic Service Association of the United States and a constitution was there drawn up which embodied the following object:

"The object of the association shall be the service of mankind through education, enlightenment, financial relief and Masonic visitation, particularly in times of disaster and distress, whether caused by war, pestilence, famine, fire, flood, earthquake, or other calamity; and presently and immediately ministering to, cherishing, comforting and relieving the members of the fraternity, their dependents, and others engaged in the United States forces, in the present great war, wherever they may be stationed and upon whatever duties engaged in the service."

Not having been present at the Cedar Rapids Conference, I have been able to gain information only from the printed proceedings of that meeting. This is a step that requires careful consideration and pains-taking investigation. It is proper that the Grand Lodge of Illinois should be in touch with all movements of a general character. I would not, however, feel that I should in any way commit this body to this movement until the same has been properly considered and understood. I, therefore, recommend that a special committee of three be appointed to take up this matter and report at the next session of this grand lodge.

CONCLUSION

It is impossible for anyone to understand the embarrassment that came to me in the sudden death of Brother Serogin. Assuming that long established custom would be followed I had looked forward to succeeding him at this time. My plans were all made with that in view. His passing away so suddenly, almost in the twinkling of an eye, brought to me not only the great shock that came with his loss but the necessity of immediately assuming the great responsibility of the office of grand master. To say that I felt almost crushed with the blow is but a mild expression of the truth. I took up the work where he left it and under the greatest possible disadvantages have carried it on for the past six months. I wish to take this opportunity to acknowledge my appreciation of the valuable assistance rendered me by our past grand masters especially M. W. Brethren Owen Scott, Leroy A. Goddard, Alexander H. Bell and Delmar D. Darrah. I have consulted them frequently and in every instance have been accorded the greatest consideration. By their advice and the help of others to whom I applied I have been able to carry on the work to this time. I am most conscious of the fact that I have not met all the requirements of the great office of grand master as they should have been and would have been met had Brother Serogin lived to carry out his plans. It has been my purpose so far as possible to follow the course that he would have pursued had he lived. For these reasons I ask the indulgence of the craft of Illinois for any mistakes or shortcomings that may appear in my work. I have given my time and labor with all the devotion possible and trust that the results may not prove detrimental to the interests of Masonry in Illinois.

The following is a detailed report of the grand master's office since April 26, 1919.

REPORT—Committee on Correspondence.

Bro. Delmar D. Darrah presented his report as Committee on Correspondence. It was received, ordered printed in the proceedings and will be found in the appendix.

REPORT—Committee on Legislation.

Bro. Owen Scott chairman of the Committee on New Legislation, made the following report:

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

Amendment to Code No. 243, proposed at the last meeting, provides for the payment of four dollars per day for members of the grand lodge instead of two dollars as fixed in the present law. Owing to the greatly increased cost of hotel accommodations this change should be made.

We, therefore, recommend that this amendment be adopted.

Respectfully submitted,

OWEN SCOTT,
WILLIAM WILHARTZ,

JOSEPH J. SHAW,

Committee.

The foregoing amendment to Code No. 243 having received more than a two-thirds vote was declared adopted.

REPORT—Committee on Grand Master's Annual Report.

Bro. Charles H. Spilman, chairman of the Committee on Grand Master's Report, presented the report of that committee. On motion, it was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

When this most worshipful grand lodge was formed, eighty years ago, the committee in charge of the preparation of the governing code recommended that there should be a second in command, so that as in the case of civic, military and business organizations, a prompt succession in authority would be available in any contingency. The wisdom of this has been demonstrated since then, for at the very first day's session of the Illinois Grand Lodge, through stress of circumstances it was the deputy grand master who presided, and the grand master of today appears before you in that capacity because of the mutations of human life, and presents not only his own executive report, but likewise the account of the unfinished work of him whom he was so suddenly called upon to succeed.

The grand master prefaces his report with a sentiment that will echo in all hearts, of rejoicing that the sunshine of peace illuminates the land and that coincidentally the radiance of Masonic light is spreading further and further.

References to the illustrious dead of this jurisdiction are referred to the Committee on Obituaries.

The extensive report on the important subject of the War Fund, with the recommendations included therein, is referred to the Committee on Finance.

The grand master has carefully analyzed and presented for consideration matters of jurisdictional complications and army and navy lodges and these are referred to the Committee on Jurisprudence.

To the Committee on Jurisprudence is likewise detailed for consideration the action taken in matters involving the worshipful masters of two lodges, and which are presented under the headings—"Declared a Vacancy" and "Master Deposed."

The grand master's references to the state schools as reported by the grand examiners, is cordially concurred in.

The subject of charter surrender belongs in the province of the Committee on Chartered Lodges and is thus referred.

Under the head of German-speaking Lodges recurs a subject which has previously received consideration. The action of the grand master thoroughly reflects the sentiment of this grand lodge, and effectually disposes of the matter.

Masonic contacts with organizations other than Masonic are clearly defined by the grand master upon recurrence of this question, and his position is approved by your committee.

The grand master gives suitable attention to the subject of the George Washington Memorial Fund, in which his predecessor was greatly interested, and acquaints the grand lodge with the course which he shall follow in future attention to the subject.

The grand master suggests the reference to consideration by the grand lodge of the subject of the Masonic Service Association of the United States, and this course is recommended as indicated.

There has also been referred to your committee and considered carefully by the latter a considerable amount of detail, concerning the stewardship of the grand master in a strictly executive capacity—the laying of cornerstones, dedication of buildings, institution of lodges, filling vacancies, making appointments and accounting on dispensations and fees. These points indicate the splendid growth of the institution. The various calls have all been answered promptly and fully by the grand master, and the respective actions taken are hereby approved. Approval is likewise given to all the matters reported as of the personal administration of the late Grand Master Serogin, which are incorporated as supplementary to the present grand master's report.

Without warning the greatest responsibility that Masonic duties in the jurisdiction of Illinois can impose came suddenly upon Most Worshipful Brother Daniel G. Fitzgerrell. It is a matter of distinct pride and satisfaction to the craft that without wavering but with a full realization of their gravity he took up those duties, and has administered them conscientiously and in accordance with Masonic usage and custom. His hand did not falter as it took up the gavel so suddenly stricken from the grasp of his predecessor, and it is with appreciation of how much this has meant to the craft of Illinois, that your committee closes its report by commanding in the highest possible terms the splendid work of the grand master.

Fraternally submitted,

C. H. SPILMAN,
GEO. J. KURZENKNABE,
WM. FAIRLEE.

Committee.

REPORT—Committee on Lodges U. D.

Bro. Wm. H. Beckman presented the report of the Committee on Lodges U. D. The report was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

Your Committee on Lodges under Dispensation has had presented to it for consideration the dispensations, records and returns of ten (10) lodges which have been granted dispensations to work since the last annual meeting of the most worshipful grand lodge, and after a careful and thorough examination of all the books and papers connected therewith beg leave to submit the following report:

THEODORE ROOSEVELT LODGE, U. D.

A dispensation was issued for this lodge April 3rd, 1919, by Bro. Austin H. Serogin, grand master.

This lodge was instituted April 9th, 1919, by Bro. Paul A. Neuffer, D.D.G.M., for the 15th District.

The records of this lodge show that after the approval by the lodge, the minutes of the meeting of May 23rd, 1919, and same subsequent meetings, were added to by the secretary who inserted therein the dates of the election, initiation, passing and raising of the petitioners thereby violating section 341 of the Code.

This is a case of the secretary failing to avail himself of the valuable information provided in the Blue Book and of the failure of the district deputy grand master to assist the new and inexperienced secretary in recording the proceedings of the lodge.

We, therefore, recommend that the dispensation be continued and that a charter as Drexel Lodge No. 1031 be placed in the hands of the most worshipful grand master to be delivered to the lodge at such time as, in his judgment, the records show that they are being kept in accordance with the requirements of the Grand Lodge By-Laws.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

W. H. BECKMAN,
F. O. LORTON,
C. L. SANDUSKY,
ROY BROWNING,
IVER R. JOHNSON,

Committee.

INVITATIONS.

REPORT—Committee on Libraries.

Bro. Charles W. Walduck, chairman, presented the report of the Committee on Libraries. It was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

Your Committee on Libraries submits the following report:

Balance on hand, October 1st, 1918.....	$ 26.11
Amount drawn from Entertainment Fund.....	74.45
Total	$100.56
Expenditures for newspapers and books.....	100.56
Balance on hand September 30, 1919.....	$000.00

It will be seen, therefore, that the Library Fund is entirely exhausted, and your committee fraternally recommends that an appropriation of $500.00 be made and set aside for this fund, this portion of the report to be referred to the Committee of Finance.

We are pleased to report that liberal donations in books have been made to the Home in LaGrange, for which we desire to extend thanks; but in order to maintain the splendid tabulation and index system now used in this library, an additional supply of sectional book cases is needed and must be furnished.

The supply of magazines such as "Saturday Evening Post," "Colliers," "Puck," "Life," and other leading periodicals for the "Home" in Sullivan and which are always very much enjoyed by the older folks, has not been adequate, and need replenishing.

Donations of books and other library supplies will, therefore, be gladly accepted, and in addition if any of the brethren desire to make financial contributions they will be very much appreciated, said contribution to be applied solely to the Library Fund.

An encouragement of a love for good books and literature, in both young and old, is a praiseworthy undertaking, and should not be neglected.

Fraternally submitted,

CHARLES W. WALDUCK,

GEO. S. HILLIKER,

JAMES B. SMITH,

Committee.

REPORT—Committee on Chartered Lodges.

Bro. Phil. C. Barclay presented the report of the Committee on Chartered Lodges. It was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

We, your Committee on Chartered Lodges, having checked over the reports of the constituent lodges as made to the grand secretary for the year ending June 30, 1919, present the following report:

The grand master called the grand lodge from refreshment to labor at 9:00 o'clock a. m.

Grand officers and representatives were present same as the preceding day.

Prayer was offered by the grand chaplain.

The minutes of Tuesday's session were read and approved.

REPORT—Committee on National Defense.

The Committee on National Defense presented their report. The report and recommendations were adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

In taking up the National Defense work, the committee appointed at the last session of the grand lodge has endeavored to carry on the work so ably started by the previous committee. The members have studied, and believe they understand the purpose for which the money was raised, and have made every effort to expend it in accordance therewith.

The committee, as well as the Masonic Fraternity sustained a severe loss in the sudden death of Brother Nelson N. Lampert on October 30, 1918. Brother Lampert was a man of wide business activities and his advice and counsel were of great value in the doings of our committee. Brother Robert C. Fletcher was appointed to the place made vacant by the death of Brother Lampert.

Little need be said with reference to the Home Office, or the individual members of the committee. The administrative expenses have been held down to a minimum, there being no rent to pay, and the interest on the bank balances of the fund have about sufficed to pay salaries of stenographer and bookkeeper, telephone, postage and stationery.

The committee desires to express its gratitude to Brother Robert C. Fletcher, one of its members, for his professional work in superintending the equipment of the Soldiers and Sailors Club at Waukegan.

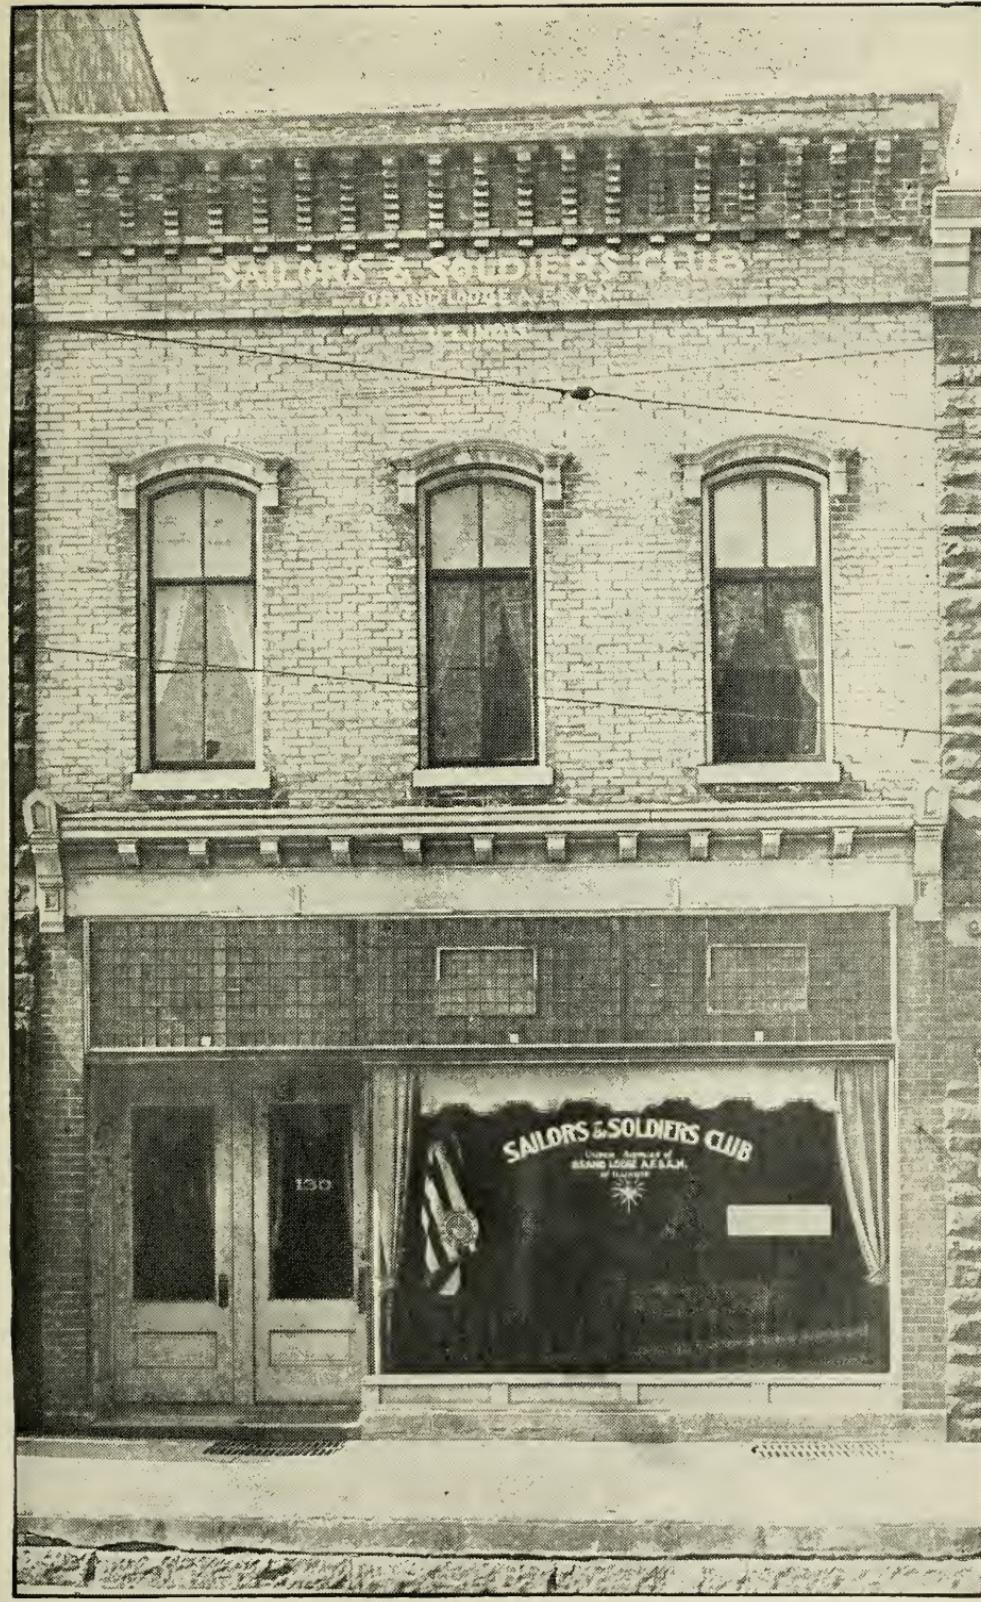

When this committee first undertook the task delegated to it by the most worshipful grand master, our attention was first focused on that wonderful center of intense patriotic activity so near our very doors, the Naval Training Station at Great Lakes. We were fortunate indeed, thanks to the efforts of the committee of the previous year, in having as our representative Brother Leroy Hill, past master of Waukegan Lodge, a man of sterling worth, of great heart and understanding, and of tireless energy. Brother Hill studied the men at the Naval Training Station and the conditions under which they lived, and very wisely concluded that when "Jack was ashore" was the time when he most needed the hand of good fellowship, a comfortable, clean homelike place where he could drop in for an hour or so, write a letter, read a good book, and meet on the level of equality among respectable surroundings, boys of the same type of young American manhood as himself. What they needed was a place where they could go without fee or price and know that they were welcome; where they could bring their loved ones for a visit, and where they could come for comfort, aid and advise in time of trouble.

All these things Brother Hill saw when he studied the boys and the station life at Great Lakes. The station had its usual complement of welfare organizations and welfare workers, but none of them supplied just what your committee thought was needed, accordingly the plans for the formation of a Masonic Club or headquarters were evolved. A building was secured at No. 130 East Washington Street, right in the heart of Waukegan, the nearest port to the Training Station and the headquarters of the vast majority of the boys of the station when on leave. This building consisted of two floors and a basement and was remodeled and decorated to suit our purposes.

The lower floor was furnished for a lounging, reading and writing room where books, newspapers and late periodicals are to be found at all times. A piano and phonograph make this room a very popular one with the boys. In the rear is located the office where Brother Hill or his assistant are to be found at all times.

To Brother Edward Sayles of Waukegan fell the task of keeping the quarters in good shape, and in many other ways he has been of inestimable assistance to Brother Hill. Knowing the town and the people, and also having an understanding of the sailor boy and his needs, Brother Sayles acted as a general information bureau; he kept a list of the hotels, rooms and restaurants, answered questions as to train times and aided the boys or their friends or relatives in many little things which to a stranger are usually so perplexing.

The second floor is furnished very comfortably as a reception room, and facilities are provided for a ladies' retiring room. This room also provides a place which is large enough and secure enough for Masonic instruction, and the meetings of the Anchor & Ark Club are held here. It is no unusual sight to see the large room on the first floor filled to capacity with happy contented boys,—here a group playing chess or cribbage, and others reading good literature or writing to the folks at home.

The social life of the soldiers was not overlooked as a perusal of the Anchor & Ark Club's records shows that since March, 1919, fifteen dances and three picnics have been held under the auspices of the club, and seventeen parties or meetings, at which Masonic soldiers or sailors only were admitted. A glance at the attendance record shows that 1700 men in uniform have attended the club meetings, and 5500 more have been entertained at the dances and picnics.

On the floor above may be found one of the boys visiting with his wife and baby, his mother and father or sweetheart. In the basement you might walk into the wash room and see half a dozen splendid young fellows at the toilet that makes Uncle Sam's sailors such models of cleanliness.

The register shows that since the opening of this building over 30,000 men have availed themselves of the hospitality of the fraternity, 12,000 sheets of Masonic stationery have been issued gratis, and on each Wednesday and Saturday, the usual "shore-leave" days when the men flock into town to spend the afternoon or evening, a light luncheon has been served. The boys have all come to know that irrespective of creed, religion or fraternal affiliations, the Masonic Soldiers & Sailors Club is a place where they are always welcome. So much for the care that was taken of our boys while away from the station.

Let us now turn our attention to the work accomplished in the station itself among the boys who could not get away from their duties, to the lads on the little white cots in the sick-bays and hospitals, to the boys who through ignorance of regulations or some unintentional breach of discipline were denied the privilege of a pass to town.

At the commencement of our welfare work at the Naval Station, Brother Hill established himself on terms of friendly co-operation with the officers in command of the various departments; he explained to them the aim and purpose of the committee; they saw that our plans were for the good of the men and he was given an unrestricted pass to all departments of the station. He made daily visits throughout the station searching out the boys in trouble, whom he advised and consoled. He wrote letters home to anxious parents and sat by the bedside of the sick boy in the hospital.

Unlike the Army where the personnel is composed of men 21 years of age or over, the Navy, or to be more explicit, the Naval Training Schools, had a high percentage of mere boys, 17, 18 and 19 years of age, many of whom were sons of Masons, who had never been away from home influences; naturally that disease for which medicine is no cure, the disease of homesickness was prevalent. Brother Hill took these lads in hand and mothered and fathered them, in some cases obtaining their discharge, in others securing furloughs to enable them to visit their homes, and in every way tried to cheer them up and show them that they were really men in the truest sense of the word and were playing in real earnest the most stern and manly game in the world—the game of war.

The work of the committee as exemplified in the labors of Brother Hill and his assistants has met and is meeting with approval as is shown by the numerous letters of commendation and gratitude which have come in from all parts of the country from the boys themselves, fathers and mothers, friends and relatives, masters and secretaries of lodges, and from officers in charge of the men who are in a position to see and judge what a potent factor for good the work of the Masonic Fraternity has been.

The work at Camp Grant has been carried on along somewhat different lines. Starting later than the work at Great Lakes the social end was fairly well taken care of before the advent of our representative. Camp Grant possessed the advantage of being located just six miles from Rockford, a city of 75,000 inhabitants and supporting three flourishing Masonic lodges and a full complement of dependent and co-ordinate bodies. Before the committee took hold of the work at this camp, the Masonic interests among the soldiers were looked after by a number of volunteer workers from among the Rockford brethren who had the interest of the craft at heart. However, no organized effort was made until Brother Lyman M. Greenman of Quincy, Illinois, was sent down as the representative of the Committee on National Defense. Brother Greenman is a man of excellent Masonic training and of winning personality and under his management the work of the committee took root and flourished and began to show results. In May, 1919, Brother Greenman was called to other fields of endeavor and the committee selected Dr. Sherman S. Knox, past master of Perseverance Lodge No. 973, A. F. & A. M. of Chicago, as its representative to continue the work. Brother Knox has an excellent knowledge of Masonic work, and for two years previous to his assuming the duties of representative for this committee, was in charge of the Regimental Hospital at Camp Grant, consequently knew conditions and needs and had a thorough knowledge of the camp and its officers, as well as a large acquaintance among the Masons of Rockford, and was able to step in and continue the work of the committee without any hitch or loss of time. The work that is being done at Camp Grant lies more particularly in the camp than that at the Great Lakes Station. Our representative in his report has outlined his work as follows:

1. Among the sick and injured patients at the Base Hospital.
2. Among the returned convalescent overseas soldiers at the Reconstruction and Educational Hospitals.
3. Among the troops at large throughout the camp.
4. Between the Committee on National Defense and similar organizations of other grand jurisdictions, and the relatives and friends of the soldiers of this camp.

In the work at the Base Hospital it is the endeavor of Brother Knox to call in the different wards and ascertain who the sick Masons are, and by personal contact try to cheer them up and aid them in recovery; also to inquire into their condition, whether they are in need of anything and are receiving proper care and treatment, and if not to try to remedy such conditions. Writing letters and keeping the man in touch with his home, forms an important phase of the work here, as the average soldier is prone to neglect this with the result that those at home are unnecessarily kept in a more or less state of anxiety and suspense.

The Reconstruction Hospital for wounded or injured soldiers provides an interesting field in which the committee has done splendid work, in fact, we are the only organization which has given this important department any attention. Men who were injured overseas are sent to this hospital for convalescence, and during such period are taught various occupations and trades, with a view not only of fitting them for their changed condition on their return to civil life, but with the purpose of keeping their minds off their condition and by judicious exercise and occupation aid them to regain, in part, many of the functions they have lost, or by teaching them new things that their physical condition will permit them to do. In other words the aim of this department is to prove to the man that no matter what his infirmity is he can still be of some use in the world, thereby we are sending the man out into civil life imbued with the idea that he will not be a charge on the community, his lodge or his relatives, and that he still has a place in the world to fill, consequently men are being returned to civil life as good citizens and discontent finds no place in their minds.

This department has been in charge of Lieutenant-Colonel Wallace H. Whigham, a member of Cleveland Lodge No. 211, A. F. & A. M. of Chicago; this work has covered a large field. There are four large buildings and several small ones in which bookkeeping, stenography, telegraphy, wireless telegraphy, chemistry, scientific farming, illustrating and cartooning, modeling and designing, basket weaving, art metal and leather work, automobile repair work, moving picture operating and many other lines of work have been taught. A man may enter this department, who, previous to the war was a skilled mechanic; perhaps he has lost a hand or has some other injury which would make it impossible for him to return to his ante-bellum occupation; the outlook for him is very dark and he can see nothing ahead of him but an existence of dependency. This department shows him that he can do something else equally as well, and perhaps sends him back to civil life as a bookkeeper, a telegrapher, or in some capacity in which he can make an honest living and hold his head up as a useful citizen. The Committee on National Defense has appropriated money to help carry this work along; we have bought books, magazines, phonographs, records and music to keep the men cheered up. The buildings which were only bare shacks, and for the decoration of which the government had made no provision, have, through expenditures by the committee, been made cheerful and homelike by curtains, matting for the floors, and a few plants. The officials are well pleased with the work we have done here and the apparent results are more than gratifying. In the past two months most of this work has been transferred to the General Hospital at Fort Sheridan and our representative at that place is continuing along the same lines as laid down by Brother Knox.

Among the troops at large is where the actual work that touches the lodge takes place. It is the purpose of this committee to try to keep the Masonic soldier in touch with the lodge, and by so doing keep him mindful of the Masonic teachings which makes him a better soldier and a better citizen. The masters and officers of the lodges of Rockford are co-operating splendidly with the committee in providing entertainment, etc., for the Masonic soldiers, and the attendance at the various meetings is very gratifying.

Masonry, as you know, has had a wonderful stimulus in this war and thousands of boys in the service have taken, and are taking their Masonic degrees. This camp is no exception and at every meeting boys are elected to receive the degrees in Rockford lodges. There has been some complaint among the masters and officers of some of the lodges, also among some of the older Masons, that because of conditions of barracks life it has been very hard to secure the proper kind of posting for these men, due in part to the difficulty in securing proper and secure places for Masonic instruction, and to the difficulty in finding enough men competent to instruct in the work at times when the soldier was able to come for such instruction. Brother Knox conducted daily posting classes in his quarters at Camp, and the masters of the various lodges have taken advantage of this and sent their men there for instruction. The results were soon apparent and we have turned out Masons who not only are proficient in the wording of the ritual, but in a proper understanding of it as well.

Another phase of the work under this heading is the relationship between the Masonic soldier and his officers or his work. Men come to our representative with tales of woe as to bad treatment from this or that officer, or with expressed dissatisfaction with this or that duty. In the majority of cases, or we might say in nearly all of them, the dissatisfaction is unfounded and is due to a misunderstanding on the part of the men or to ignorance of the duties involved. Having been a soldier himself it is very easy for Brother Knox to point out to the aggrieved brother wherein he is wrong, or should he happen to be in the right, to see that his complaint receives consideration.

As stated before, many men have taken their Masonic degrees while in the service. We regret to say that many of them not only are improperly posted and so far as the knowledge of Masonry is concerned know little or nothing outside of the mere story of the work which they have gone through. It has been our representative's privilege to set them right on many points of Masonic law, and to advise them as to their actions in relationship to themselves and to their lodges.

Regarding the relationship between the committee and similar organizations of other grand jurisdictions, masters of individual lodges and relatives and friends of soldiers at camp, will state briefly:

In a community like Camp Grant we have had thousands of Masons coming from lodges from every part of this state and from other grand jurisdictions from all over the world. Should a man be sick or injured naturally his lodge would like to stand back of him should any assistance be required; Brother Knox has a file of correspondence from lodges all over the country. When he receives a communication asking for information in regard to this or that brother, he tries to locate this brother, ascertain his condition and needs, communicate with the party or lodge making the inquiry and carry out their wishes in regard to relief, etc. This condition also prevails at Great Lakes and Fort Sheridan. It is the purpose of the committee in this respect to keep the individual Mason in touch with his lodge, and to show him that Masonry has a regard for his welfare. The work of the National Defense Committee and its representative at Camp Grant has met with the warmest approval and heartiest co-operation on the part of the highest officials at the camp who say that our work has been of inestimable worth in upholding the morale of the men.

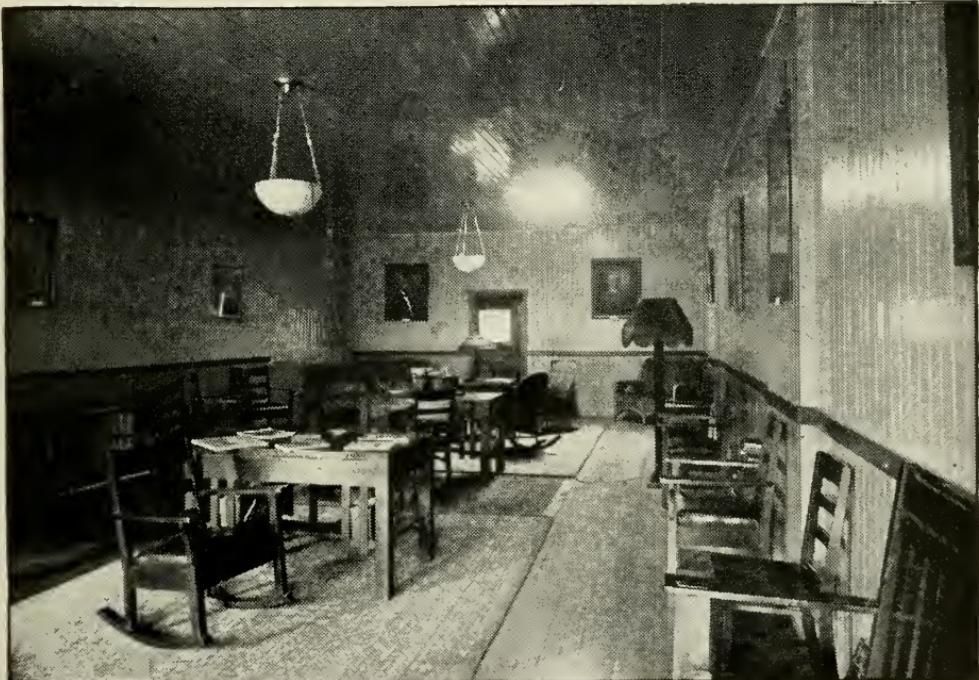

Our work as conducted at Camp Grant and Great Lakes is different from that of any of the so-called welfare organizations, such as the Y. M. C. A., K. C., Jewish Welfare Board, etc. We do not aim to coddle the soldier or to provide extravagant entertainment or amusement for him; our work is of a practical nature; where relief is necessary we aim to give it; where advice is necessary we give it to the best of our ability. We do not spend large sums of money for entertainment or publicity, but where such an expenditure is necessary we spend as the occasion requires. Our whole endeavor is to be of practical benefit to our boys in a quiet but efficient way and thus show him that the Masonic Fraternity is back of its members. Our representatives at Camp Grant and Great Lakes have been supplied with automobiles.

About August 1st a large number of certain kinds of cases were removed from the Base Hospital at Camp Grant, to the General Hospital at Fort Sheridan for convenience of treatment. Before this time Brother Hill of the Great Lakes Station had exercised a general supervision over this post. With the advent of the new cases, and the general enlargement of the hospital at Fort Sheridan and its greater scope of work, it was deemed advisable to have a representative of the committee on the ground at all times, accordingly Brother George Albrecht, W. M., of Anchor & Ark Lodge, who had done such meritorious work as assistant to Brother Hill, was appointed as representative; he found among the 3600 patients, and among the officers and enlisted men of the medical department, several hundred Masons; there was compiled a card index system listing the names, lodge and number, location, and more or less personal data concerning each Masonic patient and attendant. Quarters have been secured in the hospital area where meetings for Masonic instruction, fellowship and social intercourse can be had, and Brother Albrecht has written letters to the homes and to the lodges of bed-ridden brethren advising them of the patient's condition, has visited the wards, arranged parties to attend nearby lodge meetings and Masonic affairs, taking on one occasion as high as fifty men with him. He has arranged little affairs for the amusement of the patients, and on one occasion secured the great band of Aryan Grotto to come from Chicago and play for the invalid soldiers. We are trying to impress the patients that we are there for the purpose of making their stay in the hospital more pleasant and that the great fraternity which we represent, and to which we are privileged to belong, has not forgotten the boys who have "paid the price" for their glorious country.

In connection with the work at Fort Sheridan it developed that one of the most important items was the securing of employment for men as they were discharged from the Fort, and thanks to the very efficient co-operation of Brother Arthur M. Millard of the Masonic Employment Bureau, and Brother David E. Gibson, a great many positions were secured for the men.

The club rooms at Rantoul have been ably managed by Brother Glenn Robinson, district deputy grand master of the Forty-seventh District, and great good has been accomplished for the morale of the men at Chanute Field. In March this work was discontinued as demobilization was practically completed at the Field.

By order of our late grand master, Brother Austin H. Serogin, the National Defense Committee turned over to Brother T. M. Avery, the sum of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars, to be used for War Relief Work. Brother Avery has made complete reports and has presented receipted bills for all items expended, which have been carefully checked over and found correct, and has returned to the National Defense Committee the unexpended balance of $86.78. The committee desires to go on record in congratulating Brother Avery and his associates on the efficient manner in which they have conducted this work.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. We recommend that inasmuch as the Soldiers & Sailors Club at Waukegan, Illinois, has been of such great value and benefit during the past year, and inasmuch as the work is of a kind that in our judgment should not be discontinued, that the Soldiers & Sailors Club of the Grand Lodge of Illinois be continued at least until the next meeting of the grand lodge.
2. That the work at Camp Grant be discontinued.
3. That the work at Great Lakes and Ft. Sheridan, as well as the supervision of the affairs of the Sailors & Soldiers Club at Waukegan, be placed in charge of Bro. Leroy Hill.
4. That the Ford automobile, formerly used for welfare work at Camp Grant, be turned over to the Board of Managers for Masonic Homes.

INTRODUCTION.

M. W. Brother George L. Schoonover, past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Iowa, was introduced by the grand master, and addressed the grand lodge.

THE MASONIC ORPHANS' HOME

The grand lodge was called off for a short time to listen to several selections by the band from the Orphans' Home at La Grange. Five young ladies, members of the band, sang a beautiful selection. The program was under the direction of Bro. T. K. Davidson, band master, and was enthusiastically received.

Bro. Geo. L. Hilliker, superintendent, was introduced, and invited the representatives of the grand lodge to visit the Home.

REPORT—Board of Managers of Masonic Homes.

Bro. Robert J. Daly, president of the Board of Managers of the Masonic Homes, presented their report. So much of the report as related to appropriations was referred to the Committee on Finance. The remainder of the report was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

Your Board of Managers in charge of the Illinois Masonic Homes fraternally submits the following report of its doings for the year ending September 30th, 1919.

The year has been a more than usually eventful one, with many happy occurrences and but few to cause regret. Our homes have fulfilled their respective places and objects in our great fraternity.

At the first meeting of the board held October 10th, 1918, immediately following the last annual meeting of the most worshipful grand lodge,

Brethren Price and Davis who had been reappointed by the grand master to succeed themselves as members of the board, qualified by their acceptance, and thereupon the board effected its official organization as follows:

Robert J. Daly, President.

Louis L. Emmerson, Vice President.

Charles C. Davis, Treasurer.

William D. Price, Secretary.

The executive committees in charge of the homes were reappointed—Brethren Emmerson, Doherty and Davis for the home at Sullivan and Brethren Fletcher, Price and Daly for the home at La Grange. Bro. Wm. A. Dixon was continued as superintendent at Sullivan and Bro. and Mrs. Geo. L. Hilliker as superintendent and matron of the home at La Grange. By action of the board, Bro. J. F. Lawson, M.D., was reappointed physician to the home at Sullivan and Bro. Arthur E. Higgins, physician, to the home at La Grange.

OFFICIAL BONDS

Immediately following the re-election of Bro. Davis as treasurer of your Board of Managers, he filed a surety bond of twenty thousand dollars ($20,000.00) for the faithful performance of his duties. In like manner Brethren Dixon and Hilliker each filed bonds of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) for the faithful performance of their duties.

The board has held four called meetings during the year.

During the intervals between board meetings, the executive committees have attended to all the details of administration and supervision of affairs pertaining to the operation of the homes. The superintendents have made comprehensive reports of the doings of the homes which reports are appended hereto and to which your careful consideration is invited.

THE ORPHANS' HOME AT LAGRANGE

Within a few days after the appearance of our happy band of children at the last meeting of the grand lodge the home was invaded by that dreaded disease, influenza, which brought sorrow to so many of our homes, and seventy-six of our children were stricken. While we most deeply regret losing one of their number, Lewis Smith, who was called to that better home on high, we thank the beneficent Father of us all that our loss was not greater.

The greater part of our employees also contracted the disease but happily all recovered.

The working organization of the home was seriously crippled and this in addition to the great difficulty in securing nursing help made the operation of the home a strenuous matter. Words are wholly inadequate to express the measure of the debt of appreciation and gratitude due to Bro. and Mrs. Hilliker, Dr. Higgins and Mrs. McWilliams, and everyone connected with the home for their loyalty and devotion in these, the darkest hours our institution has ever experienced.

Our sincere thanks are also due and are hereby extended to Bro. Ralph H. Wheeler, M.D. past grand master, and Bro. Arthur J. Behrendt, M.D., for their assistance in securing nurses during the epidemic.

In our report of last year reference was made to the constantly increasing cost of all things needed for the maintenance and upkeep of the homes. This is still the condition of affairs and although the greatest care has been exercised in our purchases and strict economy has prevailed your board found it necessary to appeal to the grand master for additional funds as the maintenance appropriations made at the last meeting of the grand lodge were found to be insufficient.

For instance, a comparative statement shows that at the LaGrange Home, the average daily membership in 1916 was 88 while in 1919 it has been 117, an increase of 33%. The following statement of prices will give you the idea of the part played in the cost of maintenance by the increase in the purchase price of necessities.

An increase of 89% between the years of 1916 and 1919 inclusive and an increase of 15% over 1918 for the first six months of 1919.

It is therefore very easy to understand why the grand master with the concurrence of the Finance Committee, authorized special appropriations of $10,000.00 for maintenance at Sullivan and $2,000.00 for maintenance at La Grange.

At the last meeting of the grand lodge an appropriation was made of $26,000.00 for maintenance, $3,000.00 for coal and $1,000.00 for manual training and domestic science, which, with the additional appropriation of $2,000.00 for maintenance, makes a total of $32,000.00 appropriated for the La Grange home for the year 1918-19. Of this amount an unexpended balance of $52.95 has been returned to the grand secretary.

SPECIAL COAL FUND.

Last year an appropriation of $3,000.00 was made for the purchase of our 1919-20 coal supply. Of this amount there is an unexpended balance of $2,198.86, as we have made contracts for coal as yet undelivered; we request that this amount be left in the hands of our treasurer to meet those obligations.

For the coming year of 1919-20, your board requests for all of the above purposes an appropriation of $37,000.00.

The conditions of life consequent to war and epidemic have greatly increased the number of applications for admission to the LaGrange home. As hereinbefore stated, our membership has greatly increased. The home had on September 30, 1919, 126 members. To accommodate this number 15 beds have to be placed in the corridors. In addition to the physical discomfort caused by such arrangements, a perilous potential condition is always present owing to the fear of a recurring epidemic. We have applications for the admission of twenty children whom we are absolutely unable to receive.

To enable the home to properly care for these applicants and meet the demands, for growth which will inevitably come upon us, your committee believes that a dormitory for small boys should be erected at the north end of the present building and one for girls at the south end, both to conform in general style with the present building. The present heating plant is nearing the end of its usefulness and would be totally inadequate to take care of additional buildings. The space at present occupied by the laundry is also insufficient for the purpose. Your committee believes that a separate building should be erected sufficiently large to accommodate the heating plant and laundry and to also provide proper space for the departments of manual training and domestic science.

For the above purposes we recommend that an appropriation of $135,000.00 be made.

SULLIVAN HOME AND HOSPITAL

APPROPRIATIONS

The appropriation for the general maintenance of the home made by the grand lodge in 1918 was $50,000 with an additional one of $5,000 for coal. Early in the year it became apparent that it was not possible to conduct the affairs of the home, no matter how economically, within this amount. The cost of food, clothing, in fact, everything used by the home, including all kinds of service, had increased to such an extent that this appropriation, which was the same as that made in 1917, was insufficient. The attention of the most worshipful grand master was called to this condition. After consultation with the Finance Committee of the grand lodge an emergency appropriation of $10,000 was granted the home and this enabled us to properly care for conditions and we have closed the year with an unexpended balance of $791.88, which has been returned to the grand secretary.

In order that a sufficient tonnage of coal might be stored at the home for the winter of 1919-1920, the last grand lodge followed the precedent established in 1917 and appropriated $5,000 for this purpose. Of this amount there is an unexpended balance of $275.37 which your committee recommends be left in the hands of the board to pay for coal at present in transit.

FUEL

Coal for the Sullivan Home is at this time costing $3.47 per ton F. O. B. track Sullivan and $.75 for hauling, making a total cost of $4.22 per ton in the bins. At this time something like 300 tons are in storage and this quantity will be increased to 500 tons before cold weather sets in.

PAINTING AND REPAIRS

The appropriation of $2,500 made the last year for painting and repairs has enabled the management to properly care for all the outside woodwork by giving the same two coats of paint; to redecorate the first floors of the hospital and original building, a portion of the Administration Building and to paint all of the smaller outbuildings.

WATER

The water supply at the home, which has been a perplexing problem for many years, has finally been solved by the construction of a reservoir with a capacity of about 2,500,000 gallons. This reservoir when filled has a depth of ten and one-half feet of water, and during the past few months, which have been unusually dry, has proven adequate for all the uses of the home. This water is used for steam, laundry and sprinkling, the drinking water being furnished by the wells, which have heretofore been the total source of supply for all uses.

The construction of this reservoir, including the concrete dam and bridge and the necessary pipe connections, was $6,263.52. For this purpose the grand lodge made a special appropriation last year of $3,000. To this was added a gift from the Grand Chapter R. A. M. of $2,000. The balance, $1,263.52, was paid from the general maintenance fund of the institution.

ROYAL ARCH MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

The cost of maintaining the hospital for the past year has been as follows:

Provisions	$ 8,585.43
Furnishings	571.90
Medical expense, including doctors, nurses and help salaries	4,907.82
Laundry	557.46
Light, heat and power.	2,588.18
Total	$17,210.79

The hospital at this time has 38 patients, this being about the average number for the past year. The cost of operation has not increased over that of last year as much as might have been expected.

The hospital continues one of the most important factors in the operation of the home and there is no expenditure in connection with the home that brings more gratifying results.

The miscellaneous improvements at the home during the year, in addition to the reservoir, painting and general repairs, have been a large storage coal bin with a capacity of 240 tons, which will be adequate for the bulk of the coal necessary to be stored during the fall season; many rods of splendid fencing have been erected; the barn at the old Miller home moved to the south side of the road and almost completely rebuilt with good concrete foundation and concrete floor; fence rows on the farm cleaned out; the large barn and crib on the Swain farm completed, much dead timber cut and a general improvement made in an effort to bring this land into a more profitable condition.

For all of the above purposes, maintenance, coal, repairs and improvements of all kinds, your committee recommends that an appropriation be made for the year 1919-1920 of $70,000.

STATE ROAD

In 1916 an appropriation of $1,500 was made to assist the authorities of Moultrie County in the completion of the hard road and erection of a new concrete bridge across Jonathon Creek. This amount was reappropriated in 1917 and 1918 because of inability on the part of the authorities to begin the road. In 1918, in an effort to expedite matters, the Executive Committee of the Home placed this money in escrow in the First National Bank at Sullivan, under an agreement with the county and township authorities that in the event the road and bridge were not completed by June, 1919, the money was to be returned to the Board of Managers. Conditions have been such that the work has not been started and the money has been turned back to the board by the First National Bank and is now in their hands.

Your board requests that this amount be left in their hands to be expended for maintenance and repairs of the highway leading from the home to the city of Sullivan.

FARM

While the net results in dollars and cents from the operation of the farm have been only fairly satisfactory yet the physical condition of the property has never been better than at the present time.

Detailed information on the farm will be found in the superintendent's report.

GARDEN

The garden has produced small fruits and vegetables for the use of the home during the year to the value of $4,092.68. Strawberries, blackberries, red and black raspberries and gooseberries have been very plentiful in season. Two years ago five hundred new grape vines were planted immediately north of the hospital and these should commence to bear next year. The potato crop was an almost complete failure, although early in the season the prospect was very good. The continued dry weather of several weeks during the summer completely ruined this crop.

One of the serious problems of the past year has been that of help, both male and female. It has been found necessary to increase our wage roll materially in every instance and even at the larger salaries satisfactory help has been very difficult to obtain. At this time, however, the home is well equipped in this line and every effort is being made by the management to keep the employees satisfied and interested in their work.

In February of this year Dr. W. A. Dixon, who had served the home faithfully and well, as superintendent, desiring to resume the practice of his profession, tendered his resignation and Bro. James B. Smith of Clay City was appointed to fill the vacancy. Bro. Smith has had much experience in institutional work and the management believes he will be of very great value to the home organization.

Much difference of opinion exists among the members of the home at Sullivan concerning the question of giving a helping hand in the domestic work of the home. Excerpts from previous reports of the Board of Managers have been quoted in defense of their position by members who object to giving help and who insist that no labor of any kind or character should be performed by members of the home.

We consider this an especially opportune time to call the attention of the members of the constituent lodges and especially the masters and secretaries of their lodges to the fact that each member of the home agrees, over his or her signature, in the application of the lodge for admission of such member, to perform such duties as the superintendent deems within his or her ability. This is eminently right and proper if considered from no other viewpoint than that of the physical and mental welfare of the members; and in times like the present, when good paid help is increasingly difficult to obtain, the aggregate of the little that is asked of the members is an important item in the administrative expense of an institution like the home at Sullivan.

The board has definitely adopted the policy of requiring such help unless the member is specifically excused therefrom on account of disability by a written statement of the home physician.

All of which is fraternally submitted.

REPORT OF AUDITOR

Robert J. Daly, Esq., President, Board of Managers, Illinois Masonic Homes,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:

This certifies that I have examined the records of the Secretary and the Treasurer of the Illinois Masonic Homes for the year ended September 30, 1919, and that the statements attached hereto are a correct exhibit of the finances of the Homes.

The records were found to be accurately maintained, and I was favorably impressed with the businesslike conduct of the internal affairs of the office.

Yours very truly,

S. S. JENKINS,

Auditor.

J. R. PETERS,

W.M. R. PETERS,

Associates.

Dated at Chicago, Illinois, October 6, 1919.

REPORT—Committee on Finance.

Bro. Edward H. Thomas, chairman of the Committee on Finance, submitted the report of that committee. It was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

In conformity with an understanding arrived at with the most worshipful grand master and the grand officers of this most worshipful grand lodge your Committee on Finance arranged with Messrs. Kirby, Cullen, Auer & Co., certified public accountants, to audit the books, records, etc., of the right worshipful grand secretary and the right worshipful grand treasurer and of which the following is their report:

October 9, 1919.

To the Finance Committee, Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

GENTLEMEN:

Pursuant to your instructions we have made an examination of the books and records of the right worshipful grand secretary, at Camp Point, Illinois, and of the right worshipful grand treasurer, at Chicago, Illinois. All for the period from October 1, 1918 to October 1, 1919.

We find that all recorded receipts of the grand secretary and of the grand treasurer have been properly accounted for, the disbursements being evidenced by proper vouchers and the balances as shown, are on hand at the State Bank of Chicago. The securities have all been examined and all interest due thereon have been received.

The detail of these funds and securities are set forth in the accompanying Exhibit "A."

Your committee further recommend that the members of the several committees and the past grand masters not otherwise provided for, in attendance upon this annual meeting, be allowed and paid the sum of $3.00 per day for each day's service rendered, in addition to the compensation provided in the by-laws, and that your committee be authorized to preserve the paid vouchers upon the grand treasurer for the past year until the next meeting of this grand lodge, for reference, should occasion require.

EDWARD H. THOMAS,
E. EDWIN MILLS,
SYLVESTER O. SPRING,
Committee.

INTRODUCTIONS.

M. W. Bro. Louis A. Watrous, past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, was presented, and spoke to the grand lodge.

Bro. Wm. A. Westfall, M. W. grand master of the Grand Lodge of Iowa was presented and addressed the grand lodge.

Amendment to Code Offered.

Bro. Alexander H. Bell offered the following amendment to Code 166. It was seconded by the representatives of more than twenty lodges and was referred to the Committee on Legislation.

Amend Code No. 166 so as to read as follows:

Each district deputy grand master shall make an annual report to the grand master thirty days prior to the meeting of the grand lodge, setting forth his official acts during the year, and the state of Masonry within his jurisdiction, the condition of the lodges in his district, and suggesting such measures as to him may appear conducive to the general good of the fraternity; which report shall be published with the proceedings, insofar as the grand master may deem advisable.

REPORT—Committee on Legislation.

Bro. Owen Scott of the Committee on Legislation made the following report on the amendment offered to Code 166. The report of the committee was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

Your Committee on Legislation recommend that the amendment to Code 163 be adopted.

ORATION.

Bro. Edward J. Brundage delivered the annual oration. A rising vote of thanks was given the grand orator, and it was ordered printed in the proceedings.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

I assure you it is a great pleasure to meet with you today. I recall your interesting session a year ago. At that time the great world-wide war was coming to a close,—it could be seen in the rapid retreat of the enemy. Few realized at that time that peace was to bring the problems which now confront us.

The relaxation from the terrible intenseness of warfare, the letting down of nerves keyed to the highest pitch reacts recklessly upon the human mind. A swift return of mind and body to a normal, orderly course is not readily accomplished.

The world-wide conflict has left a corresponding world-wide ocean of unrest whose mind-tossed waves cause a reverberation on the farthest shore.

The social aims of distressed Russia find emulation wherever the wake of war has left its miseries. Men everywhere are stunned by the shocking inventory of war's blight. In their despair, some see but two alternatives,—either chaos or the building of a new social order in which things would be different. Just how reconstruction for the better is to be accomplished, they know not.

'Tis, therefore, the golden hour for the dreamer and for the theorist. The implements of industry are cast aside to discuss the establishment of Utopian democracies from whose precincts sorrow, misery and poverty shall be banished by legislative decree. This ideal state is to be international and by its universality is to be in reality the making of a new world.

These world builders are totally indifferent to the lessons of thousands of years of history. Modern civilization is built upon valuable heritages from the past.

The revelations released by the excavations of the ruins of ancient cities whose surfaces are now covered with sand and dust show a well established society long before Moses sought freedom for his enslaved people.

In Egypt man first soared to splendid heights of religious thought and first revealed a confidence in a life beyond.

Egypt's decay is told in the Old Testament of the Bible,—the ancient literature of the Hebrews. The causes of the deterioration of peoples is not conquest or enforced slavery. Neither Egypt nor Babylon could break the national spirit of the Hebrews or shake their confidence in God. The decay came from a departure from the traditions of the fathers,—a deadening of spiritual and moral responsibility. Hardships and distress but quickened the nation's spirit. It was ease, comfort and unwonted prosperity that dulled the conscience. Even Solomon with all his vaunted wisdom relapsed into sensual decline and his people became corrupted by the luxury and prosperity of his reign. The wealthy nation Solomon left was not the vigorous but less prosperous people of David's time.

War cannot crush a people when their hearts are right. Belgium is a living example of this truth.

Wars were common in ancient times and terrible was the fate of the defeated nation. Its cities were demolished and its people enslaved,—yet chaos did not ensue. Conquerors, in turn, Assyrian, Babylonian and Egyptian swept on with bloody swords. Greek and Roman chieftains succeeded them, to be followed later by Goths, Huns and Saracens, all leaving a crimson path but not bedimming a faith in the splendid solemnity of God's eternal existence and universal power.

The collapse and disintegration of the Roman Empire darkened for a time the progress of human betterment, although the pendulum of time has always swung toward social improvement. The future has always improved upon the past.

Serfdom and long and wearisome hours of toil have been gradually lessened,—the care of unfortunates and dependents has been assumed by the state,—cruel and unusual punishment abrogated. Educational opportunities are available to the masses in most lands. Poverty and its causes have been made the subject of studious consideration.

This improvement in social conditions, extending over centuries of development, was suddenly checked by the world war. Its four years of struggle caused each participating nation to impress its resourees into war work. Labor was diverted from peaeeful industries to the making of instruments of destruction and men were taken from their employment to be placed under arms in the field.

The nrgency of quick production of war material caused an extra stipend to producees. The makers of the ordinary commodities of peaceful times had to meet the competition of the war workers in increased wages. The ending of the war leaves the wage worker unwilling to accept the pre-war stipend,—the manufaecturer unable to reduce prieses until wages are reduced. In this controversy radieal and unthinking leaders are determined to maintain their advantage even at the price of the destruction of government. Those who appeal to violence are either not at all or have recently become citizens. Their acquaintance with true democratic liberty is too brief to enable them to distinguish between liberty and license. With this situation confronting us, Americans are talking too much and working too little.

Instead of studying the history of our Republic and the aims of our forefathers, many are listening to idle talk of experiments in government, or visionary ventures by governmental aid into new and untrod paths where failure is fore-ordained and in whose wake ruin is certain.

There is an over supply of erities and obstructionists but a great shortage exists in the number of constructive workers. The great need of the hour is for just, loyal, thinking men,—not abnormal supermen.

Our system of government requires no revision. Under it we have enjoyed nearly a century and a half of untold prosperity. The Deelaration of Independence rings as true today as when its immortal words inspired the patriots of 1776. The Constitution is today just as able to protect the rights of all classes as it has been for 132 years.

It is not to instruments of government we must look for a solution of economic problems,—it is to men!

The productive forces turning from the making of destructive munitions of war to constructive problems of peace must do so in a calm, rational and patriotic manner.

History emphasizes the immutability of the law of supply and demand. When production meets the demand, prices will fall and the problems of the cost of living will adjust themselves. It will not be solved by the suspension of labor.

Revolution by paralysis of business is un-American.

The Ameriean method of progress is by such evolution under law as a majority of the people of this free land determine upon Their method —their ideas can be legislated into laws. That is the meaning of, "A government by the people and for the people."

Ours, as has been well said, is a government not of men but of laws and even the people must pursue an orderly constitutional course to change the law and then cannot ignore the fundamental principles of human rights,—the rock upon which our Republic rests.

America stands most in danger from the inoculation of foreign ideas.

Solomon's glory began to wane when he tolerated heathen worship, and so will the fiber of this nation become weakened if it continues to tolerate teachings destructive to our form of representative government. All the blood shed for American liberty from Bunker Hill to Chateau Thierry will have been in vain if there be not a deeper realization of the pricelessness of the liberty we enjoy and a fuller determination that no alien tongue shall destroy its blessings by seditious teachings.

The inbred love of liberty has caused us to sympathize with the struggles for freedom throughout the world. Our hearts were with the Greeks when they sought independence from Turkish tyranny.

Our sympathies were with Kossuth in his struggle to establish a government of the people in Hungary and our prayers were with those who sought to democratize Prussia, in 1848. Had they been successful then, the world would have been saved the holocaust of 1914. Again we rejoiced when Garibaldi reunited Italy.

Not only have we sympathized with those struggling for freedom on foreign soil, but we have welcomed those who came to partake of our freedom as full partners. They came, indeed, in countless numbers from northern Europe, England, Scotland, Wales, Scandinavia, Germany and then Italy.

A few decades ago there came a new element from Eastern and Southeastern Europe,—peoples foreign to our conception of liberty and an element that we seem to have been unable to assimilate into our body politic. The result is today that the largest portion of this mass of humanity remains unnaturalized,—although here, it possesses no sympathy for this America we inherited from our fathers.

There is on their part no realization of what our starry emblem means. They cannot appreciate that every star in that banner represents the struggle throughout forty-eight sections of this great commonwealth to establish a government of the people. They cannot comprehend that the red stripes typify the blood of heroic martyrs who died that liberty might prevail.

Instead, in sturdy selfishness their interest is solely in what they can accumulate. It is in such lies a menace to our Republic.

The time has come when we cannot longer sanction an abuse of our hospitality. There must be an answer from the immigration gates at the ports of entry, “Unless you come with clean hearts, you are unwelcome in this great Republic!”

In the olden days the foreigner coming with good intent was received with open hands. We bestowed upon him all the privileges of this great Republic. We received his children into our public schools and gave them an education and all we asked in return was loyalty to American institutions.

In those days the immigrants became in time citizens and the character of our adopted sons might be defined in the language of the poet:

“Just today we chanced to meet—
Down upon the crowded street;
And I wondered whence he came,
What was once his nation’s name.

So I asked him, “Tell me true,
Are you Pole or Russian Jew,
English, Scotch, Italian, Russian,
Belgian, Spanish, Swiss, Moravian,
Dutch or Greek or Scandinavian?”

Then he raised his head on high,
As he gave me this reply,
"What I was is naught to me,
In this land of Liberty,
In my soul as man to man,
I am just American."

Americans and Masons,—I am addressing you as both, because you cannot be a good Mason without being a thorough American. The time has come when we must insist that the immigrants of today must come with the same spirit and purpose as those who came in the last century.

We cannot longer countenance mobs of aliens upon our thoroughfares carrying banners deriding our government and our institutions. In this land of ours no foreign hand shall reach to destroy our republican form of representative government.

We do not propose there shall longer be tolerance of those who would destroy American institutions and upon their ruin establish by might and force a government of classes.

We have been too blindly confident of the permanence of our institutions to realize that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

We have dealt with these disloyal aliens when they became disorderly in the same manner as we clean our city streets,—sweeping the rubbish into heaps and there leaving it to blow into the nostrils of decent citizens. And so the police have broken up these aggregations of rioters and have had small fines imposed for disorderly conduct. Such a method is like a child blowing the seed of the noxious dandelion, unmindful that each scattered petal becomes the parent of another plant. Thus by simply using the police power to break up these revolutionary gatherings we are but scattering the seeds of insurrection. That is not the effective way to treat them.

There is a more effective way,—it is to say to each and every disturbing brawler, "This land of ours welcomed you. You have betrayed its hospitality,—you have tried to destroy its institutions. Return back to the land from whence you came,"—and having said it, see that the strong power of our government is exercised to do it. In plain words, deport every anarchist, every revolutionist, every red of every brand.

Let this country be hereafter for Americans and those anxious to become Americans! Let it not be a sphere for anarchistic propaganda. "It should be the sublime duty of all," says the Premier of England, "without thought of partisanship, to help in the building of the new world where labor shall have its just reward and indolence alone shall suffer want." That should be the aim of our government, but it can only be realized by mutual consideration and friendly cooperation.

This is the new world which Masonic teaching has encouraged. We have taught that labor should have its just reward and our benevolences have alleviated the sufferings of the destitute. Masons according to their accredited history are builders.

Masons, therefore, can enter with a hearty spirit toward the goal of a better social equality in which a reasonable limitation should be placed upon the mighty power of wealth and a greater watchfulness be accorded the welfare of the humblest toiler.

Indolence cannot be encouraged by paternal generosity if the nation is to thrive. The institution of private property is an essential expression of freedom and a necessary motive for individual energy and initiation. It must continue to be the incentive in a land where all men are equal, and where individual merit is the determining factor in advancement. American prosperity and progress have grown great because the individual was afforded opportunities to become successful. The right of private property is as old as recorded history.

The new world, as the old world has been rechristened, by a sea of human blood, will be just what men make it.

The Masons of America need not be abashed at the havoc of war. The annals of American history are replete with the deeds of valor of members of our craft. Those whose names stand out in greatest luster were inured to the devastation of war, both upon the battle-field and peaceful reconstruction following.

George Washington was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason in an army camp during his march with General Braddock to the fateful ambush. Washington, by his calmness and experience in Indian warfare, saved the flying remnants of the British army from annihilation.

General Warren, who glorified Bunker Hill with his life blood, was a member of the craft.

The chivalrous soldiers from foreign lands, Lafayette, Steuben and DeKalb, who fought for our independence, were Masons.

The connection between Masonry and patriotic public service is so interwoven that but few of our Presidents or great leaders have been without the fold.

Masons need not, therefore, feel the task of reconstruction from war's waste to be beyond their efforts.

The genuine democracy of the lodge room and the wholesome teachings of the craft do much to steady the nation.

The Flag, the symbol of the nation's might, its ideals and aspirations, should be received with a renewed veneration.

If the American people remain true to the traditions of our Republic, they will continue to be the most prosperous people of the world. God has always favored those who remained true in heart and in spirit. God has always favored those who love liberty. He has put into the heart of every man a spark that quickens and strikes fire when liberty is threatened.

He chose peoples of old, because of their virtues, for special favors, so He has chosen this Republic to be a great example to all the world of a country where liberty, not license, is enthroned,—a land which has proven that the voice of God is the voice of the people.

The great boon to mankind is not to come by the arraignment of class against class but by a moral awakening in man of his duty to his co-worker.

The realization of a new world on better lines can be best defined in the words of a fore-runner of Jesus,—“What is displeasing to thee, do not to thy fellow man; that is the whole law.” In less than a dozen words this ancient prophet has outlined a simple path to not only neighborly justice but given us the basis for national perfection. Its observance precludes the practice of selfishness and inspires a forgetfulness of self.

We need no array of verbs, adjectives and rounded periods to define a solution of present problems. Let us try to practice the simple injunction of this ancient teacher and if successful in our efforts, our problems national, social and fraternal have been solved.

REPORT—Committee on Jurisprudence.

The Committee on Jurisprudence reported. The report was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

Your Committee on Jurisprudence to which was referred those portions of the grand master's report entitled “Jurisdictional complications” and “Army and Navy Lodges,” have thoroughly considered the same and recommend that they be approved.

The committee recognizes the difficulties that have come to the grand master by reason of the attempt to accommodate the men who entered the service of the country, and were desirous of receiving the degrees in Masonry. Great liberality has been shown by the grand masters of Illinois, as well as the grand lodges of other grand jurisdictions in this matter. The Sea and Field Lodges by the Grand Lodge of New York enabled many of our soldiers to acquire the degrees. In camps in this country and in France there seemed to be a disposition to ignore the laws of Masonry through the great desire to render every opportunity for the boys who were making the great sacrifice for their country. We must, however, be sure that we do not allow those patriotic impulses to lead us to do that which is contrary to our constitutions and our laws.

We commend our late Brother Serogin and our present grand master, Brother Fitzgerrell, for their care and concern in preserving the laws and regulations of Masonry, and at the same time doing all they could to favor the man in uniform.

It came to the knowledge of Brother Serogin through the district deputy grand master of the 8th district that the worshipful master of Avondale Lodge, No. 921, had proven a defaulter in the Chicago Post Office, and had been sent to the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth. Before Brother Serogin made an order in this case he passed away.

On investigating the facts the grand master declared the office of worshipful master vacant, as provided by law and issued a dispensation to elect a new master. As there were circumstances tending to show some mental derangement of the master of this lodge the grand master left the case open for future adjustment and did not order charges preferred.

We recommend that the action of the grand master be approved.

Complaint was made to the grand master that the worshipful master of R. F. Casey Lodge No. 948, located at Kell, Illinois, had been guilty of a very grave Masonic offense. His actions were open and flagrant as reported to the grand master upon investigation.

The worshipful master of the lodge at Kell admitted that he had had improper relations with the sister of a Master Mason of that lodge, and refused to agree to change them. The grand master thereupon ordered the district deputy to depose him from the office of master and place the lodge in charge of the senior warden. He also recommended that the master of said lodge be expelled from all the rights and privileges of Masonry.

Your committee upon thorough consideration recommends that the action of the grand master be approved.

All of which is fraternally submitted.

GEO. M. MOULTON,

Amendment to Constitution Offered.

A proposed amendment to the constitution, Section 72 was presented by Bro. Chester E. Allen, and it having received the seconds of the required number of representatives, goes out to the lodges.

Amend Section 72 by striking out the entire section.

72. The grand master may at his discretion appoint a district deputy grand master whose duty it shall be to look after the welfare of the German speaking lodges.

REPORT—Committee on Appeals and Grievances.

The Committee on Appeals and Grievances reported. The report was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

Your Committee on Appeals and Grievances fraternally reports, that but one case has been brought to this grand lodge by appeal. This is a remarkable showing, and the fraternity is certainly to be congratulated that there has been so little of dissension to come before you for consideration.

The one case which your committee has considered is that of Bethany Lodge No. 884, against Brother R. K. Williamson, sometimes called in the proceedings "Kent Williamson."

Inasmuch as there are no difficult questions to be here considered, your committee avails itself of the present opportunity of calling attention to some very simple, fundamental rules that all lodges ought to understand with reference to Masonic trials.

It is singular indeed, and it seems to us inexcusable that brethren and lodges in the state of Illinois having enjoyed such abundant opportunities for education along these lines, should show such lamentable ignorance as to the mode of procedure in Masonic trials.

This committee at the session of this grand lodge in 1915, made a very careful report, calling attention to the importance of observing the code, with reference to the formulation of charges, and making of a proper record, and the correct procedure throughout Masonic trials. This report of the Committee on Appeals gives the forms of procedure, forms of notices, and elaborate and carefully prepared information with reference to Masonic trials, and is published in full in the proceedings of 1915. Moreover, the written code of this grand lodge is so plain that there can be no excuse for such flagrant disregard thereof, as is manifest in the record now before us. The record in this case of Bethany Lodge against Williamson reads as follows with reference to the presentation of charges:

"To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Bethany Lodge No. 884, A. F. & A. M.

I recommend that Brother R. K. Williamson be brought to trial for violating his obligation by cheating, wronging and defrauding brethren of Bethany Lodge No. 884, A. F. & A. M., George Rone, Junior Warden."

This is all there is of it. The record itself shows that no action was taken on the recommendation of the junior warden. The record does not show that charges and specifications were prepared and presented against this accused brother. The record does not show that any action of the lodge was taken whereby charges were accepted and the accused brother placed on trial.

The next thing in the record after the recommendation of the junior warden is the statement as follows:

"The worshipful master announced that the trials (referring to a similar recommendation of the junior warden with reference to another brother whom he accused) would be held in Bethany Lodge Room on November 10, '19, at 8 p. m. Motion seconded that charges be acted upon, ordered, motion carried."

This is not a record that the lodge voted to accept the charges and to put the accused brother on trial. This is merely a statement that the charges be acted upon. What action was intended is not stated.

Next follows the evidence that was taken. It is not necessary to go into the details of this except to say that a careful examination of the record shows unmistakably that this accused brother was put upon trial without any proper charges or specifications against him; that the evidence totally fails to show any moral delinquency or un-Masonic conduct on his part. The defendant did not have a fair trial. There were no adequate charges and specifications against him. There was no action of the lodge requiring him to answer. The recital in the recommendation of the junior warden that the brother should be brought to trial "for violating his Masonic obligation by cheating, wronging and defrauding brethren of Bethany Lodge," specifies no act of wrong doing on his part. It does not give any such information as would enable him to make answer or be prepared to meet the charge.

In general, this record is so totally defective in every particular, not only as to the form of procedure, but as to the substance of the testimony, that your committee feels justified in taking the pains of calling attention of this lodge and of all other lodges to the importance of paying heed to the very plainly written laws of this grand lodge governing Masonic trials.

Your committee desires to state however, that its conclusions in this case are because, in our opinion the evidence totally fails to show any guilt on the part of this defendant, and while irregularities in the mode of procedure have been specified in the hope that they may be of educative value to this and other lodges, yet, inasmuch as the defendant was present at the trial, we would not reverse the proceedings on these technical reasons merely, but our conclusion is based upon the conviction that there is no evidence that tends to show that this defendant was guilty of any moral delinquency, or of any un-Masonic conduct whatever.

Your committee recommends that the action of Bethany Lodge in finding Brother R. K. Williamson, sometimes called Kent Williamson, guilty of any Masonic offense, be set aside and that the action of that Lodge in indefinitely suspending Brother Williamson from all the rights and privileges of Masonry be set aside and that Brother Williamson be now restored to all the rights and benefits of Masonry including membership in Bethany Lodge No. 884.

All of which is fraternally submitted,

A. H. BELL,
A. M. OTMAN,
A. S. ANDERSON,
ELMER D. BROTHERS,
CHARLES H. MARTIN,
Committee.

TELEGRAM.

The grand secretary read a telegram from the grand secretary of the Grand Lodge of Ohio.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 15, 1919.

ISAAC CUTTER, Grand Secretary,

Oriental Consistory Bldg., Dearborn Ave. and Walton Pl.

Fraternal greetings and best wishes from the Grand Lodge of Ohio in annual communication assembled.

J. H. BROWNELL,
Grand Secretary.

A motion was made and carried that the grand secretary send a telegram of greeting to the Grand Lodge of Ohio.

REPORT—Committee on Legislation.

Bro. Owen Scott presented the following report of the Committee on Legislation.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

CODE 129

Your committee recommends that amendment to Code 129, be adopted by the addition of one word to make the meaning clearer. Insert in the third line after word "for" the word "stenographer." The amendment will then read—

129. The salary of the grand master shall be twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments; provided, that for such sums as he may expend for stenographer, postage and stationery and incidental expenses the grand lodge may make appropriations upon presentation of itemized bills approved by the Committee on Finance.

Amendment to Code 149, page 146 proceedings, seeks to strike out of the present law the words "and for his deputy and all necessary clerk hire and office rent." If adopted this fixes the salary of the grand secretary at three thousand dollars and leaves open to the construction by the Finance Committee the approval of bills for the clerical help and rent of his office.

Your committee is of the opinion that the grand lodge should fix a definite salary for the grand secretary and provide clerical assistance, rent of office and incidental expenses in addition thereto. The office of grand secretary is the center of the business of the grand lodge and requires a great deal of labor. With almost 200,000 Masons and nearly 1000 lodges the task is no small one. The salary should be adequate to the duty to be performed. Provision should be made for an assistant to the grand secretary with a fixed compensation. Stenographic service and incidentals should be in addition.

The amendment will then read as follows—

149. For the due performance of the duties hereinbefore prescribed, the grand secretary shall receive, as full compensation, the sum of three thousand dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments: provided, that for payment of sums actually expended for postage, express charges, and incidental official expenses the grand lodge may make appropriations, upon presentation of itemized bills, approved by the Finance Committee. Provided further that the grand secretary shall employ an assistant who shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by the Finance Committee and the grand master.

The amendment to Code 443 regarding physical qualifications of candidates your committee has given full consideration. There is a wide difference of opinion among brethren running from the present drastic iron-clad law to the proposed amendment which abolishes all physical restrictions. We submit that a middle ground is the proper one. In line with this the committee submits the following provision as a suggestion for the solution of this question. The amendment will read as follows:

443. Every candidate applying for the degrees in Masonry must have the senses of a man, especially those of hearing, seeing, and feeling; be a believer in God; capable of reading and writing in English, and possessing no maim or defect in his body that may render him incapable of conforming to what the several degrees respectively require of him. Provided that in case of any such maiming or physical defects, on petition of five members of the lodge, the secretary shall transmit the petition to the grand master for his decision. Should the grand master upon investigation deem it advisable so to do he may in his discretion issue a dispensation permitting the lodge to proceed to ballot on the petition.

The foregoing amendments to Code Nos. 129, 149 and 443 having received a two-thirds vote were declared adopted.

Regarding amendment to Code 321, your committee submits that the matter was fully discussed one year ago, both by this committee and in open grand lodge and the law as found in No. 321 was allowed to stand.

Your committee, therefore, recommends this amendment be not adopted.

Respectfully submitted,
OWEN SCOTT,
WILLIAM WILHARTZ,
JOSEPH J. SHAW,
Committee.

The foregoing amendment to Code No. 321 was submitted to vote and two-thirds not voting in favor of the amendment it was declared not adopted.

CALLED OFF.

At 1:00 o'clock the deputy grand master called the grand lodge from labor to refreshment until Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

THIRD DAY.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, A. D. 1919, A. L. 5919
9:00 O'CLOCK A. M.

The grand master called the grand lodge from refreshment to labor at 9 o'clock a. m.

Prayer was offered by the grand chaplain.

The minutes of Wednesday's session were read and approved.

REPORT—Representative Masonic Relief Association.

Bro. Ralph H. Wheeler presented the report of the representatives to the Masonic Relief Association. It was ordered printed in the proceedings.

DANIEL G. FITZGERRELL, Grand Master, A. F. & A. M., Normal, Illinois.

Dear Brother:

As your representatives, we, the undersigned, attended the biennial meeting of the Masonic Relief Association of the United States and Canada held in Minneapolis, Minnesota, on August 27th, 28th and 29th, 1919.

This association is continuing in its good work and is steadily progressing in the accomplishment of its purpose. It has added to its membership materially in the last two years and now represents a vast majority of the Masons of the nation.

Its financial condition has improved to such an extent that the per capita cost to the grand lodge has been reduced. This, of course, is brought about more particularly by the added membership.

The business of the association was in the main routine.

Brother John F. Massey, a captain in the U. S. Army, whose home is in Knoxville, Tenn., was elected president. He had been serving the association in the capacity of president for a considerable period of time by virtue of the fact that the brother elected president two years ago had died. Brother Massey is a capable man and there is no doubt but that the institution will prosper under his leadership.

There were two other important changes made in the official staff: Brother Lou B. Winsor, past grand master of Michigan, was elected treasurer, and Brother Andrew J. O'Reilly, president of the Masonic Board of Relief of St. Louis, was elected secretary.

Too much cannot be said of the courteous and fraternal attention paid the delegates to this meeting by the Minnesota brethren. The entertainment given was most pleasing and the fraternal spirit was exemplified in every possible way.

One of the signers hereof, Brother Robert J. Daly, was elected chairman of the Executive Board, he having served as a member of the same for several years.

The work being done by this association is one that Illinois may be proud to participate in.

Fraternally yours,

RALPH H. WHEELER,
ROBERT J. DALY.

SECOND REPORT—Committee on Chartered Lodges.

The second report of the Committee on Chartered Lodges was read by Bro. J. Huber Allen. The report was adopted.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

We, your Committee on Chartered Lodges, having to do with the reports of the district deputy grand masters on their "official visits and inspections" as provided for under Code 165, present this special report.

With 877 lodges, divided into 100 districts, we received reports on 815, at an average expense of $1.69 per visit and inspection.

The reports show that 350 lodges own either exclusively or jointly their own quarters, and 126 failed to insure their property and equipment.

Three hundred-eighty six are not provided with fire-proof safes or vaults for proper protection of their records. And ten secretaries were not provided with proper books and blanks.

In 65 lodges the character of reports of investigating committees was made a matter of record. Thus violating Code No. 465.

Thirty-nine failed to show in minutes, receipts for fees and dues, and 25 failed to show time of opening and closing, while in 36, the minutes were not signed by master and secretary.

In 108 lodges, the records were not being kept in accordance with the requirements of Grand Lodge By-Laws. Fifteen were not using proper form of petitions for degrees and affiliation.

There were 27 whose by-laws were not in harmony with the Grand Lodge by-laws. Nine did not have roll of memberships containing by-laws for members to sign.

The reports show that in only 7 lodges the work did not conform to that taught in the schools of instruction, but this question was not answered by the district deputy grand masters in their reports on 167 lodges.

One hundred seventy-four never held meetings for instruction and practice. Seven were not provided with candidates garment. Three without proper setting mauls, and 26 had no middle chamber pillars. Twenty-seven did not have third degree outfit as prescribed, and 18 were without proper receiving instruments for senior deacon.

In 44 lodges the books of secretary and treasurer are not audited. Five hundred thirteen secretaries and 503 treasurers were not bonded.

One of the most important duties of a lodge is the preservation of its records. We find however, that only about 60 percent of the lodges have provided fire-proof safes or vaults for the safety of their records. Lodges delinquent in this respect should give the matter prompt attention.

We note quite a number of lodges are reported as not collecting dues promptly, which is a poor business proposition. Dues should be collected promptly, and should be of such amount as to provide for current expense, per capita, necessary paraphernalia and equipment, and a fund for necessary charity calls, and in many of the lodges the dues are entirely too low.

The figures given above when compared with previous reports all show improvement in manner of keeping records and general conduct of the lodges, and we urge that each master present, make it his business as soon as he gets home, to see if his own lodge is guilty of any of the delinquencies or discrepancies enumerated. If you will look into this matter, we are sure the delinquency part of this report will be a very small item next year.

We again recommend that every district deputy grand master study his blue book, calling special attention to Codes Nos. 164, 165, 166, and 397.

Fraternally submitted,

PHIL C. BARCLAY,
W. W. WATSON,
LINDORF WALKER,
J. H. ALLEN,
GROVER C. NIEMEYER.

Petition No. 30B. Triluminar Lodge No. 767 to change the names of Waldemar George Ratz and William Philip Ratz, to Waldemar George Ross and William Philip Ross.

Petition No. 30C. Integrity Lodge No. 997 to change the name of William John Pretzel to William John Purell.

All the above petitions are supported by proper evidence that the several changes desired have already been effected by action of civil courts. We therefore recommend that petitions numbering from 1 to 30C inclusive be granted.

Petition No. 31. Beacon Light Lodge No. 784 to change the name of Carl P. Lundgren to Carl P. Scholler.

It appears that in changing from the name of Carl P. Lundgren to that of Carl P. Scholler that Brother Scholler is simply resuming his real name. When Brother Scholler was a child, his mother, then a widow, married a Mr. Lundgren, and Carl was called Lundgren for some years. Several years ago he began using his rightful name (Scholler), was married as Carl P. Scholler, transacts all business and legal matter in that name and was in the draft for the army by that name.

We therefore recommend that petition number 31 be granted.

Petition No. 32. Kilwinning Lodge No. 311 to change the name of Harvey L. Heystek to Harvey L. Hasting.

It is evident that Brother Heystek has not had his name changed by legal action of the court. In response to a letter from this committee that such action would be necessary before his name could be changed on the records of the lodge, he advised that, by information received from a prominent daily paper, it was not necessary to have his name changed by action of the court; that an affidavit that such change had been made by him was sufficient. We are of the opinion that the source of information is not a good Masonic authority and that petition number 32 be not granted.

Petition No. 33. Fortitude Lodge No. 1003 to change the name of Ben Walensky to Ben Walens.

Petition No. 34. Parkway Lodge No. 1008 to change the name of Paul A. Witzke to Paul A. Winton.

To petitions number 33 and number 34 this committee requested that certificates of courts be submitted showing that the desired changes had been effected by action of civil courts, but such evidence has never been received. We therefore recommend that petitions number 33 and 34 be not granted.

Petition No. 35. In the case of Parkway Lodge No. 1008 in which said lodge petitions that the name of Paul Witzke be changed to Paul Winton, your committee finds that all requirements have been complied with and we therefore recommend that the petition of Parkway Lodge be granted.

Petition No. 36. Petition of for reinstatement in Herrin Prairie Lodge No. 693.

The offense for which this man was expelled was a serious one, being that of visiting a neighboring town with another man's wife and registering at a hotel as man and wife. During the night the woman committed suicide.

The case was given wide publicity and resulted in the separation of this man from his own wife, though afterwards they were reconciled and are now living together.

To restore him to the rights and privileges of Masonry would in a manner at least be considered as condoning the offense.

We therefore recommend that this petition be not granted.

Petition No. 37. Petition of for reinstatement in New Columbia Lodge No. 336.

The action of the lodge in this case is in conformity with all requirements and appears to correctly represent the sentiment and wishes of the brethren. We therefore recommend that this petition be granted.

Petition No. 38. Petition of for reinstatement in Gibson Lodge No. 733.

From information at hand, the action of the lodge in this case is proper and right. We recommend that this petition be granted.

Petition No. 39. Petition of for reinstatement in Capron Lodge No. 575.

Additional evidence in this case indicates that the offending brother is now worthy the favorable consideration of this grand lodge. We recommend that this petition be granted.

Petition No. 40. Petition of for reinstatement in Madison Lodge No. 560, New Douglas, Ill.

Your committee recommends that this petition be granted.

Petition No. 41. Petition of for reinstatement in Full Moon Lodge No. 341, Grafton.

Your committee recommends that this petition be granted.

Petition No. 42. Petition of for reinstatement to Auburn Park Lodge No. 789.

Your committee listened patiently to the statements and arguments of a number of brethren favorable and adverse to this petition, most of which were so contradictory in character as to render them of practically no value.

This case was originally tried by a commission appointed by the grand master during the year 1917, and upon appeal to the grand lodge in annual meeting in October, 1917, was reviewed by the Committee on Appeals and Grievances, which committee approved the verdict of the trial commission and reported to the grand lodge accordingly, and the grand lodge adopted the report.

By petition of a number of brothers of Auburn Park Lodge this case was again brought before this grand lodge at its annual meeting in October, 1918, and was again reviewed by the Committee on Appeals and Grievances, which committee again approved all former action in connection with this case.

In view of all these circumstances, your committee cannot bring itself to believe that every one officially connected with this case could have been mistaken.

We therefore recommend that this petition be not granted.

Petition No. 43. Petition of for restoration to Piper Lodge No. 608.

The offense of this brother was in securing admission into the fraternity by falsely representing that he had never before petitioned for the degrees.

Charges were preferred, he was placed on trial, admitted his guilt and was sentenced to be reprimanded.

The grand master ordered the case appealed, and at the annual meeting in October, 1917, the Committee on Appeals and Grievances recommended that the verdict of the lodge be set aside and that the brother be expelled from all the rights and privileges of Masonry, which recommendation was adopted by the grand lodge.

At the annual meeting in October, 1918, Piper Lodge No. 608 petitioned this grand lodge to restore this brother to the rights and privileges of Masonry, but the petition was denied.

We are also informed by reliable witnesses that notwithstanding the penalty of expulsion under which this brother rests he still continues brazenly wearing the emblems of Masonry.

Your committee is of the opinion that the action of the grand lodge in denying his petition one year ago was a wise action, and we recommend that the present petition be not granted.

Petition No. 44. Petition of Frank LeRoy Sallows for reinstatement to good standing in the fraternity.

It appears that Frank LeRoy Sallows was suspended by Cordova Lodge No. 543, now defunct, for non-payment of dues, dates not given, the amount of which was $7.40. He now petitions for reinstatement to good standing in the fraternity, accompanying his petition with the amount for which he was suspended and including therewith the recommendation of a regular lodge in his community that his petition be granted.

We therefore recommend that his petition be granted.

Petition No. 45. Petition of Stillwell R. Hareourt for reinstatement to good standing in the fraternity.

We recommend that this petition be granted.

Petition No. 46. Whereas, the various lodges of Illinois have contributed to the War Relief and National Defense funds with "the idea of helping in every way the spirit and morale of the men in the service, Masons and otherwise, to uphold the aims and purposes of our government and to give the Masons of Illinois an opportunity of helping in the saving of civilization," a sum totaling $231,932.61, of which a balance of $217,149.74 remained on October 5th, 1918, and

Whereas, sacrifices were made by the different lodges to contribute to these funds, and especially Olney Lodge 140, and now that the object for which the money so contributed is attained, the war ended and demobilization practically complete, the necessity for further expenditure of the fund so collected is past, the balance remaining belongs in good conscience to the different lodges in proportion to the amount each contributed.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the grand lodge be required to prorate the balance of said fund to the several lodges in proportion to their contributions without delay. And that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the grand secretary, to be read at the first meeting of the grand lodge and action taken thereon.

Adopted by a unanimous vote of Olney Lodge No. 140, Sept. 15, 1919.

JOSEPH I. STOLL, W. M.,

S. C. FULKERSON, Sec. Pro-Tem.

The matters contained in this petition have been fully covered by the grand master in his official report, and recommendations appertaining thereto have been made by him and in turn have been referred to another committee.

We therefore recommend that the findings of that committee concerning the matters contained in this petition be given proper consideration by this grand lodge and that this committee make no recommendations.

Petition No. 47. Petition of

This is a most peculiar and unusual case, for the determination of which there is no precedent to guide the actions of your committee.

It appears that this brother came to Centralia some years ago with a companion who was in some sort of trouble. Fearing that the presence of the companion might be disclosed through him, he was persuaded to adopt a fictitious name by which he became well known in that vicinity. His environments and associations were such that his stay in Centralia was extended to several years. He finally petitioned the lodge, using the name by which he had become known in that city. Finally returning to his former home in Milwaukee, it was necessary of course to resume his legal and rightful name.

At the present time he is confined in a hospital with little or no chance of recovery, and it is his desire to have his rightful name appear upon the records of Centralia Lodge and upon the records of the grand lodge.

While this petition does not come before this committee in the regulation or prescribed manner, by the earnest solicitation of the District Deputy Grand Master Brother D. B. Robertson and Brother Charles C. Davis, both of whom are members of Centralia Lodge and both of whom are well known to many of the members of this grand lodge, we have thought well to present the matter to this grand body recommending that his name be changed upon the records of Centralia Lodge and upon the records of the grand lodge to conform with his wishes and that he shall be known hereafter Masonically by his rightful and legal name.

Respectfully submitted,

J. E. JEFFERS,

JAMES K. LAMBERT,

J. H. MITCHELL,

REPORT—Committee on Obituaries.

Bro. S. P. Reese presented the report of the Committee on Obituaries. It was adopted by a rising vote.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

BRETHREN:—

During the past year our senior past grand master, Monroe C. Crawford, and our grand master, Austin H. Serogin, and a large number of past masters of lodges, after having lived lives of usefulness and honor have been summoned to their home above. They served their country and their fellow-men. They wrought faithfully as Masons and were honored and loved by all of the fraternity.

In flesh they are gone but in spirit they linger. They are here now and today. Crawford and Serogin and these other masters and past masters are laboring in this audience more effectually now than if physically present. They are calling for greater charities, for a better humanity, for a greater unselfishness.

Their real epitaphs are not written on their tombstones, but rather in the hearts of men. They are not seen but are kindly felt. Long may they linger. In years to come when we too shall have passed and been raised, when granite shall have been crumbled and streams shall have changed their courses their kindly deeds shall continue to blossom and bear fruit. By such conduct only can humanity hope to escape from conditions now appalling. From kindness, unselfishness and sympathy for the weaker and less fortunate we arrive at human betterment.

To the families and friends of these distinguished brethren we extend our heartfelt sympathy; to the God of all, our gratitude for their useful lives. To the earth we consigned their ashes and to you, brethren, and your Masonic successors we consecrate the memories of them and their work.

BRO. MONROE C. CRAWFORD

Past Grand Master 1891-1893

Born May 26th, 1835; Died March 9th, 1919.

M. W. BRO. MONROE C. CRAWFORD was born on a farm in Franklin County, Illinois, on the 26th day of May, 1835. He gives the following account of himself:

"My mother died before I was five years old and before I was seven I was indentured to a farmer to learn the art of farming. At the age of fifteen the gentleman to whom I was indentured changed his occupation to a general merchant and proposed to put me into a retail store as a clerk. I refused to serve as a clerk and the gentleman to whom I was indentured and I settled the question by my purchasing the remainder of my time. After buying my time I taught school for one term and followed that by one term at McKendree College."

He then studied law and began his career in his chosen profession. Only last December he laid aside the judicial ermine that he had honored and adorned for 44 years. Twelve of these were as Judge of the Circuit Court and 32 of the County and Probate Court of Union County.

A break came when in the ardor of youth he obeyed the patriotic impulses that dominated him and donned the blue in the Civil War, leaving the service at the close with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. For more than a half century since the war for the preservation of the Union, Judge Crawford was a mighty factor in all affairs in southern Illinois. In his city and county he filled almost every position of trust and responsibility in which his friends and neighbors called him to serve.

As a Mason his life was no less distinguished than in his affairs of his city and section. He took the degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft and Master Mason in Benton Lodge No. 64, in 1855. It will be thus seen that he was a member of the craft for almost 64 years, being one of the oldest in point of service in Illinois and in the entire country. He served as junior warden in Benton Lodge in 1856. He affiliated with Jonesboro Lodge No. 111, August 13, 1859, being four times elected worshipful master.

In grand lodge he was always a conspicuous figure. He served as junior grand warden from 1885 to 1887; senior grand warden, from 1887 to 1889; deputy grand master from 1889 to 1891 and grand master from 1891 to 1893. On retiring as grand master he was made chairman of the Committee on Appeals and Grievances, a position which he held for over twenty years. This supreme appellate body never had a more able chairman than he. After his long service in this place, Brother Crawford was transferred to and became chairman of Jurisprudence, the greatest committee in the grand lodge. This he held until his death.

MONROE C. CRAWFORD
PAST GRAND MASTER
DIED MARCH 9, 1919

In 1893 the World's Masonic Congress was held in Chicago. Over this Brother Crawford had the unique honor to preside. This was the only such body ever held in the United States. Brother Crawford in 1907 was elected Grand High Priest of the Grand Chapter, R. A. M. of Illinois. In 1873 he took the orders of Knighthood in Cairo Commandery, Knights Templar.

At the last session of the grand lodge, held in October, 1918, being the senior past grand master, Brother Crawford was chosen to speak for the representatives of other grand lodges, he being the representative of Arizona. Many think he never spoke more impressively in grand lodge than in this his last appearance. His mind seemed as clear and virile as when he was forty years younger.

It was my melancholy privilege March 11, to officiate at his funeral, under the auspices of his own lodge, Jonesboro No. 111. The very large number of his brethren, together with many hundreds of people from all over that section of the state, attest the high esteem in which this distinguished brother was held by the community of which he had been an active and useful factor for more than a half century.

He was a brave soldier, an able jurist, an upright, useful citizen, a loyal Mason, and a Christian gentleman.

The foregoing obituary was written by Most Worshipful Brother Austin H. Serogin little thinking that it would be our painful duty to read that of him along with it.

BRO. AUSTIN H. SCROGIN

Grand Master from October, 1917 to April, 1919.

Died While in Office

Born May 12th, 1855; Died April 26th, 1919.

M. W. BRO. AUSTIN H. SCROGIN departed this life at his home at Lexington, Illinois, on the 26th day of April, A. D. 1919.

Our illustrious grand master in the discharge of his Masonic duties was attending the funeral services of a deceased member of his lodge, and was marching in procession with his brethren to the cemetery at Lexington, where he was to conduct the Masonic burial service. Brother Serogin, while thus engaged, was stricken and survived only a few minutes. Thus he died in the harness, clad as grand master and wearing the jewel of that office.

He served this grand lodge as a member of its Board of Grand Examiners and as its chairman with great efficiency and ingratiated himself with his brethren in such measure that by their choice he became junior grand warden of this grand lodge in 1911. He was regularly advanced until at the session of this grand lodge in 1917, he became its grand master. He was re-elected to this exalted position at the last session of this grand lodge in 1918.

The untimely death of our grand master has come to us when his services were greatly needed.

In every relation of life Brother Serogin in well rounded measure, met every just expectation and faithfully discharged every duty to the last. He was a wise and prudent grand master, kind and considerate to all his brethren, tireless in the discharge of his every duty, loved by all of us while he lived and venerated by us now.

Brother Serogin was zealous in the discharge of his Masonic obligations and before the world he stood as a just and upright Mason. The loss of his leadership is deeply felt by us all. His counsel and advice can guide us no longer.

Masonry in Illinois sustained an unprecedented loss in the untimely death of our grand master.

For a list of the masters and past masters in Illinois and officers and past grand officers of other grand jurisdictions who died during the year see memorial pages in the appendix.

Kindly convey to Grand Lodge of Illinois fraternal greetings of Minnesota. Best wishes for harmonious, prosperous and profitable communication. See you Cedar Rapids eleventh.

GEO. M. STONE, Grand Master.

SECOND REPORT—Committee on Legislation.

Bro. Owen Scott made the following report for the Committee on Legislation.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Illinois:

Amendments to Sections 218 and 219 must be considered together. They materially affect the revenues of this grand lodge. Paragraph G amending Section 218 is new. It proposes to require every new Master Mason uniting with a lodge by affiliation or by receiving the degrees to pay into the grand lodge treasury the sum of ten (10) dollars. It is thought that this will put grand lodge finances on a sound and safe basis. The large and increasing cost of maintaining our two great Homes draws heavily on the resource of this grand lodge. This is especially so during the time that the high prices of food and clothing continue.

Last year more than 15,000 men became Master Masons in Illinois. Had this amendment been in force this would have produced $150,000. Our late lamented Brother Austin H. Serogin, in his report last year, urged that this amendment be adopted. The need for largely increased revenues is very pressing. Those seeking admission might easily be willing to make this contribution to become partners in our valuable enterprises. Present members have paid large sums now invested in the Homes at Sullivan and La Grange. New members would share in the benefits and privileges thus provided.

Your committee, however, is of the opinion that this proposed amendment should not apply to affiliation. It has always been the policy of this grand lodge to encourage persons who are non-affiliated to unite with some lodge. We, therefore, recommend that in the proposed amendment to be known as Paragraph G of Section 218 the words "or affiliated" be stricken out. The amendment will then read—

G. For every applicant for the degrees, whose petition is received subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, ten dollars in addition to the fees required by the by-laws of each lodge. This additional sum to be returned to the applicant in case of his rejection.

Your committee, therefore, recommends that the foregoing Paragraph G, to Section 218, and the amendment to Section 219 be adopted.

Regarding proposed amendments to Paragraphs E and F of Section 218 there is need of most careful consideration. The grand lodge dues are now $1.00. The amendments propose to reduce this to 75 cents. It is very essential that the grand lodge should be sure of enough money to carry on its work without being cramped or hindered for want of funds.

The phenomenal growth of the past two years may not continue. Instead of $120,000 additional revenue it might fall far below this sum. The payment of 25 cents additional is a small matter to each individual Mason. In the aggregate, it means much to the grand lodge. Should there be a slump in admissions this grand lodge might be in sore need of money, if this reduction in grand lodge dues be made. It would take at least a year to bring the amount back to the present requirement of one dollar per member. It is always a difficult matter to raise grand lodge dues and quite easy to lower them.

Your committee, therefore, recommends that amendments to Paragraphs E and F, Section 218 and amendment to Section 667 of the code be not adopted. This will leave grand lodge dues $1.00 per member as now.

We also recommend that amendment to Code 552, known as Paragraph A, be adopted, after striking out the words "Master Masons" and inserting the words "entered apprentice" in the second line and striking out the words "or balloting on a petition for affiliation" in the second and third lines.

Fraternally submitted,

OWEN SCOTT,

WILLIAM WILHARTZ,

Committee.

The proposed amendments to Code 552 by adding Section A, and to Code No. 218 as Paragraph G, requiring each applicant for the degrees or affiliation to pay $10.00 in addition to the fees fixed by the by-laws of the lodge were not adopted.

Amendment to Code No. 667 was adopted by a two-thirds vote and so declared. The amendment is as follows:

667. Every lodge in this jurisdiction, on or before the first day of August each year, shall pay into the treasury of the grand lodge, through the grand secretary, the sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents for each Master Mason belonging to such lodge at the time of making the annual returns. Of this one dollar and twenty-five cents the sum of eighty cents shall be for the general fund and forty-five cents for the charity fund, subject to such appropriations from time to time as the grand lodge may direct.

Amendment to Code No. 667, providing for the payment of 75 cents per annum as grand lodge dues, failing to receive a two-thirds vote was declared not adopted.

Amendments to Paragraphs E and F of Code No. 218, grand lodge by-laws, striking out "one dollar" and inserting "seventy-five cents" as grand lodge dues, not receiving the required two-thirds vote, were declared not adopted.

AMENDMENT TO CODE OFFERED.

Bro. W. J. Leacock, Jr., offered the following amendment to the Code. It was seconded by the representatives of more than twenty lodges and goes to the Committee on Legislation.

Amend Code 451, by-laws relating to lodges, by striking out the words "either initiation" in the first line, the word "or" in the second line and by adding the sentence "no alien can petition a Masonic lodge for initiation."

If amended the Code will read—

451. An alien, who is a candidate for affiliation, and who is otherwise qualified, need not be naturalized as a prerequisite to his petitioning a Masonic lodge. No alien can petition a Masonic lodge for initiation.

DETAILED REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENTS OF THE MASONIC HOMES.*REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF ILLINOIS MASONIC ORPHANS' HOME.

To the Chairman and Members of the Executive Committee of the Board of Managers of the Illinois Masonic Orphans' Home:

DEAR BRETHREN: Herewith I beg to submit my fourth annual report as superintendent of the Home.

At the date of this report, Sept. 30, 1919, the children are all well and healthy with the exception of one mild case of tonsillitis.

On Friday succeeding our visit to grand lodge last year, influenza attacked our members. Of the 94 members 76 suffered from its ravages. Of the 11 employees, 6 were sick. Death entered our Home when Lewis Smith, a boy of 11 years from Bridgeport Lodge No. 386, succumbed to pneumonia following the influenza. At the request of the lodge, his body was sent to Bridgeport for burial. Sincere and grateful thanks of all those in immediate charge of this home are extended to the members of the Executive Committee and to Drs. Ralph H. Wheeler and Arthur J. Behrendt for their untiring efforts in obtaining nurses. It was through their efforts that on Oct. 28 we were able to secure the services of two. At that time there were 36 children and 4 adults confined to their beds in the active stages of the disease.

That but one succumbed to the ravages of the disease is owing to the skilled, close and continued care given the patients by our Home physician, Dr. A. E. Higgins. During the six weeks the disease lasted he never lagged in his efforts, day after day early in the morning and late at night he was with us.

Owing to the long continued drought our garden this year has not been as profitable as heretofore. While we have had an abundance of the various vegetables for use on the table, there has been but a limited surplus for canning. Instead of nearly 1,100 quarts that we had last year we will not have to exceed 300 this year.

ENTERTAINMENT.

During the year the following Masonic bodies have entertained the children:

Old Glory Lodge—Flag presentation, games, on our Home grounds.

Old Glory Lodge—Entertainment for the older children at the Austin Masonic Temple, and the presentation of 16 musical instruments for the boys' and girls' home band.

Standard Lodge—Vaudeville show at the Home.
 Aryon Grotto Band—Band concert on Home grounds.
 Veritas Lodge—At Glenwood Park.
 Pleiades Lodge—At Glenwood Park.
 Lakeview Lodge—Riverside.
 Union Park Lodge—On Home grounds.
 Keystone Lodge—At Riverside.
 Chicago Commandery—On Home grounds.
 Welfare Lodge—On Home grounds.
 Mizpah Lodge—On Home grounds.
 Concord Lodge—Moving pictures in Home hall.

To the Board of Trustees, Illinois Masonic Orphans' Home:

GENTLEMEN:—I have the usual short report to make as to the health of the children during the past year.

During October and November last year we had 76 cases of influenza and lost one boy from pneumonia following influenza. The balance made perfect recoveries. We have had a few cases of whooping cough and that is all we have had of a contagious form.

All else proved to be slight indispositions of a variety of kinds.

Yours truly,

ARTHUR E. HIGGINS,

Physician to Home.

Thanks to the generosity of Old Glory Lodge, and the helping hands of Bros. Tom Wilson, A. C. Scoutingen and Messrs. Lyon & Healy in furnishing additional instruments, we have a Boys and Girls Band doing good work under the instruction of Bro. T. K. Davission.

The latest activity and one of the most interesting has come to us through the appropriation by Riverside Lodge No. 862 of three hundred dollars for installing a printing plant at the Home and the appointment of Bros. Geo. Lockie and A. M. Harvie to take charge of the installation.

A more perfect demonstration of true Masonic brotherly love than that given by these two brothers, it has never been my pleasure to witness. Not only are they wisely and carefully expending the monies of the lodge and getting donations from their generous brothers and friends, but they are devoting many hours of time each week to the training of our boys in the printing art. The value of their services can not be measured in dollars. The plant with this service of love and affection is a gift of inestimable value.

No one not connected with the Home can estimate the value of these added activities. Our manual training, domestic science, music and printing are bringing to the front the latent and oftentimes unsuspected talent of our wards. With proper quarters in which to carry on these lines of work and instruction, our children will develop into men and women of whom the whole fraternity will justly be proud.

Respectfully submitted,

GEO. L. HILLIKER.

Superintendent.

Pursuant to orders the Board of Grand Examiners conducted five schools of instruction and three examinations for commissions as grand lecturers.

The total attendance at the schools was 2,226. Thirty-eight applicants successfully passed the examinations and were recommended for commissions as grand lecturers.

The schools were well attended and results being very gratifying to the Board. As in the past three years, Wednesday evening of the school was given over to the grand master and a speaker selected by him.

The board wishes to express their appreciation to the M.W. grand master, the grand secretary and other grand officers for their attendance and kindly assistance at the schools; to the grand lecturers who came at their own expense and loss of time to make the schools the success they were; and also to the brethren who by their fraternal kindness and assistance lent the aid whereby the success of the schools was attained.

On the several Wednesday evenings of the schools we were pleased to hear addresses from the following distinguished brethren, to whom we are greatly indebted.

Hon. Francis G. Blair, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Owen Scott, Past Grand Master.

Hon. Edward J. Brundage, Attorney General of the State of Illinois.
George L. Schoonover, Grand Master of Masons, of Iowa.

Following is a detailed report of the schools and examinations:

Since the last report of the Board of Grand Examiners the following grand lecturers have been called to the higher Lodge above.

Leslie W. Morton
Wm. Dayton McKinney
Charles Anderson Luse
Herman A. Rimpler
John C. Weis
Phillip Carey Vaughan

We shall miss them at future schools and meetings of the fraternity; we realize how weak an attempt would be to eulogize the virtues of our departed brethren; we leave that to those that loved and knew them best.

On Saturday, April 26th, 1919, we were shocked to hear of the death of our beloved Grand Master, Bro. Austin H. Serogin, whose death occurred at his home in Lexington. He was stricken while in the performance of the labor he loved so well.

The Board of Grand Examiners during Brother Serogin's regime were under very many obligations to him for his uniform kindness and help under many very trying conditions and circumstances. We shall miss him.

In concluding this report, we desire to express to you our appreciation of the many kindnesses extended to us and congratulate you on your successful administration as grand master.

Respectfully and fraternally submitted,

BOARD OF GRAND EXAMINERS,

GEO. E. CARLSON, Secretary.

AMENDMENTS TO BY-LAWS ADOPTED.

129. The salary of the grand master shall be twenty-five hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments; provided, that for such sums as he may expend for stenographer, postage and stationery and incidental expenses the grand lodge may make appropriations upon presentation of itemized bills approved by the committee on finance.—1919.

149. For the due performance of the duties hereinbefore prescribed, the grand secretary shall receive, as full compensation, the sum of three thousand dollars per annum, payable in monthly installments: Provided, that for payment of sums actually expended for postage, express charges, and incidental official expenses the grand lodge may make appropriations, upon presentation of itemized bills, approved by the Finance Committee. Provided further, that the grand secretary shall employ an assistant who shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by the Finance Committee and the grand master.—1919.

166. Each district deputy grand master shall make an annual report to the grand master thirty days prior to the meeting of the grand lodge, setting forth his official acts during the year, the state of Masonry within his jurisdiction, the condition of the lodges in his district, and suggesting such measures as to him may appear conducive to the general good of the fraternity; which report shall be published with the proceedings, insofar as the grand master may deem advisable.—1919.

243. The grand officers designated in Code No. 14, page 21, such past grand masters, past deputy grand masters and past grand wardens as shall be present and shall be members of constituent lodges in Illinois (provided, that if any such permanent member in attendance on the session of the grand lodge be at the time a sojourner outside of Illinois his mileage shall be computed from the location of his lodge), each member of a standing committee, and one representative (the highest in rank) from each lodge under this jurisdiction shall be allowed five cents per mile going and returning, for every mile traveled from the location of his lodge, to be computed by the necessarily traveled route, and (except the grand master, grand treasurer and grand secretary) four dollars per day for each day's actual attendance on the grand lodge or its committees. No one shall receive mileage or per diem in more than one capacity.—1919.

321. Smoking in open lodge is prohibited, and the master is responsible for the strict enforcement of this by-law.—1917.—1919.

443. Every candidate applying for the degrees in Masonry must have the senses of a man, especially those of hearing, seeing, and feeling; be a believer in God; capable of reading and writing in English, and possessing no maim or defect in his body that may render him incapable of conforming to what the several degrees respectively require of him. Provided that in case of any such maiming or physical defects, on petition of five members of the lodge, the secretary shall transmit the petition to the grand master for his decision. Should the grand master upon investigation deem it advisable so to do he may in his discretion issue a dispensation permitting the lodge to proceed to ballot on the petition.

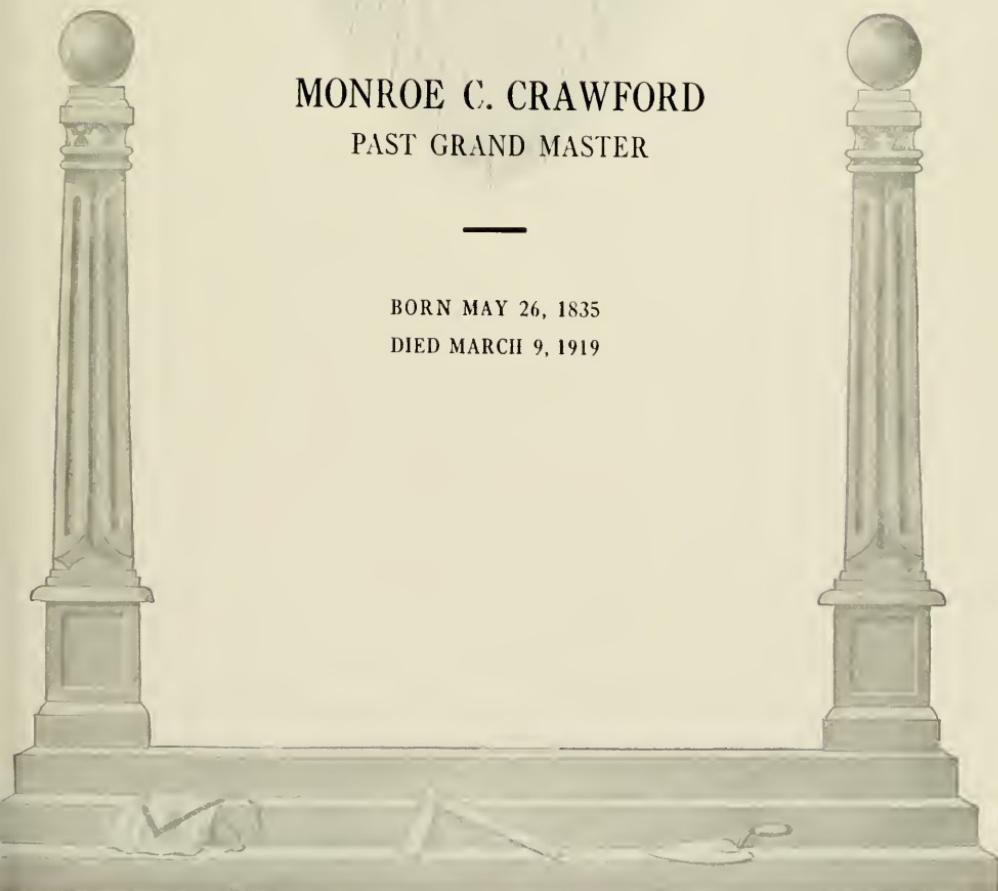

667. Every lodge in this jurisdiction, on or before the first day of August each year, shall pay into the treasury of the grand lodge, through the grand secretary, the sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents for each Master Mason belonging to such lodge at the time of making the annual returns. Of this one dollar and twenty-five cents the sum of eighty cents shall be for the general fund and forty-five cents for the charity fund, subject to such appropriations from time to time as the grand lodge may direct.—1919.

APPENDIX PART I

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON MASONIC CORRESPONDENCE

PREFATORY.

In the preparation of the correspondence report for the year 1919 the writer has made every effort to condense, abridge, and paraphrase. For a long time there has been a growing conviction that the correspondence reports which have been submitted to the Grand Lodge of Illinois were entirely too long; so much so that they have failed to claim interest because of the tremendous amount of matter which the reader found it necessary to peruse in order to get the particular thing for which he was looking.

Again, it has been charged that too much of the correspondence reports are loaded up with the individual opinion of the writer as well as a tendency toward an exchange of argument with other correspondents.

The writer is fully conscious that the correspondence report submitted to the grand lodge last year was entirely too long. It was, however, prepared along the lines suggested by our lamented grand master, Austin H. Serogin, who was an intense student of Freemasonry. He studied the proceedings of all grand lodges most assiduously and depended largely upon the perusal of correspondence reports for the valuable information which he desired and which they frequently contain. But, Brother Serogin was an exception. There are very few men who take the keen interest in general Masonic affairs that he did, or who have the time to devote themselves to the careful study of reports on correspondence that he gave.

In the preparation of the report which follows every effort has been made to condense, and the scissors have been sparingly used. It has demanded close reading of all proceedings in an effort to glean therefrom the salient points and it has required no little care in presenting them in a condensed form. The writer has been strongly tempted at times to comment on things which he has discovered in the transactions of other grand lodges, but however strong the temptation, he has endeavored to restrict himself as much as possible. The report submitted does not by any means measure up to the writer's idea of a condensed, spicy, interesting correspondence report, wherein the reader may glean that general knowledge of craft conditions which it is the intention of such documents to present.

Much trouble has been experienced during the year in securing the reports of various grand lodges due to business conditions, but every report available has been carefully examined and an honest effort made to reveal the general condition of Masonry in the various jurisdictions under consideration.

DELMAR D. DARAH.

Bloomington, Illinois, September 1, 1919.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

One of the subjects which has claimed the attention of grand masters during the year just closed relates to the numerous lectures which are being foisted upon the craft by what has been termed "symbologists."

At the present time there is a great epidemic of this particular species in the Masonic Fraternity who are panning their wares off on the unsophisticated, much to the detriment of the society. It appears that many of these men have seized upon the idea of connecting up the Masonic Fraternity with ancient mysteries, rites, and ceremonies by the medium of well-known symbols for the purpose of exciting the curiosity of Masons as well as filling their own pocketbooks. All of this works to the serious injury of the fraternity, for the reason that there are in the society, intelligent men who are acquainted with history and whose common sense tells them that much of the claim of these symbologists is not only false, but highly ridiculous. It is an easy matter to reduce any given subject to symbolism and much of the symbolism which is used in Freemasonry today has been borrowed from old rites and ceremonies and injected into the society by modern ritual builders. It is the hardest thing in the world to get Masons to tell the truth about Freemasonry. There seems to be an innate desire to invest the society with an atmosphere of antiquity and to try and so becloud the true history of the organization as to leave the interested Mason in a state of doubt as to just exactly where it came from. During the past year, several grand masters have called the attention of their grand lodges to the many pernicious doctrines that are being peddled by travelling symbologists and other would-be Masonic oracles and have cautioned the members of the craft against accepting much of the false material which is being circulated as the truth. Masonic newspapers are full of articles dealing with Masonic symbolism which are misleading in the extreme, and it is a matter of regret that Masonic censorship of some kind cannot be established in order to protect our young Masons from being misled and deceived.

Unexpended Balances

From a careful perusal of grand lodge reports, the idea is obtained that a large number of jurisdictions collected war funds of substantial proportions which were lightly drawn upon during the period of hostilities with the result that at the present time they find themselves with an abundance of war funds on hands.

One of the questions which naturally arises is "what shall be done with these monies?" One thing is always noticeable concerning the collection of funds for relief, and that is, that somebody invariably gets a junket trip at the expense of the fund which has been voluntarily contributed. A representative of one of the first war relief funds which was collected has recently made a trip overseas, visiting England and France with a view to determining how best to spend the money on hands. If published reports are true, the representative must have had a delightful junket. The Grand Encampment of the United States of America found itself possessed with a large sum of money at the close of the war, and recently a committee made a trip abroad to find ways and means of spending the fund on hands. Of this committee which went abroad, it must be said to the credit of one, that he paid his own expenses.

One grand lodge which collected a substantial sum has also sent a commission overseas with a view to ascertaining how it can best expend the monies which it has. The writer has always contended that moneys which are voluntarily contributed for charitable purposes, should not be used to pay the junket expense of any individual nor should a single percent of the amount be given over to bankers or other financial agents for handling these accounts.

The question at the present time appears to have resolved itself into this. Certain Masonic organizations find themselves with sums of money on hands. And great perplexity has arisen as to how an expenditure can best be made. Now that the war is over, and there appears to be a very limited demand for any of these sums, the question of disposing of them appears to be one which is very likely to resolve itself into waste. So far as can be ascertained, no one has as yet suggested a pro rata of these unexpended balances back to the sources whence they came, or the application of them to legitimate charities and the placing of them where they will not become the prey of those who are ever seeking something at the expense of somebody else.

A New Requirement

During the past year, a new question appears to be receiving the consideration of those who are ever seeking to amend and improve Freemasonry.

Two or three grand lodges during the past year have injected into their Masonic system the question of "belief in the immortality of the soul." They have made it not only one of the constitutional questions, but have inserted it in the form of a question into the petition for degrees which the candidate must sign. This question, from a very careful study of the evolution of Freemasonry, appears to be largely modern and grows out of a present tendency to introduce sectarian questions into the general regulations of the fraternity.

In the original Freemasonry which was practiced immediately after the formation of the Grand Lodge of England in 1717, nothing was said concerning a belief in the immortality of the soul, and it was not until the introduction of the legend of the third degree in the first decade of the Eighteenth century that this question commenced to receive consideration. Just how far reaching the present agitation toward making belief in the immortality of the soul a paramount Masonic issue will be remains to be seen. It is a serious question as to whether the introduction of this subject will not lead to much discussion as to the interpretation which is to be placed upon this query, and whether its consideration by the Masonic Fraternity will not lead to more or less confusion.

In discussing the landmarks of Freemasonry, Roseoe Pound of Massachusetts expresses the immortality of the soul as "the persistence of personality," showing that men are disposed to place a construction upon questions of this character in keeping with their own ideas and beliefs. The result of the agitation which is at the present time apparent concerning the injection of this question into our Masonic system will be watched with much interest in view of the wide spread revolution which is taking place in religious thought.

Increased Revenue

Nearly every grand lodge which has been under review this year has wrestled with the question of an increase in revenue. It appears from all that can be gathered, that the resources of grand lodges at the present time are hardly adequate to meet the growing responsibility of the craft, and the constantly increasing necessities which each year brings. As the only source of revenue which the Masonic Fraternity has or can have, is from the fees collected for the degrees and the dues contributed by individual members, it can be readily seen that if it is necessary to procure more funds, the end can only be obtained through an increase in these two items. The general opinion throughout the United States appears to be that the fees charged for the degrees in most lodges are too low, and a general minimum of $30.00 has been established in many places, while the tendency among the most progressive grand lodges has been to fix the lowest charge at forty or fifty dollars.

It is beyond dispute that the dues charged by the average lodge are too low. The grand master of California recommended fixing the minimum dues of the lodges of that state at $9.00. This, to the average Mason of course, looks like an exorbitant sum, but there is a growing conviction that the time is not far distant when the minimum dues in any lodge will be $5.00. As an institution grows older and its members multiply, its financial responsibilities increase. Those grand lodges which have indulged in institutional charities have found an ever growing demand for more funds with which to carry on their work while those grand lodges which take care of their needy with special charity funds have also realized the necessity of increasing revenue. The truth of the matter is that Freemasonry has taken upon itself to administer Masonic charity without ever providing for a substantial source of revenue with which to care for these great enterprises in which the fraternity is concerned. It cannot be doubted but that an increase in fees and dues is vitally necessary. It is no use for members of individual lodges to complain at the extra burden of a dollar or two per year in the matter of dues. The responsibilities of the fraternity must be met. The newcomer who petitions a Masonic lodge in this day and age of the world, is purchasing a valuable asset. He is becoming a partner in an already established and highly organized institution, and he should not complain at being compelled to pay the price which is asked.

This is a subject which will in time, properly adjust itself because members of the fraternity who are intelligent men, will be brought to see that the work of the fraternity cannot be carried forward unless financial means are provided with which to accomplish the end desired.

Physical Qualification

One of the questions which is still paramount in the Masonic world is that of physical qualifications. There is an idea that the requirement of physical perfection is a landmark which no power can set aside. The writer is one of those who does not believe that in all Freemasonry there is such a thing as a landmark. There are certain fundamental Masonic requirements which distinguish Freemasonry from all other societies. All the laws of Freemasonry are man made, and are the direct result of the prejudices and convictions of those individuals who contributed to Freemasonry during its two hundred years of evolution. Mackey, the great American authority on Freemasonry, took it upon himself to enumerate twenty-five of what he termed, "the established landmarks of the fraternity," many of which have been pronounced by eminent critics to have been merely the result of his own imagination, but in the twenty-five enumerated by Mackey, nothing is said about physical perfection. Roscoe Pound, whose critical analysis of the subject of landmarks is familiar to studious Masons, makes no mention of physical perfection as a landmark. Wm. J. Hughan, the distinguished English historian, a man who is to-day recognized as one of the greatest authorities on Freemasonry that ever lived, holds to the opinion that physical perfection is by no means a landmark, if such a thing exists.

The old charges of the operative fraternity from which present Freemasonry has descended, has no practical relation to Freemasonry of the present time. They serve merely as a guide to modern Masonic legislation. The Halliwell MS. contains this clause: "No Master should take an Apprentice unless he has sufficient employment for him, and unless he be a perfect youth, having no maim or defect in his body that may render him incapable of learning the art, of serving his Master's Lord, and of being made a Brother, and then a Fellow Craft in due time," etc. It is upon this section of the old charges of the operative guilds that the present law on physical qualifications has been based, showing conclusively that the various doctrines held by different grand lodges are simply due to the construction which they have placed upon this section of the ancient charges which in the two hundred years past have undergone various modifications and changes to suit the individual ideas of those who were concerned in the construction of our Masonic legislation.

The time has now arrived for all grand lodges to take a rational view of the subject of physical qualifications and to make the mental and moral qualifications of the candidate the basis of Masonic preferment.

Co-ordination Needed.

The greatest need of the Masonic Fraternity today is co-ordination or unity of effort and purpose. The war is over and we are rapidly returning to a pre-war basis. As the confusion and turmoil subsides we are being given to sober consideration, and are confronted with the fact that much of the effort of Masonry that would have been of real service during the war, failed because of lack of co-ordination. Instead of Freemasonry becoming a factor in war activity, we had in the United States, forty-four separate groups, each posing as Freemasonry and endeavoring to gain recognition in war service. Much criticism has been directed against the War Department and the authorities in Washington, because of the fact that Freemasonry was not permitted to construct buildings in cantonments, and to become otherwise recognized among the great institutions which sought to render service to our soldiers. It has been contended that the refusal to permit Freemasonry to participate in these enterprises was due to sinister influences in Washington. The state authorities however, declared that Freemasonry had not presented itself in organized form, and that instead, forty-four groups of individuals, each posing as representatives of Freemasonry, sought to engage in war activity and that it was quite impossible for the Government to recognize one of these groups without recognizing all. The truth about the matter is that Freemasonry failed in a way, because it lacked central organization. Each group devised plans all of its own and sought to carry them out without regard to other Masonic interests. A fair example of this is shown in a friendly controversy which arose between the Supreme Council of the southern jurisdiction and the Grand Lodge of New York. Each organization sought to go overseas in the interest of our soldiers, and each set up the claim of representing the Masons of the country. It was only when these two great institutions joined their interests, that they were enabled to accomplish their mission.

The time has arrived in our Masonic evolution, when Freemasonry can no longer be considered as bound by state rights, or limited to groups of individuals. To secure proper recognition of the institution as a vital factor in human activity, there must be organization and co-ordination of effort.

In the period of reconstruction and readjustment which is taking place, Freemasonry should divorce itself from the old idea of state rights and commence to plan for a unity of purpose. This can only be accomplished through some sort of central organization; call it whatever you may. Before Freemasonry is going to gain recognition as a world force, it must break down the barriers of jurisdiction which envelope each grand lodge and must subscribe to a general platform of basic principles. This does not mean the formation of any National Grand Lodge, but it does mean that there is needed a National Council of Administration which shall formulate a plan to which all the grand lodges of the United States may subscribe, and along which they may work for the best interests of Freemasonry.

Forty-four groups of Masons each raised monies for war purposes, and each group made expenditures which were, no doubt, beneficial and helpful to those reached, but how much greater would have been the benefit had all these diversified efforts been merged into one direct purpose? Not only would there have been financial saving, but the fraternity would have been enabled to secure that recognition which was denied it because of its disorganized condition.

Dr. Ralph H. Wheeler, of Chicago, had this idea in mind when he organized the Illinois Masonic Council of Defense, and suggested at that time the necessity of a national organization along similar lines. He had no more than made the suggestion, when a lot of Masons commenced to get out their sledge hammers and vigorously knock the enterprise, charging that it was merely a scheme of the promoter to exploit himself into a National Presidency,—a charge which bears close kin to much of the argument against a National Grand Lodge.

George L. Schoonover, grand master of Iowa, is another man who has lifted himself out of the Masonic rut, and last fall called a meeting of grand masters in his state to consider ways and means of establishing a Masonic Service Association. Brother Schoonover has seen the necessity of unified Masonic effort.

XIII

There is today a tremendous struggle among the Christian churches of the world to merge into one great Church of Christ with a central organization and a singleness of purpose. Peter Ainslee, one of the leaders of this movement, said in this city recently, that within five years this great movement will have born fruition, and that there will be in this country but one Church devoid of denominationalism and sectarianism. This enterprise, when presented to the Pope of Rome, was flatly turned down because the Catholic church has today, one of the most thoroughly organized systems of co-ordinated effort which the world knows anything about.

It is now time for the Freemasons of the United States to lay aside their prejudice, to forget narrow traditions of the past, and commence to lay the foundation for a great organized effort which will make the fraternity a potent factor in the affairs of the world.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON
NINETEEN HUNDRED NINETEEN

DELMAR D. DARRAH

ALABAMA, A. F. & A. M.

1918

The city of Montgomery was honored by the presence of the Grand Lodge of Alabama assembled in ninety-eighth annual meeting on December 4 and 5, 1918.

The opening ceremonies were brief, after which Robert H. Hague read his annual report. He opens with extended remarks concerning the signing of the armistice and expresses great hope for the future of Free-masonry. The first thing he does in disclosing his acts, is to report three decisions, all of them local in significance.

Dispensations were issued for the formation of six new lodges; one act of consolidation was performed; and fifteen dispensations issued to lodges to mortgage and sell property.

Alabama is liberal concerning physical qualifications, and the grand master reports issuing dispensations to initiate candidates who were maimed, providing they displayed the necessary mental and moral qualifications.

Four corner-stones were laid during the year; one of a postoffice building, the other three of school buildings.

The grand master deplores the fact that the state of Alabama stands so far down in the list of education, and calls upon all Masons to help remedy the conditions so far as lies in their power.

It appears that the Grand Lodge has been devoting considerable time to the exemplification of work during its annual meetings. The result has been to delay much important legislation until the afternoon of the last day, at a time when many brethren have taken trains for their homes, thereby leaving many matters to be acted upon by a minority representation. The grand master recommended that the exemplification of the work as a part of the grand lodge session, be changed, and that instead, the Committee on Work report to the grand lodge such changes as have been made during the year.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $16,739.25, and expenditures of $15,228.30.

The grand secretary presents a report largely of figures. A number of lodges failed to report on a constitutional amendment submitted May 15, 1917. The masters of these lodges were summoned to appear before the grand lodge, and offer such excuses as they could conjure up as a reason for their neglect of duty. A special committee was appointed by the grand lodge to listen to the recital of the tale of woe of the delinquents.

One thing the grand secretary does for which he is to be commended is that he prints the roll of lodges of the state showing how each lodge voted upon the proposed constitutional amendment. The Committee on Foreign Correspondence presented a long report, in which the subject of recognizing numerous foreign grand lodges was presented and the recommendations of the committee adopted. Concerning the Scottish Rite origin of many Masonic bodies, the committee insists that if the fact of derivation from the Scottish Rite must lead to the refusal of recognition—

Then to be constituent, we must not only decline Masonic intercourse with many of the leading Masonic powers of the world, but must withdraw recognition from some with which we are already in fraternal relation.

As a result of the report of the committee, the Grand Orients of Belgium and Italy, Chili, Grand Lodge of France, Grand Orient of France, Grand Lodge of Porto Rico, Grand Lodge, Alpina, of Switzerland, were duly recognized. Alabama is now certainly in good standing with the grand lodges abroad.

A resolution was introduced to the effect that the recommendation of the grand master pertaining to a discontinuance of the exemplification of the work be not concurred in. The resolution was adopted, and those who attend grand lodge may be assured of seeing the degrees exemplified even if they do have to hike home before all the business is transacted.

The usual detailed report concerning Homes is presented by the Board of Control.

The grand master makes a long report on the Iowa plan of Masonic world service. The grand lodge, after listening to the report, endorsed the project and concurred in the proposed project.

It appears from the report of the Committee on Jurisprudence that in 1917 the grand lodge by resolution, fixed its official title as F. & A. M. The change did not meet with universal approval, and the grand lodge upon recommendation of the committee restored the title of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons. The committee also reported favorably on a resolution requiring the grand secretary to call the roll of representatives just before the closing of the grand lodge and to report absentees to the lodges from which they hailed. The installation of officers and the reading of the records closed the session.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Oliver D. Street. He accords Illinois nearly four pages of topical analysis. He quotes Grand Master Wheeler on the question of military lodges, but refuses comment for the reason as he states, that his judgment and feelings conflict. Concerning clubs, he very pertinently asks, "Why create refuges for those who care nothing for the lodge?" He is pleased to note that the word "Masonic" for advertising purposes was prohibited. Concerning smoking in lodge, he remarks that it seems strange that smokers have to be forced to observe the ordinary rules of politeness.

Brother Street takes up the correspondence report of Charles H. Martin topically, and thinks that Brother Martin was a little too severe in his treatment of the Masons of South American Republics. He says—

We believe there are true and loyal Masons and Masonic bodies altogether regular and worthy of recognition in Central and South America. It should be our effort to find them, establish relations with them, and learn to understand them. Let us proceed carefully and yet without the narrow provincialism that has so often characterized us.

He makes a rather pointed charge that the roseate pictures drawn by grand masters and boards of trustees of Masonic Homes very often times camouflage the fact that the institution is badly managed or that it is unduly expensive, or that it threatens with an ever increasing burden of debt.

Brother Street does not hesitate to say just exactly what he thinks, and we cannot help but admire a man who has a mind of his own and the courage of his convictions, and who is not afraid to speak out in meetin'. If everybody agreed with everybody else, there would be no real progress in the world, and it would not be long until existenee would become so prosaic as to be hardly worth anything at all.

ALBERTA, A. F. & A. M.

The annual communication, the fourteenth in number, met in the city of Calgary in the Odd Fellows Temple on the 11th day of June, 1919. Immediately after the opening ceremonies, the grand master who is styled Most Worshipful Brother Dr. H. Darling, read an address of more than passing interest. He has considerable to say concerning the League of Nations and makes a plea for world fraternity. He issued twenty-three dispensations to attend church services in Masonic clothing. One dispensation was issued permitting the initiating of a candidate under twenty-one years of age. Concerning the general condition of Masonry, he makes the following comment—

Perhaps the thing which impressed me as most destructive, generally, was the spirit and work of that troublesome element known of old as "Pharisees." In Masonry men make large promises. They do so elsewhere, too, but with smaller audiences usually. They hear these promises repeated, Masonic ideals taught and repeated, and enlarged upon, and then suddenly a brother offends them. His offence is personal, and immediately forgetting their own weakness or weaknesses, they take high ground of offence. They write, and talk and enlarge, and storm, and again in act and work say as he of old "I thank Thee that I am not like other men, not like this publican." These Pharisees were the good men, the righteous men, the eminently superior men of their time, and the Master's words to them were like liquid fire—"Whited sepulchres," "Hypocrites," "Full of dead men's bones," "The publican and the harlot go into the Kingdom of Heaven before you."

During the year as a result of the fervent appeals of the grand master, the sum of $17,151 was added to the Benevolent Fund.

It appears that the grand lodge has prepared a new ritual which is being issued to the lodges of the jurisdiction, and is called the York Rite Masonry.

Concerning the question of physical qualifications, he refers to it as one of great complexity and observes that the subject should be dealt with cautiously and reasonable and certain allowances made.

A list of visitations submitted by the grand master shows that he was not unmindful of the lodges over which he was called to govern.

The reports of the district deputy grand masters which were made to the grand master are complete in every detail, and give evidence of the fact that the Grand Lodge of Alberta must have a very thorough system of district supervision. The grand secretary gives his general receipts as $9,227 and his expenditures $10,426.

The report of the grand secretary is a long document in which he enumerates in detail the principal business of the year. The grand lodge, according to the report, shows a net increase in membership of 565, while the total number of Master Masons at the present time is given as 8,922.

The grand librarian presents a report of more than passing interest from which the idea is gleaned that the grand lodge is making excellent progress in the matter of Masonic education. It is to be hoped that the good work will continue.

The grand lodge paused long enough in its services to hold a memorial hour in memory of the brethren from the jurisdiction who had died for king and country. One of the interesting reports presented came from the Committee on Fraternal Relations. It dealt with the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France. The committee gave a very careful review of the subject and recommended that fraternal intercourse be established with the Masons of France. The report of the committee, however, was laid on the table until the next meeting of the grand lodge.

The election and installation of officers was the last act of the session.

An interesting report on correspondence is made by H. Darling, chairman of the committee. He gives Illinois almost three pages of very generous treatment. He has many nice things to say concerning the address of Grand Master Austin H. Serigin, in 1918. He also quotes liberally from the correspondence report of that year. However, he juggles the name of the writer most seriously. In one place he calls him Delman D. Darrot; in another place he calls him Barrot. There are some more letters in the alphabet that might have been used but as long as he didn't call him Carrot or Parrot, we suppose he should be satisfied. However, we are very grateful to Brother Darling for the many nice things which he said.

ARIZONA, F. & A. M.

The proceedings open with some very attractive pages giving the list of Arizona Masons engaged in the war. The frontispiece of this honor roll is the American flag in colors. The grand secretary is to be congratulated upon the very pleasing manner in which he has arranged this subject matter.

Three hundred Masons of this jurisdiction enlisted in war service being ten percent of the total membership.

A half-tone picture adorns the proceedings, showing the grand lodge, in the act of laying the corner-stone of a new Masonic temple being erected in Flagstaff.

The thirty-sixth annual communication was held in the city of Tucson February 12. The roll call disclosed representatives of twenty lodges present out of a total of twenty-five. Past masters in Arizona must be accorded the privileges of the grand lodge, for there were a liberal number present.

The address of the grand master, Charles C. Wolfe, was quite lengthy and dealt with the many affairs which had come under his notice during the year. The grand master reports the gain in membership as the greatest in the history of the grand lodge. He states the financial condition of the craft to be unusually prosperous and utters a word of warning against extravagant expenditures of money. There were the usual number of requests to confer degrees by courtesy.

The grand master had some trouble with lodges down on the border visiting Mexican lodges. The matter, however, was satisfactorily adjusted. From the report it appears that a clandestine organization known as the American Masonic Confederation became quite active in Utah and threatened to spread into Arizona. Prompt efforts on the part of grand officers resulted in curbing the efforts of this spurious organization. The grand master reports the issuance of one dispensation for the formation of a new lodge and nine to confer degrees out of time.

A number of questions and answers are submitted under the head of decisions. One was to the effect that a lodge might use a limited amount of its funds in Red Cross work.

Concerning the question of clubs, the grand master had the following to say—

The idea of a Masonic Club, properly conducted, is most excellent and can produce most beneficent results, but like many other good things, if not properly handled, on right principles, may be the source of difficulties. In my judgment the organization of a Masonic Club in connection with each subordinate lodge, whenever the members of such a lodge are in a position to properly support the club entirely independent of the lodge, should be encouraged. I think it a mistake, however, to in any way make the club a parasite on the lodge. The former should be supported financially entirely separate from the latter and none of the lodge funds should be used to meet the expenses of the club. A great many such club organizations exist in connection with lodges in other states, and the consensus of opinion where they exist seems to be that they are beneficial not only to the members but to the lodge.

Arizona has a system of grand lecturers and deputy grand lecturers and every effort is being made to assist lodges in becoming proficient in their work.

The grand master interpreted the law so as to permit lodges to remit the dues of soldiers during the period of the war. A campaign to raise a fund for widows and orphans of the state was discussed by the grand master who recommended that action be postponed for the present.

The grand master reports much trouble with non-affiliated Masons, and recommends action which will either compel these drones to unite with lodges or keep away from Masonic activity.

Among the recommendations offered by the grand master, is one fixing an adequate fee to be paid grand lecturers for their services. The present amount allowed is three dollars a day. The report of the grand secretary reviews some of the principal transactions of his office.

He draws the sum of $50 per month for his services. The grand treasurer reports receipts of $4,500.00 and expenditures of $3,556.00. The total resources of the grand lodge are reported as $57,905.51.

Quite a long report is made by the grand lecturer wherein is discussed the general condition of the lodges visited and instructed. Of course this would be possible in Arizona with only twenty-five lodges. At a previous meeting a committee was appointed on the history of Masonry in Arizona. A report made to the grand lodge by this committee states that up to the present time nothing had been accomplished other than to receive from the grand matron of the Eastern Star a history of the organization of that body. Just what that has to do with Masonry in Arizona, is a matter of conjecture.

It is noticeable that in many of our grand lodges every little while, some fellow breaks in with a resolution, to print a history of the grand body, and publish same in book form.

There is a tremendous amount of money wasted in this respect. The average lodge or grand lodge history has neither literary nor historical value. Many Masons never take the trouble to open the pages of the book when sent them, gratis. A volume such as this, is only valuable to those Masons who make a business of creating libraries made up of proceedings of grand lodges, congressional records and hog reports; anything in the book line which is given away.

The report of the Committee on Necrology is extremely short covering a little over a half a page. A report such as this, would be extremely pleasing to our Illinois brethren, who complain so much at the dryness and the prosy character of obituary reports.

The Committee on Jurisprudence made a short report approving one of the grand master's decisions, but disapproving several others. It is apparent that the Committee on Jurisprudence does not propose to be subsidized by the grand master.

A resolution establishing the grand secretary's office in the Scottish Rite Temple at Tucson at a yearly rental of one hundred dollars was adopted, and a committee appointed to purchase proper furnishings. Evidently the grand lodge is not afraid of being contaminated by the higher bodies when it permits the grand secretary to have his office in a building owned and operated by the Scottish Rite. There is no report on foreign correspondence attached to the proceedings, instead there is a detailed report of work done in the lodges together with the present membership. A committee on foreign correspondence, however, made a short report approving certain acts of the grand master performed in connection with other grand jurisdictions.

ARKANSAS, F. & A. M.

The seventy-seventh annual communication was held in Grand Lodge Hall, Masonic Temple, in the city of Little Rock on Tuesday, November 19, 1918.

The grand lodge convened at 10:00 A. M. and after the usual opening formalities, the grand master, Milton Winham, presented his address. He opened with an extended discourse in which he spoke of Freemasonry historically and symbolically.

One corner-stone was laid during the year, that of a Methodist church. One past grand master, the venerable A. G. Washburn, passed to his reward.

The report of Charles C. Hunt, Grand Representative of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas, near the Grand Lodge of New York, is reported in full. Brother Hunt is one of those grand representatives who fulfills his duty to the best of his ability.

Grand Master Winham reports a long list of dispensations granted for various purposes. He comments on the fact that many lodges seem to hold to the idea that any man accepted for war service is good enough to be a Mason, and therefore, the grand master should waive all restrictions and ceremonials as much as possible and thereby expedite the process of making Masons. The grand master, however, was not easily stampeded, and laid down certain regulations which had to be followed where military considerations were urgent.

The grand master states that Arkansas did its full share of conferring degrees by courtesy.

Concerning trouble in lodges, the grand master ventures the suggestion that it would be much better if all lodges settled their differences privately rather than by making them public through lodge trials.

The grand master made several decisions. One was to the effect that it is not proper for a Mason to ask a lodge to make him an honorary member. He also decided that the charter of a lodge should always be present in the lodge room and that a visiting brother, after examination, had the right to demand to see the charter which must be present to answer this demand. The Committee on Masonic Law however, disapproved of the decision and reported that a visitor has not the right to demand to see the charter either before or after examination, and the grand lodge adopted the report of the committee.

Another decision which the grand master made and which received the approval of the grand lodge was to the effect that a lodge cannot accept the petition of a man who does not believe in the immortality of the soul. It is believed that in this last decision, the grand lodge of Arkansas has departed from the original plan of Masonry which contemplated a belief in God, but which left out of consideration all sectarian questions.

A large percentage of sincere, thoughtful, men do not believe in the immortality of the soul as is usually construed by the average churchman. Ask one hundred men to give you their conception or understanding of the immortality of the soul and one will be much surprised at the diversity of answers, and it will be quite impossible to reconcile many of them with the narrow idea usually held by the average denomination.

This is a question which must be left to the conscience of the individual. Our business as Masons is to live up to the moral standards and teachings of the fraternity, leaving the future to take care of itself.

The grand master made seven recommendations to the grand lodge, among them the following: That in the absence of the three principal officers, a past master in good standing, may officiate at a Masonic funeral; that the fees for the degrees, be not more than sixty dollars and not less than twenty-five; that the time limit over rejected material be reduced from five to one year; that in conferring degrees by courtesy one-half of the amount charged by the lodge having jurisdiction, shall go to the lodge doing the work. This provision, if adopted, would abrogate the idea of courtesy on the part of a lodge doing work for another, and makes the whole affair a business transaction.

The grand master makes eighteen suggestions to the grand lodge, all of which show him to be a thinking man with the best interests of the fraternity at heart. Many of his suggestions are excellent and ought to claim the attention of the grand lodge.

Dispensations for the formation of two new lodges were issued during the year. A little trouble was had with the Cerneau Rite but the grand master sent a letter to the lodges warning them against this spurious organization with the result that no further difficulty was experienced.

One thing the grand master did was to prepare a questionnaire which he sent to the district deputies to be filled out during lodge visitations. The purpose of this questionnaire was to arrive at some idea of the general condition of Masonry.

Now, if the grand lodge will take these reports, thoroly analyze them, and then start out after those lodges which are failing to maintain a proper standard, we may reasonably hope for a vast improvement in the general conditions of the lodges in the Arkansas jurisdiction.

Immediately following the address of the grand master, the grand representatives were assembled west of the altar and were accorded the grand honors of Masonry.

The report of the grand secretary, Fay Hempstead, is a complete resume of the affairs of his office. He states that the prosperity among the lodges has been unprecedented.

The grand treasurer gives his receipts as $39,677.90 and his expenditures $37,499.05.

The grand lodge fixed the mileage of representatives at six cents per mile one way, plus war tax, and the per diem at three dollars per day.

Greetings were sent to the Grand Orient of Belgium with which Arkansas has long been in fraternal relationship.

The Board of Trustees of the Masonic Home make a detailed report. The number of the children in the home at the present time, is eighty. On the evening of the first day, according to usual custom, the grand lodge held an open session, at which the Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star was present. The address was delivered by the grand orator, J. C. Pinnix. He had something to say about the war, but for the most part he applied the symbolism of the fraternity to present day life. He is to be commended for not having made any statements concerning the fraternity which would not bear the searchlight of truth. Following the address, the grand matron of the Eastern Star was introduced, and responded in a fitting manner.

A report on foreign correspondence, covering three and a quarter pages, was presented to the grand lodge. It was simply a brief review of the principal events in the Masonic world during the year just closed. This same committee, made an extended report on the question of recognizing the Grand Lodge of France. Immediately following its presentation, a motion was made that the Grand Lodge of France be recognized. An amendment was offered that the question of recognition be postponed, but that members in the service be permitted to fraternize with the Masons in France. A substitute was then offered and adopted that the subject be recommitted and a report made the next session of the grand lodge.

An amendment letting down the bars on physical qualifications, was presented and referred to a committee to report next year.

The installation of officers and the presentation of the jewel concluded the work of the grand lodge.

Arkansas offers no extended correspondence report, wherein each state is treated individually. There is, therefore, no way to judge the opinion which our brethren of the jurisdiction hold concerning the other jurisdictions about them.

Fay Hempstead, Secretary, Little Rock.

BRITISH COLUMBIA, A. F. & A. M.

1919

The City of Vancouver entertained the Grand Lodge of British Columbia on Thursday, June 19, 1919. It was the forty-eighth annual communication. The opening ceremonies were brief, after which the grand master, John Shaw, made a short address to the grand lodge. He speaks of the victory which has been achieved by the allied nations, and pays an extended tribute to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions.

Monroe C. Crawford, of Illinois, is mentioned with the date of his decease.

The grand master reports the usual number of dispensations, and reports the formation of one new lodge. He quotes ten rulings, the most of which pertain to physical qualifications. He says that he was unable to visit very many lodges owing to circumstances over which he had no control. His address covers just exactly six pages, and is one of the shortest grand master's addresses that has been received up to date.

The deputy grand master makes a brief report dealing almost exclusively with official visits made by him during the year.

The grand treasurer gives his receipts as practically $9,500 and his expenditures something in the neighborhood of $6,000.

The report of the grand secretary informs us in detail the various by-laws approved, as well as dispensations issued. One table in his report is interesting. It is a financial statement of the lodges of the jurisdiction, showing the funds and property held by them and the amount expended for charity. Eighty-two lodges show outstanding dues of $28,070.80. The increase in membership for the year was 12, and the present number of lodge members 7,963.

The reports of the district deputy grand masters are of more than passing interest and go much into detail concerning the various acts performed by them during the year.

The grand historian submits a report which deals altogether with the local history of the lodges of the jurisdiction. The Grand Lodge of British Columbia maintains no Masonic Home, but administers its charity quite generously through a committee.

The salary of the grand secretary was fixed at $1,800 a year.

A special committee on the reports of district deputy grand masters claims attention for the reason that the papers of these officers are very carefully gone over and all recommendations and suggestions arranged and presented to the grand lodge in a concrete form.

The principal business transacted at this meeting was largely routine. From the report on the installation of officers, the idea is gleaned that the district deputy grand masters are elected and installed the same as are other officers of the grand lodge.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by the Grand Secretary W. A. DeWolf Smith. He quotes very generously what Grand Master Serogin had to say concerning the recognition of the Masons of France. He apparently didn't like the idea of Grand Master Serogin visiting Corner Stone Lodge of Chicago and conferring the third degree on the grand master of the Odd Fellows, and suggests that probably next year the grand master of the Knights of Columbus will be selected for this honor.

Concerning the correspondence report which appeared in the proceedings of 1918, Brother Smith commented freely, and while he didn't agree with all that the correspondent had to say, yet he was disposed to give him credit for discussing some live subjects "forcibly and interestingly."

Dr. W. A. DeWolf Smith, G. S., New Westminster, B. C.

CALIFORNIA, F. & A. M.

1918

The annual communication was held in the city of San Francisco with representatives of three hundred twenty-seven chartered lodges present.

Prior to the opening ceremonies, the American flag was borne into the presence of the grand lodge by a sergeant of the United States Marine Corps, accompanied by a color guard. There is no reason why the presentation of the American flag should not be made a part of the opening ceremonies of all grand lodges and their constituents.

A telegram was read to the grand lodge announcing that Germania Lodge of Los Angeles had changed its name to Acacia Lodge, and hereafter would work in the English language.

William R. Harvey, presented a report as grand master which is an unusually interesting document. Like all grand masters, he has considerable to say about the war and its effect upon the lodges of the state. He reports constituting three new lodges and laying corner-stones of two high school buildings, and one Masonic temple. He also dedicated three Masonic temples. The grand master states that he issued large numbers of dispensations but confines himself to those sanctioned by law. He reports the net gain in membership to be 3991, the largest in the history of the grand lodge. He comments upon the general condition of the lodges of the state and calls attention to a considerable number that are eking out a precarious existence. He suggests as a remedy, that these weak lodges consolidate with their neighbors, thereby increasing the efficiency of the craft. He recommends that the grand lecturer and inspectors give this subject earnest consideration and where consolidations will be to the best interests of the fraternity, to see that they are carried out.

The grand master states to the grand lodge that the one thing which impressed him most during his year of office was the need for greater educational and social functions on the part of lodges. He rightly says that a lodge which devotes its time entirely to conferring degrees and is neglecting the educational and fraternal side of the fraternity, is shirking its responsibility. The grand master must have kept in pretty close touch with Masonic conditions, for he reports visiting over one hundred lodges during the year. He even went to the Hawaiian Islands and spent a delightful two months among the Masons of this outpost of American civilization.

The grand master reports an appeal made to him by the father of a boy who had died overseas that the body might be brought to this country and properly interred. The grand master failed in his efforts owing to the rules of the War Department which prohibit the transfer of bodies until after the close of hostility. He states, however, that the graves of all of those who died in England and Scotland are being carefully looked after by our Scotch and English brethren, an example of Masonic fraternity which is world wide.

Grand Master Harvey renders four exhaustive decisions. One of them is interesting. He decided that it was not proper for a grand lodge to dedicate a hall which is not owned or controlled by a Masonic lodge. We are disposed to agree most heartily with Brother Harvey in this decision. No grand lodge should dedicate to the uses of Freemasonry a room which is merely a commercial premise rented to various societies. The good Mason is always shocked at the desecration of places of Masonic meeting. The writer well remembers assisting in the dedication of a Masonic hall which seven years later passed out of the control of the fraternity and within three months the same hall was raided by the police because of a prize fight which was taking place in the room.

The grand master has considerable to say about the Masonic homes of the state. One-half million dollars is invested requiring an expenditure of ninety thousand in maintenance. The homes are at the present time facing a deficit of thirteen thousand dollars, which the grand master recommends being met by per capita tax in order that the deficiency may be covered. The war funds raised by the lodges of the state totals sixty-six thousand dollars, a small part of which was expended in various ways looking toward the assistance of the soldiers. The grand master refers to the many acts of kindness rendered by the Swiss Masons to the Masons of California, notwithstanding the fact that the Grand Lodge of California has been at no time in fraternal correspondence with the Grand Lodge of Switzerland.

California must have had some trouble with clandestine Masonry, for the grand master in his report made special mention of the services rendered by Henry Owens in stamping out this spurious clan.

Among the recommendations made to the grand lodge were the amending of the laws in such a manner as to require a stricter effort on the part of investigating committees in looking up proposed candidates, also requiring lodges to properly bond their secretaries and treasurers.

The grand master also recommended that no lodge be permitted to invest any of its funds in the purchase of lands or the erection of buildings without the consent of a majority of the members of the Finance Committee of the grand lodge.

The grand master has gone a little too far in this recommendation and is striking directly at the liberties of the lodge. Inasmuch as the lodge earns the funds which it expends, it has a right to state the way and manner that it desires to invest them without interference on the part of the grand lodge. The grand master recommended that the minimum dues for members of lodges be fixed at $9.00.

Good Heavens! Wouldn't the Masons of Illinois get up on their hindquarters and paw the air if somebody were to suggest fixing the annual dues at $9.00 per year? Bill Smith, who belongs to the lodge at Fourcorners and who has never paid over a dollar and a quarter per year annual dues, would immediately declare that something was radically wrong with the grand lodge and that there was a tremendous leakage somewhere if it was necessary to collect $9.00 from the members in order to keep going.

The conclusion of the grand master is long, but it is good. He sums up the activity of Masonry in the world and expresses the hope that having outlived many wars and revolutions, that it will continue to bless mankind long after the ravages of the present strife have been forgotten.

A detailed report of the War Fund collected by the grand lodge follows, which shows the total disbursements to have been $7,462. The report of the grand treasurer shows that he received from the grand secretary $73,220.93 and disbursed $77,740.29.

The grand secretary presents quite a long report in which he covers many details usually reported by the grand master. This shows that the grand secretary keeps in close touch with degrees conferred by courtesy, dispensations, approval of by-laws, and many other similar items. According to the report, twenty lodges in California have a membership of five hundred or more. In looking over the list of expenditures, it is noticed that the grand lodge has a grand organist paying him the munificent salary of $60.00 per annum.

The grand lecturer makes a report to the grand lodge which shows that that official has been thoroughly alert and attending to his duties. He states that he visited and instructed nearly every lodge in the state. He calls attention to the fact that he found officers and brethren having in their possession, cipher rituals issued by a publishing company in New York City, said books claiming to be the California work. It is believed that a little checking up in Illinois along the same line would cause somewhat of an awakening.

The report of the Masonic Temple Association, shows the debt on the Masonic temple at the present time to be $215,000, and because of the heavy interest charge, the temple is not at this time self-sustaining.

The report of the custodians of the Masonic home is a long one, and should bring to the Masons of California a clear idea of the situation of the fraternity in that state, as relates to Masonic charity.

The annual oration was delivered by Charles Victor, grand orator, in which he discussed the reconstruction of Freemasonry as a result of the late war.

And now comes the interesting event of the session showing how carefully the friends of French Masonry prepared the minds of the brethren for what was to follow. Just previous to the report of the Committee on French Masonry, a Frenchman and a member of one of the California lodges, sang the Marseillaise accompanied by organ and drum, then appeared a brother bearing the tricolor of France followed by the grand standard bearer of the grand lodge with the Stars and Stripes. Meeting at the altar, these two flags were crossed symbolizing the close union of France and the United States. Then followed a lengthy report from the committee. Just one paragraph will be quoted because of its truthfulness and for the reason that the information may be new to many brethren who honestly believe that Masonry today is just the thing as it was two hundred years ago or even in the time of Solomon the Wise. This is what the committee said—

Religious dogmatism was not introduced into Masonry until 1760, when the Holy Bible was, on motion of Preston, made a landmark, and as dear as this alleged landmark is to the hearts of American Masons, we can not thrust outside the pale of brotherhood good men and true who have not followed this innovation in the body of Masonry. The form and nature of our rituals as the same have developed through the years have operated to fix in the minds of English-speaking Masons the belief that Masonry is a religious institution, and that the Bible is a necessary part of the furniture of a Masonic lodge, yet the ritual itself is not fundamental, and "its biblical nature is largely due to the chance that made its chief compilers a French Huguenot and a Scotch Presbyterian. . . . This holy and apparently indispensable book is quite unnecessary for the validity of a lodge which is neither Christian nor Jew." If there has been a departure from the Ancient Constitutions, we, and not our French brethren, have drawn away from them and asserted a dogmatic landmark.

The result was that the Grand Lodge of California voted unanimously to recognize the Grand Lodge of France as well as the Grand Orient of France when it receives assurances that the latter organization is not invading the jurisdiction of any regular American Grand Lodge.

The report of the Masonic Employment Bureau of San Francisco is interesting. Two thousand six hundred and ninety applied for positions. All of them with the exception of fifty-five were furnished employment.

The Los Angeles Board of Masonic Relief gives a long list of Masons who died in that vicinity and were given Masonic attention. Sixteen were from the state of Illinois.

In the list of disbursements, the report shows that $722.78 were expended in the care of Illinois Masons and their families, but the board were only reimbursed to the amount of $549.14.

The following extract is taken from the report of the Committee on Finance. No comment is offered by the writer for the reason that he knows nothing of the circumstances.

Your committee has had under consideration the claim of El Centro Lodge No. 384, of El Centro, for reimbursement for expenses amounting to $252.20 incurred for the relief of Brother Isaac Harry Todd, a member of Gothic Lodge No. 852, of East St. Louis, State of Illinois.

It appears from the correspondence that Brother Todd was brought to the hospital in El Centro with a serious case of dropsy, that the officers of El Centro Lodge wired Gothic Lodge of the serious condition of the brother, and received an answer to give Brother Todd whatever assistance they deemed necessary and draw a draft on Gothic Lodge for the amount. El Centro Lodge followed instructions to the letter, but when the draft was drawn for the balance due for $252.20, payment was refused, and El Centro Lodge has ever since been trying to secure the refund of the above amount.

Our grand secretary has written the grand secretary of Illinois in regard to this matter, but so far no reply has been received. The date of the grand secretary's letter being September 20th, 1918. We offer the following resolution and recommend its adoption:

Resolved, That El Centro Lodge No. 384 be reimbursed in the sum of $252.20, being the amount of indebtedness incurred for the relief of Brother Isaac Harry Todd, a member of Gothic Lodge No. 852, of East St. Louis, State of Illinois.

The Committee on Jurisprudence agreed with the grand master in nearly all of his decisions and recommendations. The committee, however, did not like the idea of the Finance Committee of the Grand Lodge regulating the purchasing powers of lodges, and reported adversely on the proposition. One of the best papers presented to the grand lodge was from the Committee on Masonic Education. We wish that space permitted quoting it in full, because it shows the vital necessity of those lodges which are merely degree mills changing their policy if they expect to be of any use in the world. In order to propagate Masonic education the committee suggested the following plans—

First: That lodges throughout this jurisdiction co-operate with the United States Government by inviting at frequent intervals, members of the fraternity who are enrolled as "Four Minute Men" to address them. Application can readily be made in most practical fashion of the duties as we owe as Masons and citizens. We can thus perform a patriotic duty and give to our gatherings an added interest.

Second: That lodges throughout this jurisdiction organize a corps of Masonic speakers, following the same system as that employed by the Four Minute Men's organization, but devoted to the discussion of purely Masonic subjects.

Third: That lodges throughout this jurisdiction hold meetings now and then to be known as a "Masonic Forum," where an address will be given, followed by a general discussion.

Fourth: That joint meetings be held by several lodges in a community, to be addressed by some well informed Mason. We believe that the influence of such meetings will result in immeasurable good.

Fifth: That the Committee on Masonic Education exercise a helpful influence toward all lodges who desire their counsel and co-operation. That this committee shall foster and encourage throughout this jurisdiction, the study and research of Masonic history, law, philosophy and especially the dominant purposes of this institution.

The grand lodge wrestled with the group plan of initiation. Quite a lengthy report was made by a committee on the subject which finally concluded with the statement that Masonry wanted quality and not quantity. As a result, an amendment was offered prohibiting lodges from conferring more than three degrees at one meeting and requiring a lapse of one month between the time of the degrees. The amendment, however, was not adopted. An amendment to the effect that a daughter of a deceased Master Mason shall not be entitled to relief after reaching the age of twenty-one, was defeated. The age limit is unknown to Masonic charity. An amendment reducing the age limit on candidates was defeated. An amendment was offered prohibiting any lodge from spending more than $35.00 for a past master's jewel and not more than $10.00 for a floral piece for a deceased brother, and the grand lodge promptly voted them both down. This was simply another attempt to meddle in the private affairs of lodges.

The installation of officers and presentation of a bronze clock to the retiring grand master, closed the session.

The report on correspondence is presented by John Douglas Murphy. He follows the topical plan which Edward Cook of Illinois, used when correspondent for this state. The principal items which he discusses are things growing out of the war, and their reception and treatment by the various grand lodges. The topical plan as followed by Brother Murphy has been frequently tried out, but for some reason correspondents hark back to the established plan of considering each state individually.

CANADA, A. F. & A. M.

The 63d annual communication was held in the city of Windsor, Ontario, July 17-18, 1918. The mayor of the city welcomed the grand lodge and the grand master responded. The Committee on Credentials reported 327 lodges represented out of a total of 463, and the number of votes accredited 1,478. The grand master, W. H. Wardrobe, presents an address covering 14 printed pages. In his opening remarks he alludes to the 66,000 Freemasons in Canada and the honor which he feels in presiding over this splendid body of men. He commends the work which Freemasons have done in the great war, and believes it to be one of the reasons why so many men are seeking to join the fraternity at the present time. The grand master states that the receipts of the grand lodge were $5,452, an increase of $19,560 over the previous year. The total assets of the grand lodge are given at a quarter of a million. Five hundred and ninety-three dispensations were issued, of which 230 were for the purpose of conferring degrees within time limit upon enlisted men. A hundred were to attend divine services. Forty-five rulings and decisions are reported by the grand master. Most of these decisions appear to be merely constructions of local law and in them there is nothing out of the ordinary. The grand master states that he made fifty official visitations, and found the craft to be in a harmonious condition, full of patriotism and endeavoring to uphold the teachings of the fraternity. The grand treasurer reports disbursements of $82,258 of which $34,000 was in benevolence.

From the report of the grand secretary it is learned that dispensations were issued for the formation of six new lodges while eight lodges were formally dedicated. The grand secretary keeps an accurate record of all dispensations issued and the purposes for which granted. One report which is presented is of more than passing interest. It is on the condition of Masonry. It is a very able document and contains many excellent things for the delectation of the Masons of Canada. Concerning physical qualifications the following observation is made—

And shall we for any obsolete operative doctrine of physical perfection (not an ancient landmark), debar these glorious men, on their return, maimed and wounded in our cause from participation in our rites, from entry within our portals? Grand lodge should consider this immediately. Our house is like the church—not made with hands—first, the natural and afterwards that which is spiritual. Freemasonry the freest of all methods of thought cannot be bound by unamendable rules of Medes and Persians. New occasions teach new duties; evolution is not revolution. Let us weigh ourselves in the balance with those who returning say with one “Keeper of the House” gone.

Concerning a closer friendship between Great Britain and America the following is stated—

To make peace with this awful thing unconquered, would be treason. Their victory would be a reversal to mediævalism, our civilization would fall back to the condition of the jungle. And let us remember that Canada is the stake. This is a moment fraught with fate, so let us determine our wills and highly resolve that our dead shall not have died in vain, that we will support and strengthen to the end those war-worn and heroic soldiers who bear the brunt of the conflict, who are in jeopardy every hour, who die daily; who have written pages of chivalrous and happy warriors, American and British, now standing shoulder to shoulder, foot to foot, in one column of mutual defence and support. Their spirit of comradeship will endure long after the trumpets sound the paens of victorious peace. British, Canadian and American Masons have been drawn very close together during the past year and the interchange of fraternal visits has cemented friendship and confirmed mutual regard. Canadians have been especially honored for the sake of those God-inspired and death-defying men, the spirit of whose unconquerable soul permeates, feels, invigorates, vitalizes, unifies the Army Corps of Canadians, who for four long years have fought a good fight, have never budged, and have not yet finished their course. And for ourselves let us win goodwill by good faith, good fellowship, good words, and good works.

In some countries Masonry is honored for the enemies she has made, but in ours, for the friends.

The committee express great pleasure at the deliverance of Jerusalem for they say—

An historical event of momentous import to Masons was the deliverance of Jerusalem from the oppression of the Turks, whose Armenian atrocities quite equal those of their allied miscreant murderers. The entrance of General Allenby on foot at the head of the British army was significant—"Do you come in peace?" "I come in peace," and he entered within the gates of the Holy City. No shot was fired, no clash of arms, no ring of metal heard. That the Union Jack, with its Christian crosses floats over the Hill of Hills, and the "Land of the Two Rivers," and that Joppa is a British naval base with the Red Cross admiral's flag flying, is a source of supreme satisfaction to all nations, save that trinity of iniquity whose destructive power for evil must be exterminated root and branch. In Jerusalem, as elsewhere, what we have we'll hold, as a sacred trust and a pledge of the just and lasting peace which we shall achieve and cherish. This is the last crusade. It is worth remembering in our dark days that not one inch of British soil is in the hand of the Hun.

There is much else in this report which commends itself to the reader. But we must pass on. M. W. W. McFerson, grand master of Michigan was present and was accorded the grand honors of Masonry. A cable was sent to King George V conveying greetings and a pledge of allegiance. Practically the last business of the session was the report of the Special Committee on the Grand Master's Address. This report resembles very much that of the Committee on Jurisprudence in Illinois for the various acts and rulings of the grand master were passed upon and their validity adjudged. Practically the last thing the grand lodge did was to send a telegram of sympathy to Colonel Roosevelt because of the death of his gallant Quentin Roosevelt.

The report on foreign correspondence is made by A. T. Freed and Illinois receives two pages of courteous review. The principal acts of our grand lodge were recited without comment. He replies to Charles H. Martin by saying that the Grand Lodge of Canada permits dual membership and asks "if there is such a thing as a landmark in Masonry is not dual membership a landmark?"

COLORADO, A. F. & A. M.1918

The 58th annual meeting was held in the city of Denver, Tuesday, September 17, 1918. The grand lodge was opened after which the American flag and the standard of the allied countries were duly presented with appropriate music and addresses. After this very interesting and inspiring ceremony the roll of deceased grand masters was called and as each name was announced the grand master made an appropriate response. At the roll call of grand representatives which immediately followed, Illinois was responded to by William W. Cooper. The address of the Grand Master L. D. Crain, shows him to be alert and attentive to his duties. He opens with references to the war. He reports the purchase of $10,000 worth of Liberty bonds and expresses the regret that his activities in war service prevented him from visiting as many of the lodges of the state as he would like to have done. The list of dispensations which he issued is an extremely long one. Most of them appear to have been to cover conditions growing out of the war.

A number of dispensations were refused showing that the grand master did not grant every request that came to him. He takes occasion to give dilatory secretaries a rap in the following—

There is one dark spot, however, on the white page, and this may account in some measure for the condition of the craft in certain lodges. Some of our secretaries either do not appreciate the value of promptness, or they do not have the welfare of the institution at heart. It requires our grand secretary to write several letters and even to use the telegraph wires or the telephone in order to get some secretaries to file their reports. This means several days, and sometimes weeks, of delay as well as an expenditure of time and funds. A good, live secretary is the life of a lodge. Permit me to suggest to our representatives that they insist on the secretaries doing their work promptly. If they refuse, then see to it that some brother is elected who will. I would suggest further that in writing for a dispensation the secretaries comply with Section 145 of the Book of Constitutions. It will save the grand master a great deal of time.

Two grand masters died during the year, the funeral services being conducted by the grand lodge, a procedure which the writer looks upon as eminently proper.

It too often happens that an officer of a grand body dies and his funeral is left to the care of his lodge and immediate friends. In the case of grand officers and past grand officers it is fitting that the grand officers of the grand lodge be convened and the expenses of those in attendance paid. Four corner-stones were laid by the grand master during the year, three were of high school buildings and one a federal structure. One decision was made in answer to a question whether sitting in a Chapter of the Eastern Star constituted sufficient evidence to vouch for a man as being a Master Mason. The grand master decided no.

Of course he couldn't say anything else and keep within the provinces of the ancient regulations of the fraternity. There are, however, members of the society who are so assiduous in their devotion to the Eastern Star that not only would they have said yea to the question proposed but would even make membership in the Twinkler society prerequisite to Masonic standing. The grand master advanced the thought that owing to the large amount of work incurred by reason of the war lodges were justified in exacting compensation where work was done by courtesy. Concerning the Masonic Research Committee, appointed at the last meeting of the grand lodge, the grand master states that no appropriation having been made to finance the project desirable progress in the enterprise had not been made.

An edict was issued by the grand master lifting the ban on French Masonry to the extent that Colorado Masons in overseas service were permitted to fraternize with French Masons. The grand master declined to issue permission to form a military lodge, for the reason that it was impossible to so organize the Colorado units, as to insure sufficient candidates to maintain a military lodge, also, because the laws of jurisdiction should be safeguarded. The grand master shows himself to be very sound on this proposition. The grand master reports that the State Council of Defense submitted to the various fraternal orders a flag presentation ceremony, and asked that it be considered by the custodian of the work. Grand Master Pane was also solicited to join in the Salt Lake City proposition for a universal Masonic emblem. He submitted the proposition to the grand lodge for their disposition. The grand treasurer reports receipts of $31,894 and disbursements of $25,149, showing that the grand lodge is operating at a substantial profit.

The report of the grand secretary, Charles H. Jacobson, is largely numerical. The present membership is given at 20,245. The net increase for the year was approximately 1,100. An amendment requiring the grand lecturer to instruct and examine lodge officers in the laws of Masonry was reported on by the Committee on Jurisprudence, who held that to pass such an amendment would be to interfere with the present laws regulating the duties of the grand lodge.

The Grand Lodge of Colorado does not maintain a home or otherwise indulge in institutional charity. It does, however, create a substantial benevolent fund from which it paid relief during the year in 22 individual cases to the amount of $2,080.

The question of recognizing the Grand Lodge of France was brought up and action deferred for one year. The report of the Committee on Necrology is a long one, and is embellished with half-tone portraits of prominent Masons who died during the year. A short spiey oration was delivered by Marshall H. Van Fleet. A proposition to erect monuments to two deceased past grand masters recommended that the plan to erect a suitable statue in some civic city of Denver, in memory of Henry M. Teller be deferred for the present, but that in the case of John Chivington, who lies in an unmarked grave that the grand lodge authorize the erection of a marker in keeping with the Masonic standing of the deceased. Three members of the Jurisprudence Committee made a report giving the grand master a clean bill of health except as to dispensations issued. On this subject, the committee divided, two members presenting a majority report and one, a minority report. The minority report, which found fault with some of the dispensations issued was adopted by the grand lodge. A resolution was approved providing for the appointment of five to make inquiry as to the advisability of terminating fraternal relations with the various grand lodges in the German empire.

The grand lodge waived the per capita tax on all soldiers and sailors exempted by their lodges from the payment of dues. The proposition to adopt a universal Masonic emblem did not find favor with the grand lodge and went into the discard. The custodians of the work reported that they had not sufficient time to give the flag ceremonial proper consideration and asked that the subject be laid over for one year. The Committee on Masonic Research suggested a plan of libraries, study clubs and lectures as a means to the desired end. It is pleasing to note in the list of appointed officers the name of James L. Goodheart as grand chaplain. Jim is an old Bloomington, Ill., boy. If the writer remembers correctly he made him a Master Mason. Jim Goodheart gave up many of those things in life which are dear to the average man and devoted his energies to the upbuilding of fallen mankind. He has done a noble work and in his selection as grand chaplain the Grand Lodge of Colorado made merited recognition.

The report on foreign correspondence is in the hands of a committee of which Stanley C. Warren is chairman. Illinois comes in for four pages of commendatory remarks. The principal transactions of our 1917 meetings are recited with liberal quotations from the address of Grand Master Wheeler. There is neither comment or criticism in the report from which we may draw the conclusion that our Colorado brethren are well satisfied with the way we are condueting Masonry in the state of Illinois.

CONNECTICUT, F. & A. M.

On February 5, 1919, the one hundred and thirty-first annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut was opened in the city of Hartford.

Following the report of the Committee on Credentials, the grand master, William F. English, read his annual address. Like all grand masters, he has something to say concerning the war and refers to the interment of Old John Barley Corn. In referring to a saloonless nation in 1920, he makes the comment, "Surely God reigns." He commends the George Washington Memorial Association and reports the constitution of one new lodge during the year. He reports in full the account rendered by the nine district deputy grand masters. He speaks of the interest manifested, "in our revised ritual," from which it is apparent that the Grand Lodge of Connecticut has been fixing up its ritual in the most approved fashion. It is refreshing to find a grand lodge which does not regard the ritual as the sine qua non of Freemasonry. The purpose of the ritual is merely to convey the teachings of the fraternity. It is not a sacred thing which King Solomon gave to the world as many seem to suppose and which has been handed from time immemorial in its present form. All the ritual that we have is the work of the last hundred years and is simply an amplification of the very simple ceremonies employed in the year 1717 when the present system of Masonry took definite form.

The grand master issued 154 dispensations. He refused all requests from lodges to confer degrees on Sunday and declined to permit the initiation of candidates under age. He is evidently a believer in the old law of physical perfection, for he says that a grand master cannot supply a bodily deficiency.

He decided that a contribution from the funds of a lodge for the benefit of the Red Cross was within the bounds of Masonic charity and was proper. His decision on this subject is correct.

Within the bounds of reason and prudence it is the province of the lodge to determine the objects of its charity. The limits of Masonic charity have never been defined and our ritual itself forcibly teaches us that the whole world has a claim upon us. Therefore, I believe as far as Masonic law and custom is concerned the lodge is justified in making a reasonable contribution to these causes.

The grand master found time to visit a number of the lodges of his jurisdiction. It is a matter of regret that grand masters are not so situated that they can devote a major portion of their time to calling upon the various lodges under their care. The craft like to see the grand master, and a world of good could be accomplished were it possible for this officer to maintain a personal touch with the lodge officers of his jurisdiction.

One Connecticut lodge working in a foreign language, advised the grand master that during the period of the war they would work in English, but that when peace came, they would return to their usual routine. The grand master, however, was not satisfied and recommended that all lodges in the jurisdiction be required to use the English language.

Grand Masters' Day at the Masonic Home appears to be quite an event, and partakes of the nature of Masonic and patriotic rally. This year the grand chaplain made a splendid address on Masonry and the World War.

The Order of the Eastern Star in Connecticut seems to have the grand lodge pretty well under its management. The grand master in his address rejoices at its growth and prosperity and speaks of its principles and practices as "powerfully reinforcing and supporting our Masonic life and institution." He advises every lodge to encourage the formation of a chapter within its jurisdiction.

Connecticut finds itself in need of more funds to sustain its Masonic Home, and the grand master recommends an increase in the per capita tax of 25 cents, making the total amount $1.50.

The deputy grand master makes a report concerning his social activities. He shows himself, however, to be thoroughly observant of conditions among the lodges. One of his recommendations is that the grand lodge take action looking to ritualistic abbreviation. Owing to the appalling amount of work which is being done by the lodges in Connecticut, he says "Why not have one hold the horns of the goat, and the rest gain wisdom thereby?" This is the identical thing that the writer has been contending for in Illinois, but has been unable to get even a fair hearing on the matter due to the fact that Masonry in the state is so saturated with ritualism that it is impossible for the average Mason to separate ritualism and Masonry.

The grand treasurer gives his receipts as $41,373 and his disbursements approximately $47,000.

The grand secretary makes quite a long report in which he presents in detail many affairs which came under his notice during the year. He gives the net gain at 1,245 and the present membership 29,417.

A special committee on the George Washington Memorial Association recommended the appropriation of $100 for the purpose of a membership in that organization.

A long report is made by what is termed the War Board. The New York conference is fully discussed and the Iowa plan of a Masonic Service Association endorsed.

A recommendation of the grand master regarding the conferring of the degrees by courtesy wherein he suggested that when this is done the lodge for which the work is performed be required to forward a copy of its by-laws for the candidate to sign, was approved by the Committee on Jurisprudence. The committee also agreed with the grand master that hereafter all lodges be required to work in the English language.

The election and installation of officers and a short report from the Committee on Memorials, closed the session.

The report on correspondence is prepared by George A. Kies, past grand master. He has been very generous to Illinois and enumerated the principal transactions of our meeting held in October, 1918. From the correspondence report of that year, he takes nearly three pages of extracts, and in the main, agrees with the various remarks which he quotes.

The proceedings for the most part are printed in Spanish, there is, however, a short appendix in which the report of the grand master, the grand secretary, and the opening words of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence are printed in English. The annual communication was held in the Habana. The grand master opens with a reference to the war, speaking as follows—

Without departing from reality and always thinking upon the actual selfishness of society, we can say, being far from error, that the Pontiff of the Catholic Church, the sapient Leo XIII, one of the best prepared of his time, saw clearly when in his last and wise encyclical letter to the catholic world he said: "humanity follows the track of a near ruin on account of her egotism and struggle to obtain the hegemony of some nations upon others.' Truly, my dear brethren, the horrors of the actual war, her consequences and the results fully observed by us, make us to be just with the foresight of the illustrious man who wore the pontifical crown: man follows an infernal path and it is necessary to be prepared to repel its evils.

He reports the formation of seven new lodges and the constituting of eight. He advises that the Grand Lodge of Cuba has recognized the Grand Lodge of Panama, also that of the Philippine Islands. He also reports the loaning of limited sums of money to lodges to assist them in the construction of places of meeting. He also reports that the library founded by the grand lodge is rapidly taking shape and bids fair to become something really worth while. The widow of a deceased Mason gave the grand lodge a set of books, the number being 480. He states that every effort had been made to maintain fraternal relations with the grand lodges of the world. He commends the Masonic press, urges proper recognition of the festivals of St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist. He states that all calls for charity have been promptly responded to and that the record of the grand lodge in the matter of benevolence is one of which it may well feel proud. The grand secretary gives the receipts of the year at $19,014 and the expenditures $17,893. There are at the present time 113 lodges on the island of Cuba with a total membership of 8,776. The grand lodge paid out for beneficences $619.00 while the lodges of the jurisdiction paid $9,721.00. The 15th day of February of each year has been set apart by the grand lodge as a special day of mourning. The cause of the mourning is not given.

The report of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence is printed in full because it is unique and it mirrors the fraternity of the world as it is viewed by one who is working out Masonry, as he understands it, on the distant island of Cuba—

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON CORRESPONDENCE

(Preamble)

The European war continues to be for Masons a touchstone; it was England that yesterday struck the note excusing the German brethren residing in her territory and affiliated with English lodges from attendance to the meetings of their respective lodges. The measure was somewhat radical but it was also reasonable, to avoid friction, but the measures responded to by Germany as represalies do not look at all as of a Masonic character. The Grand Master of Vermont speaks largely of them in his address, and to him we are indebted for our knowledge of the attitude of the German press and craft. Our brethren from the Rhine have announced that henceforth they will have nothing to do with Masons belonging to the allied nations.

"English Masonry, they say, is too vain, French Masonry meddles with politics and the rest of Latin Masonry is not worthy at all." It was but yesterday that German philosophers recognized the superman, today they create the supermason, with time German Masons will imitate the Moors and will yell very loud: "Alah is the only God and the Kaiser his prophet."

War may do some good to Masonry nevertheless. Many soldier Masons from America, asked from their own grand lodge letters of dispensation to form lodges ascribed to their regiments in the field of war, as the English do, but as very few grand masters accepted their petitions, reaction has been produced in the form of an approachment to French Masons, more yet, there are some grand masters authorized by their respective grand lodges, ready to recognize French Masonic bodies as soon as they replace the Bible on their altars while other grand lodges have accorded their members the right to visit French lodges, neverminding the lack of mutual recognition between the two grand lodges. The ease is not so simple as many brothers think since as the Supreme Council of France A. A. S. R. is in amity with those of the United States and the American grand lodges not, the resulting reality is unbearable. We shall hear very soon of many things that as they said of the Cid, will make the stones talk.

During the past year a modest Latin Mason, the grand master of an insignificant grand lodge, gave away the idea of holding a Masonic reunion among the nations of America, with tendencies of a peaceable nature. The plan was circulated to all, for the benefit of Anglo Saxon brethren the letter was translated into some language similar to English that they may have understood it. The answers soon began to arrive: some, very few grand masters, accepted the idea and applauded it; some thought it most inopportune and the majority with more or less courtesy refused it. But it has not been long since a Masonic publication of the Great Republic, the youngest and, perhaps the best of all of them, The Builder, the organ of the National Masonic Research Association, gave out a well studied plan about a similar thing; of course it does not say whether any poor Cuban devil thought of it before, but as the child already has an Anglo Saxon stepfather, it may perhaps succeed and any where any discussion may rise out of it, no matter whether the true mother, Cuba, may be mentioned or not. Oh men, as Turgot said, "perhaps many of you are not worthy of Liberty!"

We have left for the last place, purposely, something very nearly related to us. Formerly, when we only inserted our official documents in Spanish, the American brothers asked for them in English, last year we published them not only in English but in French too, now while some brothers acknowledge them and have for us consoling and friendly phrases many of the others, charged with the reporting of foreign doings, only excuse themselves by saying that they did not receive them or that they have arrived too late to look them over. We must be convinced that always large fishes swallow the smaller ones!

But matters do not end here, there is a brother named Atkinson, from West Virginia, who told us in the past year that we should write in English because brothers over there neither knew Spanish nor cared to know it. We have to state here that we translate our documents for the good understanding of all, but in the special section set apart for West Virginia we told him that his phrases were discourteous and antifraternal; but think what a surprise for us when in reviewing the last proceedings from West Virginia, just arrived, to see Bro. Atkinson deny our statements and mention that what we had said was because we knew as much English as he did Spanish. It may be so, we never presumed of being an English scholar, but let the said Bro. A. know that, whatever the language may be, his phrases are disrespectful in a large scale and, even if he slight us, we have again inserted this year our English version, may we or may we not know English, but let it be known that Bro. A. entirely forgot the respect due to a brother Mason.

But the best of the affair is that the Anglo Saxon acuteness and prevision failed at his time, because Bro. A. instead of referring in his answer to the year before last proceedings, directs his answer to last year's, which contain a most different matter not mentioned at all by us, and did it at a time before the last proceedings had time enough to reach us. But Cuba does not care for it, she fully opens her arms to embrace all, mistaken as we may be or not we have for all loving and friendly words and we do care to know English that we do not let it go over when any brother goes beyond the frontiers of due courtesy and fraternity.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, F. A. A. M.

The 108th annual communication of the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia was held December 18, 1918. The grand lodge was opened at 7 o'clock in the evening. The first business of importance was the address of the grand master, Lem Towers, Jr. He commences with extended references to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions. He presents a table showing the condition of the craft in the District of Columbia, covering a period of ten years, disclosing a growth which is most gratifying, the net increase in membership being nearly 3,000. Considering the small number of lodges in the District of Columbia, this ought to prove highly satisfactory to the Masons of that section. One decision is reported which is rather unique. A brother declared that in balloting for a petitioner, who had been rejected that he was afraid that he had inadvertently dropped a black ball into the receivable, which he did not intend to do. The master made inquiry of the grand master whether on the statement of the brother he could respread the ballot. But the grand master decided that there is no power in the master or the grand master to order the retaking of the ballot, at a subsequent communication, and cited Mackey as his authority.

It cannot be doubted but that many lodges resort to all sorts of subterfuge in order to gain a reballot on the rejected candidates, whom they desire to get into the lodge. As a result, grand masters are frequently importuned to respread the ballot. It might be that a fast rule, such as laid down by the grand master of the District of Columbia would have a tendency to check some of the carelessness in balloting, as well as put a stop to the frequent attempts to railroad rejected candidates into the lodge.

The grand master was generous in issuing dispensations for the initiation of soldiers. His report of the activities in relation to the various war funds, Liberty Loans, and War Savings stamps shows that the brethren of the district, cannot be charged with neglect of duty. The grand master made an appeal to the Masons of Washington to open their homes and to furnish beds and breakfast for soldier Masons who happened to be in the city and were unable to secure accommodations elsewhere. Another good thing which the Masons of the District of Columbia did was to raise a fund to send boys home who were fortunate enough to secure a furlough and who did not have the necessary funds available. It is noteworthy that in but two exceptions, the money advanced, was returned immediately, when payday came.

The grand master approved many requests to confer degrees by courtesy. He also commends the Masonic Employment Bureau, which has been doing a splendid work in looking after those without positions. He asked the grand lodge to appropriate $1,000 and fix a per capita tax of five cents in order to sustain the work. He made many visitations, and would have called upon more of the lodges had it not been for the flu epidemic which closed up everything for an indefinite period. The Masonic and Eastern Star Home is commended and the George Washington Memorial Association, favorably mentioned. Attention is called to the Association of Worshipful Masters, and the splendid work that is being done by that organization in upholding the standards of Freemasonry.

One thing the association did was to pull off a baseball game, the proceeds amounting to $4,700 which went to the Endowment Fund of the Masonic Home.

The report of the grand secretary is purely financial. The receipts of the grand lodge from various sources were $18,255. The disbursements $16,929. The grand lecturer states in his report that the year has been an extremely busy one owing to the tremendous amount of work in the lodges. One reason for his being so busy is to be found in the fact that he visited twenty-nine lodges and conferred the Past Master's Degree on brethren who had been called to preside over their lodges. It is rather surprising that there are lodges which still indulge in the folly of conferring the Past Master's Degree. The report of the librarian shows that 4,389 books were loaned during the year and the number of readers was 297. This is a most excellent showing, and proves that Masonic libraries are really worth while when the right sort of reading matter is provided. The rents accruing from the Masonic Temple are given at $52,000 and the expenditures approximately $48,000. There is a debt on the temple of $282,000 showing that the grand lodge has its hands full in making the temple pay for itself. A good report is made by the manager of the Masonic Employment Bureau. Five hundred and seven positions were secured out of a total number of 731 applicants. Two hundred and forty of the positions were clerical. The grand lodge holds a meeting on St. John's day at which routine business is transacted, officers elected and installed. Such a meeting was held December 27. There is however, nothing of unusual interest to chronicle in connection with this particular meeting. The report on correspondence is prepared by Geo. W. Baird, past grand master. Illinois receives very generous treatment. The address of Grand Master Austin H. Serigin is reviewed in a concise and impartial manner. Concerning the amendment presented to the grand lodge, concerning physical qualifications, Brother Baird thinks that it is a departure from landmarks and a dangerous precedent.

In taking up the report on correspondence presented last year he inquires whether the correspondent is a seafaring man, for the reason that the word Del Mar means "of the sea." The possessor of the cognomen Delmar has had many interpretations placed upon that particular name but this interpretation is a new one. Bro. Baird says that the writer is not correctly informed as to French Masonry. For the reason that between the Grand Orient and the Grand Lodge of France, jurisdiction is concurrent. The writer admits that there is a whole lot about Masonry in France that he doesn't understand and can't find out about. Brother Baird said very many kindly things about the Illinois correspondence report of last year, all of which is fully appreciated. He says that our essay on physical qualifications is logical, but that we cannot admit cripples nor mutilated men, without violating landmarks on which the authorities have all agreed. We would like to say much more concerning Brother Baird's report but we have already passed our limitations.

ENGLAND, A. F. & A. M.

The Grand Lodge of England holds quarterly communications. It does not issue any regular book of proceedings, but following each assembly, there is issued a small pamphlet giving in detail the various items of business that were transacted. The communication under consideration was held on the 4th day of September 1918.

The Board of Benevolences made a report which shows the very generous manner in which the grand lodge takes care of its dependents. If the report is understood correctly, one widow received $400 and another $800. The Board of General Purposes which is charged with the regulation of general affairs make one of their characteristic reports. They speak of the ever growing desire for closer intercourse between the United Grand Lodge of England and other grand lodges of the world. English lodges are cautioned against receiving petitions from Americans for the reason that they are very likely to violate the Masonic laws of American lodges. This is also made to apply to brethren applying for affiliation for the reason that America does not recognize dual lodge membership such as in vogue in England. The board report a rather peculiar condition arising from the lack of gold thread and the embargo placed by the English government on this article. For this reason a resolution was submitted permitting brethren to appear in grand lodge and provincial and district grand lodges in other than full Masonic dress.

At this meeting the grand lodge indulged in much discussion concerning the practice of making Masons in English lodges of those whose residence happened to be in other parts of the world. Forms were submitted for the proposal of candidates for the degrees as well as a form of application to be filled out by the petitioner.

At a quarterly meeting held on the 14th day of December, 1918, business of considerable importance was transacted. The Board of Benevolence announced the distribution of funds amounting to almost $8,000.

The Board of General Purposes called attention to the proposition for a fitting Masonic celebration of the signature of peace when that is accomplished. A member of the fraternity who was seeking election to Parliament, sent a circular to the lodges of England asking their support on the ground that he was a good Freemason and a liberal supporter of Masonic charities. He came in for a round of censure from the board.

A long discussion was indulged in by the grand lodge over the powers and privileges of the board. The general idea obtained from the controversy related to the amount of authority assumed by the board and the right of individual Masons to be heard in grand lodge. The creation of a special committee from the Board of General Purposes to deal with constitutional questions did not find favor with the grand lodge, and the result was that the grand lodge voted to leave these subjects in the hands of the board as a whole.

The balance of this session is taken up with a discussion of various proposed amendments to the constitutions and the discussions which were indulged in shows very clearly that our English cousins are not at all backward about speaking their minds.

The quarterly communication held on the 5th day of March, 1919, appears to have been devoted very largely to routine matters. One of the first things was the reading of a letter from the grand master in which he expressed a desire for a commemoration of the cessation of hostilities and a wish to add to the number of grand officers, by annually appointing and investing twelve assistant grand directors of ceremonies, six assistant grand standard bearers, and four assistant grand pursuivants, these officers to be entitled to the privilege of wearing a chain of office of a pattern to be approved by the grand lodge. The report of the Board of Benevolences, again discloses the generosity of our English brethren in matters of charity.

The Board of General Purposes make a report which is characteristic of the English method of doing things Masonically. The first item relates to the marriage of H. R. H. Princess Patricia of Connaught, and the board reports that they presented a suitable wedding gift on behalf of the grand lodge.

The board states that according to a decision of the courts the customs authorities would not further press the payment of the duty imposed on entertainments provided at Masonic functions.

The pro grand master announced that the war being over members of the craft would revert to the custom of wearing full dress suits at Masonic lodge meetings.

A grand festival was held on the 30th day of April 1919, which appears to have been devoted to the selection of officers for the coming year. The grand director of ceremonies made the following proclamation—

Be it known, that the Most High, Most Mighty, and Most Illustrious Prince, Arthur William Patrick Albert, Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, Earl of Sussex, Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, Knight of the Most Ancient and the Most Noble Order of the Thistle, Knight of the Most Illustrious Order of St. Patrick, Great Master and First and Principal Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath, Knight Grand Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Knight Grand Commander of the Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire, Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, one of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, Field Marshal in the Army, &c., &c., &c., has been elected and Installed Most Worshipful Grand Master of the United Fraternity of Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons of England, for the ensuing year, whom may the Great Architect of Universe long preserve.

If it can be possible at some future time for Illinois to discover a grand master who has many high sounding titles as does the grand master of England, we move that the honor of making the proclamation be accorded to Andrew McNally of Chicago.

— The last quarterly communication under review was held on June 4, 1919. The first business was the selection of members of the grand lodge to serve on the Board of General Purposes. The usual report on benevolences was made and special reference given to the preparations which had been under way for the Especial Grand Lodge to be held on Friday, the 27th day of June, at which grand masters from various parts of the world would be in attendance. The board disapproved of a growing tendency towards the publication of accounts of lodge meetings and gatherings connected therewith, and called attention to the present rules of the grand lodge covering that infraction of the constitutions.

In all of the reports which have been under review, there appears nothing to indicate the financial receipts and disbursements of the grand lodge nor is there anything of a statistical character to indicate the growth in membership.

FLORIDA, F. & A. M.

Tuesday, January 21, 1919, the Grand Lodge of Florida met in the city of Jacksonville and opened the ninetieth annual communication.

The first business of importance was the address of Grand Master T. Pieton Warlow. He pays an extended tribute to the dead of his own and other jurisdictions. He reports issuing three hundred and fifty dispensations to waive the time limit over soldiers going to the front. He granted a dispensation to a lodge permitting it to hold a lodge of sorrow for a deceased brother, in view of the fact that a Masonic funeral could not be held owing to a delay of three days in the arrival of the remains. This appears at first glance to be a rather unusual situation, and the writer does not remember of ever coming across anything just exactly like it before.

Brother Warlow had considerable to say concerning the way and manner that jurisdiction over soldiers and sailors had been handled by lodges during the period of the war. Quite a number of decisions are reported. One was that a Masonic Lodge is not required to control the lodge room in which it holds its meetings; another one was that the members of a lodge might participate in the formation of a club. He ruled that five candidates might receive the Entered Apprentice degree at one communication. One dispensation was issued for the formation of a new lodge. It is noticeable that only nine joined the petition for the dispensation. The question which arises in the mind of the writer is, how nine Master Masons are going to confer the third degree if it is to be done according to the Illinois standard.

The corner-stone of a public school building was laid by the grand master during the year. He reports the purchasing of a magnificent building at St. Petersburg, Florida, to be used as a Masonic home. One good woman donated the sum of $5,000 for the benefit of the Masonic Home and Orphange, the same to be a perpetual memorial to her husband.

The grand master, like many of the good men of the country, was quite busy in war activity. For this reason he was unable to visit as many of the lodges as he would have liked.

He reports the publishing of the Florida Monitor and expresses the hope that it will stand the acid test and meet the requirements for many years to come. The Iowa plan of united Masonic service is given extended notice, and he recommends that Florida join the proposed league. In this connection, he makes the following comment—

It might seem to you that great jurisdictions like those of New York, Massachusetts or Illinois might have proceeded with the work abroad without the co-operation of the other grand bodies. They wanted to, brethren, but it seems there is an influence bent on impeding our brethren in their great and glorious undertaking. Our New York brethren readily obtained a permit to go abroad to do war work, but were later refused the necessary passports. Negotiations at Washington lasting over months, ended in a positive refusal to permit Masons to participate in overseas war work. Finally our New York brethren arranged to go as a unit of the Y. M. C. A. Thus, my brethren, this great work of unifying Masons in relief work has commenced and we may hope that it will lead to a more intimate union of Masons throughout the world.

The deputy grand master who wielded the gavel during the absence of the grand master from the state makes quite a long report. He appears to have been grand master in fact, for he issued dispensations, made decisions, and performed all the acts belonging to the office of grand master. The detailed reports of the district deputy grand masters are attached to the grand master's report. These officers appear to have been diligent in the discharge of their duties.

The grand treasurer reports total receipts of $28,500 and expenditures of $29,000. During the year $4,695 were expended for the relief of worthy members. What is commonly known as the Committee on Grand Master's Address is called in Florida, the Committee on Distribution. With their report, they appear to have kept within their respective duties. The interdict against the Masonic Journal passed in 1918 was repealed, that paper having changed ownership.

The record states that one brother was excused from further attendance upon the sessions of the grand lodge. This shows conclusively that the Grand Lodge of Florida believes that it is the duty of representatives to be in their places in grand lodge, and that it proposes to see that they are there.

A long report is made by the Masonic Home and Orphanage Committee concerning the purchase of the Southland Hotel property at St. Petersburg for the sum of $85,000. The original cost of the building and grounds was $140,000, and the grand lodge feels that the purchase price was reasonable. The committee express their appreciation of the assistance rendered them by Brother Ashael W. Gage, formerly of Chicago, Illinois, now located at Clearwater, Florida.

The Committee on Jurisprudence make quite a long report. One comment in particular is interesting—

Our grand master refused a dispensation to Island Grove Lodge No. 125 to waive a "physical defect." We do not intend to pass upon the correctness of his refusal, as that is not within our province, but we wish to ask attention of the craft to Regulation No. 84, which places upon the lodge the decision in such cases without reference to the grand master.

This decision of the Jurisprudence Committee may be all right, but imagine for a moment the predicament of a master who doesn't know any more than the law allows him, and who happens to use his own best judgment in a matter of initiating a petitioner who is physically defective.

A resolution introduced in grand lodge requiring all district deputy grand masters to procure a certificate of proficiency in the work before being eligible in the office of district deputy seemed to find favor, for the committee recommended its adoption.

An examination of the report of the Committee on Mileage and Per Diem shows that that body is alert in the discharge of its duties, for they took good care to see that every representative was paid in accordance with the number of days that he was in attendance at the session. It is rather surprising to note that the state of Florida, as progressive as it is, still has fastened upon it that badge known as the Past Masters' degree, a committee report having conferred this degree upon fifty-three prospective masters elect.

All the officers having been reelected and reappointed, no installation was held.

The report on correspondence is prepared by Silas B. Wright. He has been extremely generous with Illinois, according eleven pages of which he devotes almost five to a digest of the Report on Correspondence for the year of 1918. He takes a liberal paragraph from the opening remarks of Grand Master Austin H. Serogin, and quotes his remarks concerning Masonry in France. The principal acts of Grand Master Serogin, are briefly recited and without comment or criticism. Brother Wright believes thoroughly in the grand master's visiting as many lodges as possible, for the far reaching good that is accomplished through such visitation. He opens his critique on the correspondence report with the following—

M. W. Brother Darrah is not an entire stranger to the craft, and the writer of this report was very much pleased with his work and Masonic papers while he was grand master. We were truly pleased to find ourselves in accord with his views on nearly all matters, the main difference being that he is a student and follower of the teachings of the late Past Grand Master Robbins, who was so radical in his teachings regarding the regularity, or, as he stated it, the irregularity and the illegitimacy of all Masonic lodges organized by or descended from bodies claiming under the Scottish Rite. With this we cannot agree.

It is impossible to reply to the above in these pages. The writer, however, believes that the greatest problem which confronts the Masonic Fraternity at the present time is that of unity, and that the time is not far distant when legitimate Freemasonry will have to re-organize upon a broader platform regardless of the sources from which these various bodies derive their Masonry.

The writer deeply appreciates the critical analysis which Brother Wright has given to the correspondence report of Illinois for 1918. One paragraph is reproduced in full—

Brother Darrah expresses surprise that the forwarding of the proceedings of many of the grand lodges are "so exasperatingly delayed." He says that during the past year the proceedings of a number of grand lodges were not issued until after a lapse of three to six months. We sympathize with Brother Darrah in this matter, and will call his attention to the fact that this year, for the first time in several years, the writer has been able to have upon his table and to review the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Illinois, which grand lodge meets in October, so that it may be ready for his report in the following January. For many years we have not received the Illinois report in time to have it show in our records until it has been more than a year old.

There are many other items that we would like to take up and discuss but we are reminded of our promise to reduce our report in volume and so must pass these matters for the present, in the hope that the writer may sometime meet Brother Wright and have a delightful little quarrel with him.

GEORGIA, F. & A. M.

The Grand Lodge of Georgia opened its one hundred thirty-second annual communication in the city of Macon on the morning of Tuesday, November 26, 1918.

The roll call of grand officers and grand representatives must have consumed considerable time. However, it is one sure method of knowing who is present in the grand lodge. It often happens that the boys fill out their credential cards and have some one hand them in, and then make a bee-line for the base ball game or the burlesque show.

The grand master, William G. England, presented a very long report. It covered almost sixty pages. He goes much into detail concerning the transactions in his office during the year. He speaks of the growth in membership as the greatest in the history of the grand lodge, and enters into a long dissertation upon the war and the principles of Freemasonry. He speaks of a general grand lodge and finds favor with the project, believing that it will not interfere in any way with the state rights of the present jurisdictions.

The question of recognizing the Grand Lodge of France is given consideration and much valuable data is presented. The result of his summary is that under present conditions the Grand Lodge of Georgia could not recognize the Grand Lodge of France. The list of visitations reported by the grand master is a long one and shows that he was not unmindful of the lodges over which he was called to preside. Thirty-two questions and answers were presented under the title of decisions. None of them, however, are out of the ordinary and the answers given are along the line of the generally accepted principles of Freemasonry. He decided that it was improper to place the lodge seal upon anything which was not Masonic. He also decided that a Romanist could be made a Mason.

The record of the grand lodge in war work is what might be expected from the Masons of Georgia. The establishment of rest rooms or Masonic clubs proved of great assistance to the soldier Mason. He speaks of the Masonic home as not being an asylum and reports that institution to be in a highly satisfactory condition.

The grand master put forth every effort during his administration toward the creation of an Endowment Fund. The income to be used in supporting the home. At the present time almost $55,000 is at work bringing a very handsome amount of interest.

The Scottish Rite Hospital for crippled children is also highly commended and Masons are asked to bear this worthy enterprise in mind and to assist it whenever they can.

The grand master found pleasure in laying the corner-stones of one Baptist church, two Methodist churches, a school building, and two Masonic temples.

Grand Master England calls the attention of the grand lodge to one of the Georgia laws called, "Treasure Trove," that of permitting lodges to receive petitions from those who have not resided within the jurisdiction of a Georgia lodge for twelve months. He recommends that the grand lodge fix a definite time limit of residence. He recommends the appointment of a grand lecturer whose business it shall be to visit and instruct the lodges of the state. He thinks the fees of many of the lodges are too low, and recommends that something be done looking toward an increase of the prescribed fee.

The charters of three lodges were arrested during the year, showing that the grand master believes in proper discipline.

The work of the grand secretary is highly commended and an increase in his salary recommended.

The district and county conventions are mentioned as having accomplished much good during the year.

The grand secretary reports a total membership of 48,746. During the year over 5,000 were raised to the sublime degree.

The total receipts of the grand secretary are reported to be $54,806. From the issuance of 558 special dispensations, the treasury of the grand lodge was enriched to the extent of $2,575.

The grand lodge declined to recognize the Grand Lodge of Panama, also the Grand Orient of Lisbon, and the Grand Orient of the Argentine Republic. It also refused recognition to the Grand Lodge of Brazil. It is quite apparent that the Grand Lodge of Georgia weighs these matters very carefully, and does not propose to be swept off its feet by the over-zealous members of the fraternity who look upon universality as a broad mantle which covers a multitude of Masonic sins.

The Board of Custodians agreed with the grand master that a grand lecturer was absolutely necessary to properly promulgate the ritual of the jurisdiction.

The Committee on Jurisprudence gave the grand master 100% for they approved all of his decisions.

The report of the Committee on Appeals and Grievances must have had something to do, for they disposed of forty-one cases. They show the good taste to eliminate the publishing of details, but in printing the name of the accused, they are going further than is really necessary.

The Committee on General Welfare bring in quite a long report. They indorse the Iowa plan of a Masonic Service Association. They fixed a per capita tax at $1.00 per member. They recommended that hereafter a joint ballot may be taken upon petitions for advancement. They indorse the dissemination of good Masonic literature, and condemn the practice of using Masonic emblems for business purposes. They recommended that the payment of mileage and per diem to past masters of lodges be discontinued after the present year. The report of the committee was adopted by the grand lodge.

The salary of the grand secretary was fixed at $3,600. The presentation of the past grand masters jewel and the installation of officers closed a very important session of the Grand Lodge of Georgia.

Raymond Daniel prepares the review of brother jurisdictions. He opens with an admirable preface in which he presents some of the live subjects under consideration in most of the jurisdictions throughout the United States. He gives Illinois two and one-half pages of critical analysis, but finds nothing seriously at fault from which we take it that what we did at our session of 1917 meets his approval.

IDAHO, A. F. & A. M.

The grand jurisdiction of Idaho boasts of 65 lodges with a total membership of 455. Moscow had the honor of entertaining the grand lodge assembled in 51st annual meeting. As soon as the opening exercises had been dispensed with the grand secretary called what is termed, the roll of honor, being the list of deceased past grand masters. As each name was called, the grand master made a proper response.

The roll of grand representatives was then called and seven of these ambassadors answered to their names.

Sherman N. Coffin, grand master, read his annual address to the grand lodge. It covers twelve printed pages of routine matter. He laid the corner-stone of a Methodist church, during his term of office, and reproduces a part of the address which he made on the occasion, justifying his action in laying the corner-stone of a church on the ground that the present time demands the united effort of all moral and religious institutions. Quite a number of decisions are reported by the grand master. All of them, however, partake of the nature of answers to questions which were submitted. None of them are out of the ordinary and are purely local in interest. One thing the grand master does is to go into the question of landmarks, and enumerates twenty-five so-called recognized landmarks. The grand master has a perfect right to construe Masonry as he sees it. But when he commences to deal with the question of landmarks and sets up any number of specific provisions as coming within the boundaries of this subject he is likely to invite the dispute of other zealous Masons, who have different conceptions of what constitutes a landmark, and which they likewise claim to be authentic and above suspicion. The grand master reports the conferring of over 200 degrees by courtesy, and says—

In this connection I cannot refrain from laying before you one instance of this splendid spirit. On July 24th I telegraphed Austin H. Serogin, grand master of Illinois, as follows:

"Can you have Exemplar Lodge of Chicago confer the three degrees of Masonry on James Lawrence Young before August 1st, as a courtesy to our Portneuf Lodge of Pocatello? He leaves that day for France. He has instructions to call on Secretary Gilfan of Exemplar Lodge."

On July 25th Grand Master Serogin replied—

"In response to your telegram of the 24th, received this morning, I am asking our Exemplar Lodge No. 966 of Chicago, to confer the three degrees on J. L. Young as soon as possible for one of your lodges in Idaho. To this end I have issued them a dispensation permitting them to confer the degrees without regard to time and proficiency. Assuring you that it is a pleasure to serve you, I am, fraternally yours, Austin H. Serogin, Grand Master of Masons in Illinois."

This was characteristic of Grand Master Serogin, always generous and thoughtful of others.

A brother who printed an advertisement in a newspaper exploiting his undertaking business and who placed in the lower left hand corner the initials A. F. & A. M. was promptly called down by the grand master so vigorously that the brother at once discontinued the practice.

The Grand Lodge of Idaho certainly proved its loyalty to the government for it invested all surplus funds in Liberty bonds and now holds $25,550 of this precious paper. The grand master fully believes in lodges holding commemorative exercises pertaining to some event of more than passing interest in the history of the lodge.

A letter was received by Brother Coffin from a Utah past master suggesting that the grand lodge take action upon the question of adopting a patented or copywritten emblem to be worn by all members as a safeguard against clandestine Masons. The reply of the grand master to this proposal is so truly Masonic and so timely that it is reproduced here in full for the benefit of those signboards of Masonry, who may chance to read as they run—

I am not keen for the personal display of Masonic emblems and would not accept a man as a Mason were he covered with them from head to heel.

It seems to me that the teachings of Masonry from the very day of initiation to the end of life, if practiced and observed, guard and protect us from imposition of every kind and character, that we do not need patents and copyrights to protect us against the wiles of the clandestine. The very fact that a man is advertising himself as a Mason should create doubt and suspicion, and make us all the more cautious in our dealings with him.

I cannot therefore advocate action by our grand lodge, and while I have no criticism of those who take a different view, I feel it my duty to admonish the craft, not lightly to take up the advocacy of such innovations.

One thing Grand Master Coffin is to be commended for and that is in being broad enough to recognize the necessity for some common ground of union between the American grand lodges. Among the recommendations made were the following: The recognition of the Grand Lodge and Grand Orient of France; a closer fellowship with the Grand Lodge of England; the establishment of a branch lodge on the European war front; and an increased expense account for the incoming grand master.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $32,873.00 and expenditures of $37,000.00. The finances of the grand lodge, however, are in the most excellent condition with an abundant surplus.

The grand secretary's report is an interesting document. From it we learn that some time ago the grand lodge purchased twenty-five past grand master's aprons to be kept in the custody of the grand lodge, and used at annual meetings. One brother asked that one of the aprons be given him for his own.

The grand secretary reported a recommendation that each grand master be furnished one of these aprons for his own personal property.

It is evident that the Masonic boom has not at the time of the annual report hit the lodges of Idaho. For it is noticed that 65 lodges raised only 495, an average of seven and a fraction for each lodge. An excellent oration was delivered by the grand orator, Gary C. Burk, his subject was "What Can Masonry Do for Democracy?" It would be a great pleasure to quote liberally from this splendid document but lack of space prohibits. There ought to be more addresses delivered to lodges of the same practical character. Several amendments presented to the grand lodge were advanced from first to second reading, a most excellent plan, showing that the grand lodge does not propose to let anything get by without due consideration. The Grand Lodge of Idaho believes in conserving the time of representatives, for it held an evening session at which much business was transacted. This grand lodge pays the expenses of its representatives, the highest amount allowed being $91.80.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence recommended that no action be taken concerning the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France and the report was adopted. The Grand Lodge of Idaho moved forward when it adopted an amendment providing for collective work permitting lodges to work three candidates at a time, in all parts of the degrees with the exception of the second section of the third. Good for Idaho, even with the limited amount of work done by the lodges, this grand lodge does not propose that its constituents shall become mere degree mills.

The installation of officers and the presentation of the signet ring closed the session. The report on fraternal correspondence is prepared by George Knepper, grand secretary. He gives Illinois very generous treatment quoting liberally from the report of Grand Master Wheeler, and calls it a fearless out-spoken paper, delightful to read, even if it fails to command general approval. Concerning the matter of cipher-ritual about which Brother Wheeler made a comment he remarks as follows—

It will be remembered that the Grand Lodge of Illinois innocently issued an edict several years ago in effect that all Masons in the state in possession of commercial ciphers should return them at once to headquarters. We assumed that said edict had the desired effect and that the cipher ritual was a thing of the past in Illinois.

INDIANA, F. & A. M.

It is always a pleasure to examine the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Indiana for the reason that so many who are active in its interests are personally known to the writer.

The Grand Lodge of Indiana has every reason to be proud of those noble men who are laboring to advance its interests, for they are not only zealous Freemasons but are the highest type of manhood. The ninety-eighth annual meeting was held in the city of Indianapolis commencing May 27. Preliminary to the opening a most interesting programme of music was rendered followed by an address by Lieutenant Colonel Marion A. Prather. The officers of the grand lodge then assembled in the library and with a soldier carrying the American flag they marched into the lodge amid the tumultuous applause of the grand lodge as it stood at attention. The report of the Committee on Credentials showed 544 lodges represented as the gavel fell. The first business of real interest is the report of Grand Master Thomas B. Bohon. He opens with reference to the war, and speaks of the victory which has been achieved by the allied cause. He approved the by-laws of a large number of constituent lodges and issued numerous dispensations to elect officers. During the year the grand master dedicated the lodge rooms of two Masonic bodies. He laid the corner-stone of one high school building also one Masonic temple. He states that on this occasion that the brethren were very attentive to an oration delivered by Julius R. Kline of Chicago.

Dispensations were issued for the formation of four new lodges. He states the he received one complaint from a brother who preferred charges against a past master of his lodge for official misconduct alleged to have been committed while he was in office. The grand master ruled that inasmuch as the master was out of office, he would have to be tried by the lodge itself. Brother Bohon very wisely made no decisions, stating that all his answers to questions were not of a character that attempted to legislate. He expresses regret that he could not have visited more of the lodges of the jurisdiction. He reports attending the George Washington Memorial Association and states that he heartily concurs in the objects and intentions of the society.

The grand treasurer reports receipts in the General Fund of $35,232 and $74,732 in the Home Fund. The Grand Lodge of Indiana is in a most excellent condition financially.

The report of the grand secretary, Calvin W. Prather gives a net increase in membership for the year 1918 of 5,580 and the total number of Masons in Indiana at 81,480.

Brother Prather announces that it required 3,611 letters written in the grand secretary's office to accomplish the conferring of degrees upon Indiana men located in other jurisdictions. An emergency lodge was formed at Hattiesburg, Miss., to provide for the conferring of degrees upon elected candidates whose residence was in Indiana. Brother Prather did one mighty good thing and it shows his kindness of heart toward the secretaries with whom he does business. He asked his grand lodge to invite the secretaries to participate in and enjoy its hospitalities at the annual meeting in 1920. The grand lodge concurred and the secretaries of Indiana lodges are assured of a delightful time when they assemble next year. This is a suggestion for other grand lodges. It is a most excellent thing to bring the secretaries together in this manner and let them know that the grand lodge appreciates all that they are doing for the cause of Freemasonry.

Like many others Brother Prather calls the attention of the Masons of Indiana to the fact that Masonry has become enormously popular. It behooves lodges to guard the outer door. The Masonic Home Board make a very interesting report. The institution is well organized and gives promise of growing into a magnificent charity, the pride of the Masons of Indiana. An amendment to the laws was introduced providing for but one ballot for the three degrees and a lapse of one week, between the election and initiation of a candidate and a period of four weeks between the conferring of degrees. This amendment went to the Committee on Jurisprudence who struck out that portion requiring the lapse of four weeks between the conferring of degrees and the amendment was adopted.

The Committee on Appeals make an observation concerning a case which came into their hands which is interesting—

Your committee believes it is incumbent upon them to say that while business contracts may be so rankly violated as to demand Masonic punishment, the civil courts of the land are the first resort of aggrieved parties and should be resorted to for the regularly instituted means of interpretation of contracts.

A report made by Calvin W. Prather, grand secretary, shows that the lodges of Indiana contributed to the various war funds the sum of $218,596. The grand lecturer, Herbert A. Graham, presents a report which is of more than passing interest because it shows that that officer, not only instructed the lodges in the ritual but also looked after their general welfare. But four lodges in Indiana charge a $60 fee and only twenty-nine make a charge of $50. The amount of dues charged by the lodges is mostly $3.00 and under.

The Jurisprudence Committee reported a resolution requiring every lodge to designate from time to time a repository for its funds and requiring all such to be deposited in the name of the lodge. The Jurisprudence Committee reported favorably on an amendment fixing the minimum dues at $3.00 per year and the amendment carried. The grand lodge holds an annual dinner during the grand lodge session. This took place on the evening of the first day and over 600 were present. There were addresses and music. On the morning of the second day the grand lodge took a special train on the Pennsylvania railroad and went to the Masonic home at Franklin where a tour of inspection was made. The grand lodge returned to the temple at 12 o'clock, had luncheon and an hour later was settled down to business. The Jurisprudence Committee brought in an amendment fixing the minimum fees at $30.00 and it was adopted. It also voted to join the Masonic Service Association.

The Committee on Ways and Means brought in a report recommending the preparation of lantern slides of the Masonic home properties to be exhibited among the lodges of the state. This committee recommended the preparation of a monitor which would conform to the Indiana work. It also fixed the salary of the grand instructor at $3,000 per year which amount must include all traveling expenses. The presentation of the jewel and the installation of the officers closed the session. Indiana believes in one term for grand masters and the records show sixty-nine past grand masters to date, twenty of whom are still living, one being under the sentence of suspension. The annual review is prepared by Elmer F. Gay.

He quotes very liberally from the report of the grand master, Austin H. Scroggin. He is pleased to note that the Grand Lodge of Illinois has taken up the question of physical qualifications. He said that what we did is in direct line with the action of Indiana six years ago, except that Illinois has taken a much more liberal view.

Concerning the report on correspondence he makes the following observation—

The report on correspondence is written by Past Grand Master Delmar D. Darrah and it is one of the best and most interesting reports that it has been our pleasure to read.

We would like to publish his topical introduction in full but space forbids.

Brother Darrah needs no introduction to our Indiana brethren, as he has been our guest on several occasions and can come again any time that he chooses, and be assured of a Hoosier welcome.

IOWA, A. F. & A. M.

At the time of the completion of this report, the official proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Iowa had not been issued, but through the courtesy of the grand secretary, Newton R. Parvin, sufficient advance sheets have been received to permit the preparation of a brief review of the proceedings of this most excellent grand lodge.

The seventy-sixth annual meeting was held in the city of Cedar Rapids on Tuesday, June 10. The usual elaborate opening ceremonies were omitted this year and the grand lodge immediately settled down to the business of the session.

The report of the grand master, George L. Schoonover, is a paper of unusual merit. In its entirety, it covers one hundred thirty-two pages. He opens with reference to the Diamond Jubilee of the Grand Lodge of Iowa and with extended reference to the war, its causes, and results. He thinks that with the coming of peace there will evolve a true spirit of brotherhood which while not at all new to Freemasonry, yet will help the world to accomplish some things for which it has been striving for years past. He states that his year as grand master was an extremely active one, and that he gave liberally of his time and ability towards advancing the cause of Masonry in the jurisdiction of the state. He dedicated three Masonic lodge rooms and laid the corner-stone of the new building at Templar Park, Spirit Lake, Iowa.

Four new lodges were granted dispensations and an unlimited number of degrees conferred by courtesy.

According to the laws of Iowa, all lodges are required to carry proper insurance on their holdings. One lodge which was burned out made an appeal for financial assistance, but when it was found that the insurance had been allowed to lapse, the grand master was obliged to decline to assist the brethren. Five dispensations were granted by Brother Schoonover to reballot on rejected candidates. In one instance two of the four petitioners rejected were Protestant ministers. This must have been an exhibition of small town animosity where the society of the village is divided into Baptists, Methodists, and Presbyterians.

The grand master created an Advisory Council, and while he states that there was not always an agreement, yet the judgment of his advisors was carefully weighed before a decision was rendered.

The War Relief of the Grand Lodge is reported in detail, the sum of $4,000 having been given to various relief societies.

Concerning the conferring of degrees by courtesy, and in consideration of the tremendous amount of labor involved, the grand master took up the question of expense incurred and found that the average cost of conferring degrees by courtesy was $7.50, and his proposition to reimburse the lodge from the emergency War Fund is worthy of consideration, because it shows a disposition to be absolutely fair and to place the burden of expense where it properly belongs. One thing Brother Schoonover does, and that is to emphasize the necessity of conferring the first degree in an impressive manner, because the future Masonic interest of the candidate depends very largely upon the impression made at that time. He also argues in favor of substantial fees for the degrees, and points out that high fees do not deter men from joining the fraternity. He enters into an extended argument concerning the remission of fees to soldiers and ministers. His conclusions are truly Masonic and that is that all petitioners should be treated just alike and that in Masonry there should be no privileged class. He has much to say concerning the large lodge, and very frankly admits that he is opposed to it for the reason that friendship and brotherly love are not characteristics of the large club, but are to be found only in those smaller organizations where men get closer together. He favors a system of transfer of membership, and recommends certain modifications of the Masonic law on residence as well as consideration of the initiation of a Lewis. He suggests that the prerogatives of grand masters while according to traditions are unlimited, yet are subject to much abuse, and suggests some method of curtailing the frequent indiscretions of these officers. He argues in favor of a system of district deputy grand masters, and offers a plan which he thinks will result in a closer supervision of the lodges of the state, and the bringing of general conditions more closely under the observation of the grand master.

Ten decisions are reported, one was that a lodge might elect a blind brother to the office of junior warden. Another was that a petition signed by another party under written authority from a candidate temporarily absent from the location of the lodge is valid. He also decided that the wearing of a Masonic ring by a profane who had inherited it from a relative who was a Mason, was not prohibited by the Masonic laws of the state. He recommended that the minimum fees for the degrees be fixed at $50.00, of which amount $10.00 shall be paid into the Grand Charity Fund. He recommended the appointment of a special commission to investigate the question of large lodges. He also recommended that the Lewis doctrine be revived which provides that the son of a Master Mason may petition for the degrees of Masonry at the age of nineteen. His recommendations on this question interesting—

The recognition of that age as "lawful" within the meaning of our laws. Furthermore, that by and with the consent of the grand master, given in writing, the petition of a Lewis may be balloted upon the same evening that it is received, in emergent cases, the grand master to be the judge of the emergency. To do this is simply to trust our brother to inculcate in his son Masonic principles to such a degree that the latter will appreciate affiliation with us more than the ordinary profane. Many of us would rejoice to know that the influence of Masonry and its fellowship could be thrown around our sons during their more youthful years, while they are most impressionable, and at the time when impressions last longest. I would not change the restrictions surrounding the ballot, the lodge should be the judge, but I would go back to the old rule, and trust the Mason father.

The Masonic Service Association and the George Washington Memorial Association were given hearty endorsement. He concludes his very interesting report with an appeal to the Masons of the world for closer Masonic unity.

The grand secretary, Newton R. Parvin, offers one of his characteristic documents, in which he goes much into detail concerning the affairs of his office, and the library of which he is so justly proud.

The grand treasurer gives his receipts as approximately $73,000 and the total disbursements $66,000. The excess of receipts over vouchers is reported at $6,857.

The report shows that the Grand Lodge of Iowa is taking care of its dependents at much less expense than those grand lodges which are maintaining institutional charities, and not only that, but the grand lodge is doing it in a liberal manner.

Among the principal business accomplished by the grand lodge was the increasing of the fees for the degrees to $40.00, of which amount $10.00 goes to the Charity Fund. The question of establishing a system of district deputy grand masters was postponed for one year owing to the importance of the subject. Much congratulation was indulged in by the grand lodge over the fact that ninety-two Master Masons and widows or dependent orphans were cared for at a total cost of $16,175, and this item includes expenses of hospital and doctor bills.

The report on foreign correspondence is again prepared by Louis Block, past grand master. It is one of those documents which is characteristic of the man, and its perusal brings a wealth of Masonic information to the student who is concerned in the general welfare of the fraternity. Illinois is given eleven pages of generous consideration. He quotes liberally from the address of Austin H. Serogin. What he says concerning French Masonry is quoted in full by Brother Block, with the following observation—

While we are very fond of Brother Serogin and proud to number him among our friends, yet we cannot agree with him upon this subject. We believe that if Brother Serogin will read what Past Master Street of Alabama has to say upon this subject that he will see the whole matter in a new light. Up to the year 1760 Masonry did not require that the Bible should appear upon the altar as one of the great lights. It was during that year though the influence of Brother Preston that the requirement of placing the Bible upon the altar was enacted. The ancient charges are wholly silent upon any such requirement, and the only religious qualification demanded by these charges was that members of the order should be "good men and true, men of honor and honesty, who obey the moral law," but that is as far as they went. These charges did not even exact a belief in Deity.

While Brother Serogin quotes Past Grand Master Joseph Robbins as his authority upon the subject of French Masonry, he evidently repudiates that same authority when it comes to the subject of physical qualifications.

Brother Robbins would turn over in his grave could he learn of the progressive position taken by Brother Serogin on this subject, or when it comes to the discussion of physical qualifications.

He also takes up the question of physical qualifications as recommended by Brother Serogin, and the following observations made.

For the life of us, we cannot understand why Brother Serogin should be inclined to let down the bars to those who have been maimed and wounded in the great war, and still raise them against hundreds of other good men and true who have lost their limbs through no fault of their own in the performance of the ordinary duties of life.

Concerning the amendment on physical qualifications which was presented last year, Brother Block says—

If it is adopted, Illinois will have the most liberal, progressive and advanced law upon this subject of all of the grand lodges in the world. Let us hope that the efforts of Brother Serogin and Scott to get this law adopted will be crowned with success and that we all may have occasion to rejoice with them in such a great achievement.

Brother Block was exceedingly generous to the Illinois reviewer of last year, taking four pages of liberal quotations from what was said at that time. He resented the suggestion that the national Masonic Research Society was purely an Iowa institution, and says—

He is in error when he says that this society is an Iowa institution for it is no such thing, and the Grand Lodge of Iowa has absolutely no control over it, nor does the Grand Lodge of Iowa take any part in its government. Our grand lodge is simply anxious to see it succeed because it believes heart and soul in the study side of Masonry.

It is a matter of regret to the writer that the complete proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Iowa could not have been in his hands in time for this report. We have always admired our Iowa brothers for their progressive spirit and their up-to-date manner of doing things. Within the last two or three years they have clearly demonstrated their leadership among the grand lodges of the world, and the little progress that has been accomplished has been due largely to the fact that the Grand Lodge of Iowa had in its membership, men who were not afraid to do things. The Iowa plan of Masonic Unity through a Service Association is the only thing which can at the present time save the Masonic Fraternity in the period of reconstruction which is slowly taking place in the economic affairs of the world. It is unfortunate that we have in the Masonic Fraternity men whose knowledge of Freemasonry is limited to that which they have acquired and learned within the borders of their own jurisdiction. So prejudiced are they in their views that they regard everything which does not conform to their standards as practically clandestine, and hold so rigidly to these views that if Masonry is ever to be unified, it must be done according to the standards which they themselves set up. But thank God, here and there throughout the Masonic world, fearless thinkers and leaders who have caught the true meaning of Freemasonry are beginning to arise and it is to them that we must look for the future development of the fraternity.

IRELAND, A. F. & A. M.

The stated communication of the Grand Lodge of Ireland was held in Dublin, December 27, 1918. The grand master, the Earl of Donoughmore, was unable to be present, and the deputy grand master took charge of the grand lodge. He made a long address dealing with the closing events of the war and the effect that might be expected from the New Germany. He states that the fraternity has experienced great progress in Ireland, and remarks that on several occasions dispensations have been issued for the initiation of soldiers under twenty-one years of age. He states that the receipts of the grand lodge for the year passed, exceed that of any other period, by almost $5,000.

The deputy grand secretary makes a very long and detailed report of the principal business transacted during the year. It would appear from this report that the deputy grand secretary is the real officer in charge of the affairs of the grand lodge. He reports that one Irish lodge in India experienced a great deal of trouble in doing its work because of the inability to get a ritual containing the proper work. It appears that this lodge purchased a ritual at a book sellers, and had been endeavoring to do its work according to the information which it obtained therefrom, much of which was faulty and misleading.

The following concerning regimental lodges is of more than passing interest—

Two Regimental Lodges, No. 595, attached to the Fifth Royal Irish Lancers, and No. 420, attached to the R. I. Rifles, are still out at the western front, and they carried on their Masonic work during almost the entire period of the war—sometimes under particularly trying circumstances. The secretary of the latter, Lieutenant Maxwell, writing shortly before the cessation of hostilities, says, "Just before the offensive in March, we placed our lodge box in a house about six miles behind the lines, but which one of our members subsequently removed in a motor wagon as he thought it unsafe, as a result we have it today with us, our Warrant and Regalia, only for this it would have been lost, as the house and its contents had to be burned to prevent it falling into the hands of the Hun." In the early part of the year, the W.M. elect of the Lancers' Lodge being home on leave, was installed in office, in an Irish lodge, on behalf of 595, by special permission of grand lodge.

The grand secretary reports the donation of a stained glass window to the Masonic Girls Home in honor of the "Tercentenary of the death of William Shakespeare April 23rd, 1616, and to record the members of the lodge and chapter who served their country in the War 1914-19."

Masonry in Ireland must be prospering, for thirteen warrants for the formation of new lodges were issued.

An item concerning lodge by-laws conveys the information that in Ireland applicants do not formally petition for the degrees, but that their names are proposed by a Master Mason in good standing after which the lodge may either refuse to accept the proposal or refer the name to a committee of scrutineers. The grand secretary calls attention to a patent ballot box which an ingenious brother invented to insure thorough secrecy in the matter of voting for petitioners for admission.

The Grand Lodge of Ireland is doing a good work, not only in the matter of its charities, but also in the education of the children of deceased Master Masons.

The Earl of Donoughmore, G. M.

Lord Plunket, G. S.

KANSAS, A. F. & A. M.

1918

The sixty-third annual communication, opened in the city of Wichita, February 19, 1919, for a two-day session. Incidental to the opening ceremonies, a most excellent prayer was offered by the Rev. Francis S. Blaney, grand chaplain. Immediately following the ceremonies of opening, the grand representatives present were formally introduced and accorded the grand honors of Masonry. Illinois was represented by Robert

Treat Tayne. The grand secretary in preparing his proceedings places the long list of accredited representatives in the front part of his book, a practice which is followed by very many grand secretaries. Detailed reports of this character, properly belong in an appendix to the proceedings. A brother in examining the official reports, does not care to wade through long lists of names and statistical tables in order to find that which he is seeking.

The report of the grand master, William I. Stuart, is a brief document without any attempt at elaborate display. He states that our fraternity, which we interpret to mean the state of Kansas has five thousand fifty-seven members engaged in military service, of which number nearly fifteen hundred received their Masonic degrees just before or soon after they entered the training period. The grand master states that the labor of his office during the past year has been unprecedented, a fact which every grand master can attest from his own experience.

Two new lodges were constituted and a dispensation for the formation of one new lodge issued. Seven hundred special dispensations were issued during the year yielding a revenue to the grand lodge of $3,300. Among the dispensations issued, were those authorizing business to be transacted at a special meeting as well as balloting on petitions. During the year, the grand lodge laid the corner-stone of a court house and a new Masonic temple, and the grand master had the honor of dedicating two Masonic temples. He deplores the fact that masters of lodges took very little interest in the district meetings provided by the grand lodge. So serious was this neglect of Masonic duty, that the grand master took it upon himself to call these truant masters to task. This same condition is quite noticeable in other grand jurisdictions, and many thoughtful Masons are commencing to arrive at the conclusion that the only competent method of reaching the individual lodge, correcting its irregularities, improving its work, and stimulating Masonic interests, is by means of district supervisors visiting the individual lodge and holding a three or four days school of instruction.

Under the subject of discipline, the grand master reports that the laws of the state have been violated by lodges conferring degrees on Sunday also by conferring degrees in less than the lawful time without procuring special authority to do so. From the statement of the grand master, the inference is drawn that the Grand Lodge of Kansas permits lodges to confer the degrees on Sunday upon dispensation from the grand master.

The writer is not disposed to be Puritanical and always has held for a rational observance of the Sabbath Day. The opinion is ventured, however, that no possible good can come to the fraternity as a result of the practice of conferring Masonic degrees on Sunday. The only result will be that of bringing Masonic lodges into competition with the church, thereby provoking just criticism. It is equally true that Masonic lodges ought to observe our national holidays, and not arrange all day meetings, and stage spectacular events when all other business houses and enterprises have ceased operation. The good Mason spends his holidays with his family, and the fraternity is not doing the proper thing when it uses our national holidays to stage events which will take men away from their homes and kin.

Grand Master Stuart states to his grand lodge that he found it necessary to suspend the charters of thirty-three lodges because of infractions of the laws. All of these charters were restored upon the lodges expressing regret for their sins of omission and commission, and their promise in the future to abide by the statutes.

It is refreshing to find a grand master who is not afraid to arrest a charter. Many lodges are under the apprehension that a grand master is merely bluffing when he threatens to take up a charter, and for that reason, continue in their violations of law feeling that they will not be molested.

The grand master very properly refused to grant permission to a Kansas Mason, serving in the army in France, to visit French Masonic lodges.

He reports one act of consolidation of lodges, and states that during the year, 1897, members of Kansas lodges passed to the great beyond, among them Mathew Miller, a stalwart man and Mason.

The grand master called attention to the excellent work of the grand secretary, A. K. Wilson, and recommended that his salary be increased from $1800 to $3000. It is gratifying to read that the grand lodge concurred in the recommendation, and that hereafter our good Brother Wilson, can jingle two hundred and fifty shining silver dollars in his pocket on the first day of every month.

Special reference is made by the grand master to the Masonic home of the state, which has just been rebuilt and refurnished.

The grand treasurer reports the receipts of the grand lodge for the year to have been $84,478.95. The expenditures, $81,403.03. It is apparent that the grand lodge is operating at a profit of $3,072.79, but as the grand lodge increases in membership, the claim upon it for charity will be augmented, and an increase in the per capita tax will necessarily follow, as has been proven in Illinois.

The report of the grand secretary, Albert K. Wilson, is a very lengthy and exhaustive document. Every detail of his office is reported, and an examination of the report leaves no doubt as to where the funds of the grand lodge came from, and where they went. He reports that during the year lodges of Kansas raised 4,192, and made a net gain in membership of 3,045—the largest in the history of the grand lodge.

The proceedings state that at 1:00 o'clock P. M. of the first day's session, the grand lodge was opened in ample form on the first degree of Masonry, for the purpose of dedicating the new Masonic home. The lines were formed and under escort of a commandery of Knights Templar and a Shrine band, the procession moved to the Masonic home where a very interesting service of dedication was observed.

As we dictate these lines, we are wondering if that Shrine band appeared in costumes of the Orient. If so, the parade must have given visible evidence of the cosmopolitan character of Freemasonry.

The principal business of the grand lodge was largely of routine character. The cost of the new Masonic home including furniture and fixtures, is given at approximately $168,000.

A most interesting report on French Masonry was presented to the grand lodge by Albert K. Wilson. He quotes liberally from the report of the special committee on French Masonry, made to the Grand Lodge of California, and concludes with the following statement—

We, therefore, are forced to conclude that it would be a flagrant violation of our landmarks, our constitution, our traditions, our ritual, and our definite and decisive former actions to enter into fraternal relationship with the Grand Lodge of France under the present conditions and circumstances.

The grand lodge declined to recognize the Grand Lodge of Panama stating that sufficient data had not been received to enable them to report at this time. The election of officers together with the installation services and the presentation of the customary jewel ended a most pleasant and profitable session of the grand lodge.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Albert K. Wilson, grand secretary. He gives Illinois two and a quarter pages of review. He enumerates the principal transactions of our grand lodge without comment. The handling of Grand Master Serogin's recommendation concerning physical qualifications by the Committee on Grand Master's Address who referred it to the Jurisprudence Committee, who in turn sent it to the Committee on New Legislation is characterized as a double barrel procedure. He refers to our review of last year, and explains that the minute report made to the grand lodge by the Committee on Chartered Lodges is necessary because it calls attention to the lack of intelligence displayed by the average lodge secretaries in preparing annual reports submitted to the grand secretary.

KENTUCKY, A. F. & A. M.1918

The 118th annual communication was held in the city of Louisville commencing Tuesday, December 10, 1918. The grand lodge was able to complete its labors in two days. The first business of importance was the address of the grand master, Earl W. Weathers. He did not waste any words in getting to the real subject matter of his report. Being engaged in the service of his country, he was absent from the jurisdiction, a part of the year. The first thing he did was to call attention to the criticism directed against the grand secretary's office, because that official did not stay in the office all the time. He advised the grand lodge that the sum of $1,500 paid as salary to the grand secretary was not sufficient to enable that official to live as he should in a city like Louisville. The grand master recommended that the salary be fixed at $2,500 a year. The grand master commends the George Washington Memorial Association and recommends an additional subscription of $2,000 making the total amount, contributed by the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, $5,000.

The number of dispensations granted was not large, but the number that was refused was quite extensive, showing that the grand master believes in upholding the rules and regulations. He states that more than six hundred requests to confer degrees by courtesy passed through his hands. He advises the grand lodge of the advisability of having a stenographer present at the annual meeting to take the proceedings. He made but one decision. A master who refused to install into office his successor, who had been duly elected, but who had never served any lodge as warden, was sustained in his position by the grand master.

He recommended that the Masonic Temple in Louisville be given to the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home, to be operated by that organization in the hope of curtailing expense and placing the temple upon a paying basis. The Masonic widows and orphans' home is highly commended by Brother Leathers. He thinks it unwise, at this time, to attempt to enter upon the cottage plan prepared last year and suggested that steps be taken to enlarge the present institution. Some difficulty has been experienced in making the Masonic Home Journal the official organ of the grand lodge successful. This trouble is experienced by editors of all Masonic papers, who during the past three or four years have had a hard struggle to keep them from being losing adventures. The grand master reports that the sum of $5,000 was drawn and paid to the trustees of the Educational Committee. The deputy grand master follows with a report of the various acts which came under his supervision. He had the good taste to briefly detail that which he did and at no time sought to infringe upon the prerogatives of the grand master. The total receipts as reported by the grand secretary are $136,000, and the total disbursements $133,000. Brother Dave Jackson, grand secretary, presented a report in which he details financial matters and other subjects, which passed thru his hands during the year. He reports the number of chartered lodges at 588 and the present membership 49,071; a net gain of 3,025 for the year. He reports 962 free members, whatever that may be.

The Committee on Masonic Homes presented an extended report in which they discuss the cottage plan of M. W. Bro. James N. Saunders. The committee were of the opinion that owing to the tremendous cost something in excess of $500,000, that it would be ill advised, at the present time to change from the present plan. The committee received some complaints concerning the management of the home. An investigation was made but it was found that there was no ground for the allegations. There is not a Masonic home in the country or in fact any charitable institution that does not receive some criticism no matter how well managed. An extremely long report is made by a Commission on Masonic Unity. The purpose of this commission according to the resolution for the appointment was to inquire into the status of the grand lodges of the world with a view of securing Masonic unity and coordinated effort in the Masonic world.

The work outlined for this commission is most laudable and the report which they present to the Grand Lodge of Kentucky shows that they have delved deeply into the subject. It is too early at this time to predict just what may come from their efforts. But it is hoped that they will persist until grand lodges will shake down their barriers of prejudice and come to realize that the Masonry of their neighbors is just as honest and sincere as that which they themselves practice.

The report of the Educational Committee provided by the grand lodge is interesting, because it shows the work which the grand lodge is doing in providing higher educational and vocational training for the boys and girls who leave the orphans' home at the age of 16 years. The grand lodge is doing a most noble work in this respect and is setting an example that may be emulated by all the grand lodges. The total amount expended last year was approximately $15,000. The grand lodge took up the question of enlarging the present Masonic Home. The cottage plan of Brother James N. Saunders was thoroughly discussed. The final action of the grand lodge was in the appointment of a special committee to raise a fund of $1,000,000. As soon as this money is secured the board of directors are authorized to present to the grand lodge some plan looking toward increased accommodations in the home. The Masonic Employment Bureau of Kentucky presents a report showing the excellent work that is being done by that organization.

The Committee on Finance submitted their report recommending that the salary of the grand secretary be fixed at $2,500 per year. He was also given an assistant at a salary of $100 per month. An amendment was introduced providing for the collection of the sum of $5 from each petitioner for the degrees which amount will be paid into the treasury of the grand lodge for the support of the Masonic Home. A resolution was adopted providing for the conveyance of the Masonic Temple in Louisville to the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home. The Jurisprudence Committee brought in a report discussing various matters of the grand master's address and also expressed their opinion on the validity of amendments pending before the grand lodge. The committee to examine visitors reports the examination of O. B. Irwin, St. Pauls Lodge No. 700, Springfield, Ill. In the closing hours of the session a motion was made to reconsider the matter of deeding the temple property to the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Homes with the result that a special committee was appointed to give the matter due consideration and to report their findings next year.

The report on correspondence is prepared by William W. Clark. Illinois is duly considered and the principal acts of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler are chronicled with comments thereon.

He does not agree with Brother Wheeler in his position relating to military lodges. He is disposed to believe that the grand master has full power to issue authority for the organization of such lodges. Liberal extracts are taken from the oration of Oscar A. Kropf. He thinks the address of Governor Lowden was too short.

LOUISIANA, F. & A. M.

On Monday evening, February 3, the Grand Lodge of Louisiana opened its one hundred and eighth annual grand communication in the city of New Orleans.

The grand master of Mississippi, W. Lawrence Wilson, was present and was officially received by the grand lodge, after which Grand Master George A. Treadwell opened the grand lodge and proceeded with his annual address.

He reports recalling the dispensation issued to Liberty Lodge U. D. which was originally formed to confer the degrees on soldiers. This work was taken over by the regular lodges. The charter of one lodge was arrested and the property which it owned was surrendered to the party holding a very substantial mortgage against it. Three lodges were constituted during the year and eight dispensations issued for the formation of new lodges, all of which shows the Grand Lodge of Louisiana to be in a highly prosperous condition. He refused to issue a dispensation to a lodge permitting the Red Cross to occupy its apartments and serve lunches. He did, however, permit one lodge to engage in a Red Cross parade. Another dispensation which excited our attention was to permit a lodge to raise nine Master Masons on Sunday. He refused a large number of dispensations from lodges providing for the initiation of young men under the age of 21 years. A number of questions with the answers thereto are presented, under the heading of decisions. Most of them, however, are purely local in their application.

The grand master reported that an examination of the petitions used by the various lodges of the state showed a great diversity of form, and that the Committee on Jurisprudence had prepared a form of petition which all lodges would be required to use. Brother Treadwell reports one rather unusual circumstance. He says that the potentate of the local Mystic Shrine planned dedicatory ceremonies for last November which were far more elaborate than would be warranted during war times. He therefore took the matter up with the Potentate and made a request for a curtailment of the proposed entertainment, assuring that official that unless he concurred in the request that it would be necessary for the grand master to prohibit Master Masons to taking part in the ceremony.

The Iowa plan of Masonic service is reported in full. The grand master recommends that the Grand Lodge of Louisiana get behind the project and give it its most cordial support.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $60,628 and expenditures of $67,033.

The report of the grand secretary is an extended document covering many of the details which were attended to by him during the year. He gives the net increase in membership as 1,144 and the total number of Masons on the roll being 20,528.

The Louisiana Board of Relief make a very interesting report. The lodges of the state voluntarily contributed $4,805 for this work. The amount expended for the relief of indigent members of the fraternity was $3,844, of which amount $165 is charged against Illinois.

Louisiana maintains two grand lecturers and from their reports it is apparent that their principal business is to visit and instruct the lodges of their respective jurisdictions.

A report from the Committee on Work is interesting. In a closing paragraph they remark—

We are inclined to deprecate the lodge orator and oratory, but we think there should be a plain talk given in each of the degrees by some member of the fraternity in whom all have confidence putting plainly before the candidate the seriousness of his undertaking as a Mason.

This plan may work all right, but the chances are that it is more likely to bring disastrous results than to attain the object desired. There are so few Masons who really understand the fraternity or have any knowledge of its history, that there is a large chance of much false information being panned off on the candidate. Just at the present time there is an epidemic of symbolologists who are disposed to connect Freemasonry with all the ancient symbolisms from time immemorial. Some of the dissertations by these symbol cranks are so weird and wild that they put the tales of Baron Munchausen in the shade.

The writer is a firm believer in intelligent discourse in Masonic lodges, but the problem is to find speakers who have Masonic sense enough to properly represent the fraternity.

An oration delivered by Albert Pike before the Grand Lodge of Louisiana in 1858 was resuscitated and read by the grand master. The idea is not a bad one. Albert Pike was one of the keenest Masonic students that the fraternity ever produced. It would be far more helpful to the society to hear read articles from the addresses and works of men of his caliber than to listen to much of the effervescence which frequently bubbles over in our grand lodges under the guise of the annual oration.

From a report of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence, it is apparent that down in Louisiana that committee passes upon the grand master's choice of grand representative, either approving or disapproving the selection which he makes.

An interesting report is made to the grand lodge on the state of the order. The suggestions which they offer are valuable.

The salary of the grand secretary was fixed at $3,000 per year.

The Committee on Work introduced a resolution providing that five Fellow Crafts may be raised at one meeting of the lodge and that the lecture must never be omitted when the first and third degrees are conferred.

The election and installation of officers closed an important meeting at which much was accomplished.

The report on foreign correspondence is quite brief covering almost forty-one pages. Illinois is not among the jurisdictions reviewed, probably due to the fact that our proceedings were not received in time.

MAINE, A. F. & A. M.

The proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Maine are picked up with more than passing interest for the reason that the Grand Printer of the Grand Lodge of Illinois Alonzo Dolan was born in this particular state and has always looked upon it as the garden spot of all creation to say nothing about shore dinners. The 99th annual communication assembled in the city of Portland on May 7, 1918. One hundred eighty-two of the 206 chartered lodges were represented at the opening ceremonies which were brief.

The annual address of Waldo Pettenville, grand master, is very brief. It is one of the shortest that has come under the notice of the writer covering just eight and one-half pages. He makes the customary references to the war and recommends the observation of the one hundredth anniversary of the grand lodge to be held the next year. One new lodge was constituted, and one new Masonic temple dedicated. He reports the nomination of Frederic Oeton as representative of the Grand Lodge of Illinois near the Grand Lodge of Maine. The number of dispensations reported is limited. Among the decisions given is one to the effect that each candidate for the degrees must be balloted upon separately, another one stated that a lodge hall could be located in a dwelling house or tenement if the hall is properly secured to the satisfaction of the grand master.

The grand secretary reports the net gain in membership at 598. It is apparent that the wave of Masonic prosperity which is sweeping the country has not struck the state of Maine at the time of formulating this report. The grand treasurer gives receipts of approximately $11,000. The expenditures were nearly $12,000.

The report of the treasurer was referred to the Committee on Finance. The grand secretary's report, however, was laid on the table. Later on the Finance Committee in making their report recommended that the report of the secretary be taken from the table and approved, a rather unusual proceeding. The matter of recognizing the Grand Lodge of France was brought before the grand lodge in the form of a special resolution, recommending that recognition be granted. This resolution went to the Committee on Jurisprudence which followed the usual course of so many grand lodges to use the slang of the street that of "passing the buck," for it recommended that the whole subject go over for one year and be investigated by a special committee. A telegram of confidence was sent President Wilson and was responded to by Mr. Tumulty. The Committee on Jurisprudence made a detailed report but found no fault. Recognition was extended to the Grand Lodge of Panama. It is noticed from the proceedings that those grand lodge representatives who wanted to go home were obliged to ask permission from the grand lodge and receive a majority vote upon their request before being relieved from further attendance. The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by a committee of which the distinguished craftsman, Albro E. Chase, is chairman. Brother Chase is undoubtedly a pillar of strength in Freemasonry in Maine for he is not only Committee on Foreign Correspondence but is also grand treasurer and a member of the Committee on Jurisprudence.

His review of Illinois is interesting. He states that the musical concert given preceding the meeting appears from the proceedings to have been given after the grand lodge was opened. The remark by Grand Master Wheeler in his reference to the Advisory Council wherein he stated that their views have in practically every instance been by view, Brother Chase characterized as "wonderful to say."

Liberal extracts are taken from Brother Wheeler's remarks concerning district deputies, military lodges, remission of dues, and other subjects. Concerning the sending of all interjurisdictional correspondence thru the offices of grand masters, Brother Chase suggests that the price of postage having "ris" it would be a good time to return to the old method of direct communication between lodges. Brother Chase must have been diligent in his review of the correspondence of Charles H. Martin for he quotes liberally various paragraphs taken from the review of other jurisdictions than that of Maine.

MARYLAND, A. F. & A. M.1918

The semi-annual meeting held May 14, 1918, was one of sorrow, for Thomas J. Shyrock, who had served the grand lodge as grand master for nearly thirty-three years had passed to his reward. M. W. Brother Shyrock died February 3, after a brief illness. His Masonic record is unusual. He believed in Freemasonry, he lived it, and put forth his best endeavors toward its propagation. When he became grand master, he found the fraternity in Maryland to be highly disorganized, and threatened with financial ruin. He used his own private fortune to save the grand lodge from disaster and thru his untiring efforts, the fraternity today is in a highly prosperous condition with abundant funds at its command. The last time the writer saw him was at the triennial conclave Los Angeles, California, in June, 1916.

In discussing his long services as grand master he suddenly looked up and said, "Darrah, it is my life." The funeral of this distinguished Mason as recorded in the preface of the proceedings was a worthy tribute to the man and Mason, Thomas Jacob Shyrock.

The Grand Lodge of Maryland holds two communications each year. A semi-annual meeting was held May 14, 1918, in the city of Baltimore. The grand lodge was opened in full form and ceremony by the deputy grand master, after which, the grand master was escorted into the presence of the grand lodge and conducted to the east. The business transactions at this meeting appears to have been mostly financial reports. An amendment to the constitution was adopted, requiring every lodge to pay into the grand treasury $5.00 for each Master Mason initiated, outside of the city of Baltimore and $7.00 for each Mason initiated in the city of Baltimore. This amendment also provided for the payment of semi-annual dues of 60 cents for members residing out of Baltimore and 90 cents for those residing in the city of Baltimore. The annual meeting held November 19, 1918, appears to be the important one of the year. It was the 132nd annual assembly of the grand lodge. The acting grand master, Charles C. Homer, addressed his brethren concerning the war, and the activities of the Masons of Maryland in doing what they could toward the realization of victory. One zealous brother caused the grand master a great deal of trouble. He applied to several lodges for admission and failing to secure an election or a waiver of jurisdiction, modified the spelling of his name, changed his residence in due time was elected, initiated, passed and raised. Of course the grand master ordered him placed on trial and had him suspended from the privileges of Freemasonry and referred the case to the Committee on Grievances for final disposition. Maryland has experienced the Masonic boom for the acting grand master states that the influx of new members has been without precedent. The grand lodge apparently has plenty of funds coming in to meet its expenses and is operating at a substantial profit.

The grand secretary must have had his hands full in collecting the rents of the various Masonic bodies occupying the Masonic temple for the list is a long one. The grand lecturer states that his work was seriously interfered with on account of the Flu but that he did succeed in conferring the Master Mason's degree on 200 candidates. The amendment relating to an increase in the per capita tax was changed by the committee to read 75 cents for country members and $1.10 for city of Baltimore members and the amendment in that form was adopted. A long report is made by the Committee on Grievance. They go into much detail in the discussion of evidence and the law. The Grand Lodge of Maryland evidently believes in the efficacy of music for the sixth liberal art as we understand it Masonically was profusely used. All thru the proceedings of the grand lodge there were vocal and instrumental numbers of classical character, all uplifting and inspiring. At the election of officers Charles C. Homer Jr. was chosen grand master. It will be interesting to note whether the Grand Lodge of Maryland follows its old plan of continuing the grand master in office indefinitely or whether it adopts the one and two-year plan of most grand bodies. The installation of the grand master was conducted by the deputy grand master, after which the grand master installed the deputy grand master, senior and junior grand wardens, grand secretary and grand treasurer. Following this the grand master announced the list of appointive officers but there is nothing in the proceedings to show that they were installed. The report on foreign correspondence is from the pen of Henry Branch, past senior grand warden. Illinois is briefly reviewed. He likes the idea of eliminating the word Masonic in connection with insurance companies. He thinks our grand lodge did a little act of juggling when it decided that a man engaged in the liquor business could not petition for the degrees and then laid over an amendment providing a penalty of expulsion for those Masons who might hereafter engage in such enterprises.

It is always a pleasure to pick up the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, for the reason that many of the men active in its welfare are personally known to the writer. Then the proceedings of the grand lodge are interesting because they possess a literary value. In each year book there will be found not only illustrations of Masonic temples and distinguished Freemasons, but also much data of intense value to the Masonic student. Charles T. Gallagher, past grand master, has contributed some very valuable documents which show him to be a keen Masonic student and thoroughly in sympathy with telling the truth concerning the institution.

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts is probably the oldest on the American continent. It follows the old English plan of quarterly communications. One was held in the city of Boston on March 13, 1918. Leon M. Abbott, grand master presented an address characteristic of his ability and foresight as a zealous grand master. The question of federal taxes came to his attention and he rightly said—

I am much less troubled about the danger of being required to pay a tax, vexatious and unjust as I believe it would be, than I am to have our time-honored institution put into the class with social, athletic, and sporting clubs in a national government designation. Such relegation will be resented by every true craftsman.

The grand master found it necessary to make a ruling that service as regular warden for the period of one year in a lodge acting under dispensation makes such member eligible for election as master. Grand Master Abbott has something to say about proselytizing, and quotes extensively from Mackey's Encyclopedia concerning this Masonic sin. He concludes by saying—

I am impressed that our brethren ought to be reminded that it is one of our most sacred traditions that no one shall be solicited or invited to join our fraternity.

A candidate's application must come of his own free will and accord, of his own initiative, and unbiased and uninfluenced by any member of the craft. Let me read you what Mackey says in regard to this subject:

"In plain words, Freemasonry is rigorously opposed to all proselytism. While its members do not hesitate, at all proper times and on all fitting occasions, to defend the institution from all attacks of its enemies, it never seeks, by voluntary laudation of its virtues, to make new accessions of friends, or to add to the number of its disciples.

"Nay, it boasts, as a peculiar beauty of its system, that it is a voluntary institution. Not only does it forbid its members to use any efforts to obtain initiates, but actually requires every candidate for admission into its sacred rites to seriously declare, as a preparatory step, that in this voluntary offer of himself he has been unbiased by the improper solicitations of friends. Without this declaration, the candidate would be unsuccessful in his application."

He recommends the appointment of a special committee to prepare an adequate burial service for the reason that the present ritual service is cold, stilted, formal, and comfortless. The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts raised $58,000.00 for war purposes. Thirty-five hundred dollars of which was spent in erecting a theater at Camp Devins. The business transacted at this quarterly meeting was largely routine in character. A most excellent address was made by Charles T. Gallagher presenting what are known as the Dunham aprons to the grand lodge and a rehearsal of the activities of Captain Jeremiah H. O'Brien, a member of St. Andrews Lodge of Boston who won the first naval victory of the war of the Revolution.

At the quarterly communication of June 12, the grand master reports the purchase of an additional six acres to be added to the Masonic home holdings. He also reports a contribution of $22,388 to the Masonic home made under the Lucinda P. Dudley will. Concerning recognition of the Grand Lodge of France the grand master says—

When the Grand Lodge of France restores the name of Dietyl to its constitutions and ritual and requires of its initiates a belief in God, then indeed shall we be glad to give them most cordial recognition and extend the right hand of Masonic fellowship.

He states that additional income must be provided in order to meet the increasing expenses of the grand lodge. The debt on the Masonic temple is given at $188,000. He urges the brethren of the grand lodge to give the subject earnest consideration. At this communication a charter was granted one new lodge and a donation of $1000 to the war relief fund was reported from St. Barnard Commandery of Boston. One brother who was serving a life sentence for murder was expelled. Another Mason who made a business of borrowing money from his brethren and failing to pay it back was charged with conduct unbecoming a Mason and expelled from the fraternity. At the quarterly communication held September 11, concerning the ritual the grand master has the following to say—

We are imposing a very great hardship upon the officers of our constituent lodges in distant parts of the state in requiring them to come to Boston in order to consult our degree ritual and become letter perfect in its rendering. It takes a vast amount of time to memorize the ritual from word of mouth, and it is rare indeed that it is passed from one officer to another with absolute accuracy. Many grand lodge jurisdictions provide cipher rituals for the officers. Massachusetts makes the use of them a serious offense. I am not yet prepared to recommend the use of cipher rituals, but I do say emphatically that if we are to continue to prohibit their use we should place copies of our ritual in safe and convenient places in different sections of the state where it may be consulted and studied by lodge officers at a minimum of trouble and expense to them.

He recommends an increase in lodge dues and condemns the practice of lodges depending upon initiation fees to maintain current expenses. He also thinks lodges ought to send out notices of their meetings because it helps to keep the members in touch with the lodge. He holds that we should not accept an application for degrees or membership from any man who has not first taken the oath of allegiance to the country. At this meeting a new Masonic burial service was adopted. A Mason who had acquired three wives without taking the trouble to arrange for proper detachments from his triple matrimonial alliance was expelled from all the rights and privileges of Masonry. A splendid address was made to the grand lodge by Grand Secretary Frederic W. Hamilton on the subject of Lafayette the Apostle of Constitutional Liberty. The final quarterly meeting was held December 11, 1918. The grand master makes what is called his annual address. He reports an improvement in the financial condition of the grand lodge due to a curtailing of the general expenses and a marking up of the rentals of the Masonic temple in Boston. The grand lodge has a number of substantial trust funds now aggregating $900,000, $90,000 of which is invested in Liberty bonds.

He reports Masonry in the Canal Zone to be in a flourishing condition and recently signed a dispensation for the formation of a new lodge at Gatun. The list of visitations made by the grand master is a long one. If he was wined and dined at each one of these functions and was obliged to keep up his end of the game it would not be surprising to learn of an impaired digestive system. The closing remarks are good—

The temper and the spirit of Prussianism are still rampant and unconquered even in our land and among our own people, perhaps in ourselves, in the entertainment of evil and selfish thoughts, motives, and aims.

Democracy, what crimes are committed in thy name!

Bolshevism, socialism, communism, yes, ecclesiasticism, threaten with fresh impulse the freedom, happiness, and welfare of our people and would establish an autocracy as blinding, binding, and tyrannous as ever fettered the mind and chilled the hearts of men.

To every member of our time-honored fraternity there comes today from out of the ashes of the great conflagration of war a despairing cry for help. A piteous appeal for protection, sympathy, and comfort, yes, for guidance to those paths of enduring peace which lead to the temple of eternal happiness. What sign of brighter promise could there be than the indisputable evidence of a splendid awakening by the members of our craft to the dangers that threaten and to the opportunities that are presented to give living expression to Masonic principles?

Unprecedented numbers are seeking and securing the privileges of our membership. We are becoming more and more recognized as guardians of liberty and leaders of advancing civilization.

A great and sacred trust is in our keeping. A test of the honesty and sincerity of our professions is offered and accepted.

A revision of the code and regulations of the grand lodge was presented by a committee and duly adopted. Prior to the election of officers, the grand secretary announced the total number of votes that might be legally cast was 739. Leon M. Abbott was re-elected grand master. Massachusetts does not observe rotation in office. It does not recognize a deputy grand master. It follows the original plan of Masonry by creating wardens and past wardens from which select company it chooses its grand masters. Grand Secretary Hamilton evidently believes that the brethren are entitled to know the inside of the balloting, for the names of all candidates are given together with the number of votes received. A Mason who had been too intimate with one of the Petticoat family was expelled from the fraternity. A stated communication of the grand lodge was held on St. John's Day, December 27. The principal business of this meeting appears to be the installation of the grand officers. At each of these assemblages, the grand lodge honors three toasts to-wit—

To the memory of the Holy Saints John.

(The toast was duly honored by the brethren, all standing.)

Brethren, the second regular toast: To the memory of our illustrious brother, George Washington.

(The second toast was duly honored by the brethren in the same manner.)

Brethren, the third regular toast: To the memory of our departed brethren.

(The toast was duly honored by the brethren in the same manner.)

Following the services the annual banquet was served after which there was a lengthy programme of addresses germane to the occasion. The grand master in his remarks related a little personal incident which shows the conception some have of Masonic officials—

A short time ago, I drove my automobile in to have some slight repairs made and the superintendent, who was a Mason, had tipped off the foreman, who was also a Mason, that I was the present grand master of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. The foreman looked at the job to be done as I drove the car in, then he looked up to me and he said, "They tell me that you are the head push in Masonry." I said, "No that is not so. I am simply at the head of the Masonic push."

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts does not recognize a committee on foreign correspondence. For that reason there is no review of other grand lodges made a part of the report.

MICHIGAN, F. & A. M.

The year book issued by the Grand Lodge of Michigan for the year 1919 is of unusual proportions. The roll of Michigan Masons who answered their country's call is printed, the pages being beautifully embellished by a border of flags.

The seventy-fifth annual communication was held in the city of Kalamazoo, May 28, 1919. Following an address of welcome, the grand lodge took a recess until 1:30 o'clock P. M., at which time the grand secretary called the roll of deceased past grand masters.

Michigan grand masters serve but one year, and the roll of deceased officers is naturally a long one. The grand master, Hugh A. McPherson, presented his address to the grand lodge. He expresses great joy at the termination of the war, and refers to the deceased of other grand jurisdictions and reports the constituting of three new lodges. One cornerstone was laid during the year, that of a school building, and five Masonic temples were dedicated. The grand master made numerous official visits to the lodges of his jurisdiction showing his desire to keep in touch with Masonic conditions. Three new lodges were formed for which dispensations were issued. One lodge surrendered its character because of its inability to procure a suitable place of meeting. The town where the lodge had formerly met is referred to as a "deserted village." Of the one hundred fifty-four dispensations granted by the grand master, one hundred thirty-five related to war conditions. The proposed Masonic Service Association was endorsed, and the recommendation made that the Grand Lodge of Michigan unite in the enterprise.

A proposed flag ceremonial which had been on trial by the lodges during the year, received the approval of the grand master and the recommendation was made that it be adopted.

The grand master calls attention to the rapid growth of spurious Masonic bodies all over the United States, and warns lodges to guard the outer gate and to admit no one without proper credentials.

The removal of the grand secretary's office from Reed City to Grand Rapids is chronicled, and that statement made that the Grand Lodge of Michigan now has an office which is the equal of any in the country.

The Masonic Home receives the highest commendation. A recommendation is made that the minimum fees for the degrees be fixed at $30.00 and the minimum dues $2.00. The grand master reports no decisions, stating that during the year he took up all perplexing matters with the chairman of the Jurisprudence Committee and arrived at a proper solution of all difficulties involved. The grand master recommends that all decisions of grand masters be eliminated from the Blue Book.

Brother McPherson is to be congratulated upon presenting to his grand lodge, a plain straight forward paper, wherein he set forth his various acts in a way and manner to prevent any misunderstanding.

The senior grand warden reports concerning the activity of the grand lodge in the entertainment and care of Masons at Camp Custer. The report is a very long one, however, the sum of $9,000 was collected and $8,623 spent in making our soldier boys happy. The grand treasurer reports receipts of approximately $29,000 and expenditures of slightly over $40,000.

The grand secretary, Lon B. Winsor, makes a report which is complete in every detail.

The net gain in membership in Michigan lodges is given at 4,606, and the present membership in the state 96,403. Michigan lodges have 2,456 life members and remit the dues on 15,000 members for charitable reasons.

The report of the grand lecturer goes much into detail and shows that during the year he held 123 lodges of instruction, which were attended by 391 masters and 18,150 members of lodges.

The Board of Control of the Michigan Masonic Home make a thorough and complete report which reveals that the per capita cost per week for serving meals is $2.27. The board are to be congratulated for the economy displayed during these days of present high costs.

The Flag Ceremonial which had been on trial with the lodges was regularly adopted.

An amendment to the by-laws was adopted providing that the ballot for advancement may, at the discretion of the master, be taken collectively.

The grand lodge was called to refreshment long enough to permit Mrs. Elizabeth Webster, who had been looking after the soldier boys at Camp Custer, to be introduced and tell something of the character of her work. The report which she made is interesting in the extreme, and shows exactly what Masonry can do when properly organized and directed.

The grand lodge accepted the invitation of the Grand Lodge of England to be present at the special convocation held last June, and ordered the grand master and grand secretary to attend.

The retiring grand master was given a jewel and an apron, after which the newly elected officers were installed, and the grand lodge closed.

The report on correspondence is prepared by our mutual friend, Lou B. Winsor. It is a document of three hundred thirty-three pages. Illinois gets nine pages of review. Liberal extracts are taken from the address of Grand Master Austin H. Serogin. His edict requiring lodges to work in the English language is quoted in full, as well as all that the Committee on Jurisprudence said concerning the restoration of the charter of Lessing Lodge of Chicago. Brother Winsor quotes three pages from the Point of View with which the correspondence report of 1918 was prefaced, and in so doing paid the writer an appreciated compliment.

MINNESOTA, A. F. & A. M.

The proceedings under review open with a half-tone portrait of the grand master, William N. Kendrick, in the full uniform of United States soldier. St. Paul entertained the sixty-sixth annual communication held on Wednesday, January 15, 1919.

Two hundred and four out of 270 lodges were represented. The address of the grand master, W. N. Kendrick, is a long one. The grand master is to be commended for the following statement made in his opening remarks—

Because, in this country, Masonry is divided into forty-nine separate jurisdictions with forty-nine diverse policies, we have lost one of the greatest opportunities that ever has knocked at our door. Let us not mourn over the fact, but profit by our mistake. Let us not be caught napping again.

It is to be sincerely hoped that other grand masters will awaken to the serious condition which confronts the Masonic fraternity at the present time because of the lack of coordination. The grand master approved the by-laws of several lodges, granted fifteen dispensations, refused many to set aside the time limit concerning balloting and conferring the degrees, and approved 187 requests from foreign jurisdictions to have work done by Minnesota lodges. The grand master reports that all soldiers were furnished with Masonic diplomas printed in foreign languages. He approved a number of requests permitting lodges to occupy Masonic halls with other lodges. An increase in the traveling expenses of the grand master was recommended. The corner-stone of a soldier's monument was laid and one lodge constituted, the service being performed by the officers of the grand lodge. Owing to war work the grand master was not able to make as many visitations as he had hoped. He urges the formation of study clubs stating that now the war is over, we should turn our attention to commencing to know something about our fraternity, in order that we may appreciate its great work. The George Washington Memorial Association is highly commended. One lodge was brought upon the carpet because it issued an objectional lodge notice. There are a good many other lodges that ought to be subjected to the same discipline, for there is too much tendency at the present time toward poster advertising of lodge activities in order to excite the attention of the profane with the hope of arousing his curiosity to the extent of getting his petition for the degrees. The charter of one lodge was arrested because it had raised six candidates at one and the same time. Later on the grand master restored the charter when he found that the work they had done was by courtesy. The grand master has a lot to say about physical qualification and expresses the thought that the time has come when a modification should be made in the now stringent laws relating to physical perfection. The sum of $1,500 was sent to the Grand Lodge of France to assist them in their war emergency work. The Iowa plan of a Masonic Service Association is given full discussion and the recommendation made that the subject be referred to a committee of three to devise means of meeting the requirements in case the grand lodge wished to take up membership in this society. A long dissertation was indulged in by the grand master concerning French Masonry. Much valuable data is presented and a suggestion made to the grand lodge that recognition of the Grand Lodge of France is quite desirable. The acting grand master, George M. Stowe, who served the grand lodge during the time the grand master was away from home in war service makes a short report. He expresses great surprise at the large number of questions asked by brethren which could be quickly answered by reference to the code.

The grand treasurer reports total receipts of $23,000 and expenditures of $20,000. The report of the grand secretary states there were raised in Minnesota in the last year 2,259, the net gain in membership is 1,552 while the number of members at the close of the report is announced at 36,976. The Committee on Grand Masters Address confine themselves to separation and reference and do not attempt to influence the action of the grand lodge on any subject matter. The grand lodge is wrestling with the location of a Masonic home. The brethren of St. Paul and Minneapolis have agreed to donate the sum of $50,000 for the purchase of a site near the Twin Cities. It was expected that the location would be acceptable to the grand lodge. The report shows about $130,000 available for the construction of the home, but owing to the condition of the building market it was thought that nothing would be done at the present time. The Jurisprudence Committee make an observation in their report which ought to be taken home by every Mason who is disposed to consider the laws of the fraternity as of light and trifling character.

Laws have been enacted, both in the state and in fraternal organizations, for the more orderly conduct of society, and to these laws all should submit themselves. Law should be obeyed because it is the law, and not be lived up to or disregarded, according to the whim of the individual, and for an individual, lodge, or other body to say that a law is obnoxious, and therefore should be disregarded, breeds disrespect for all law and leads to anarchy, as is unhappily exemplified in so many parts of the world at the present moment. If a law is a bad law, repeal it, but as long as it is law it should be obeyed.

The Jurisprudence Committee approved the proposition that the Grand Lodge of Minnesota become a part of the Service Association of the United States. A Committee on Masonic Unity presented a report favoring the recognition of the Grand Orient of France as well as the Grand Orient of Italy. The report went to the Committee on Jurisprudence, to report their findings next year. The Committee on Jurisprudence made a supplementary report providing that the possession of an artificial limb or part under the practical control of the candidate shall not be considered a bar to membership. The grand lodge concurred in the recommendation. The committee made another report that a petitioner for the degrees or affiliation need not be a full citizen of the United States. They base their conclusions on the assumption that matters of this kind could be left to the discretion of the individual lodge. The installation and presentation of the jewel closed the session.

A most excellent oration was delivered by Jacob N. Nicholson, grand orator. It was a recital of the principal acts of the war and some of the deductions are most excellent. The oration is not printed in the proceedings proper but appears in the appendix. The report on correspondence is prepared by Irving Todd. It covers just seventy pages, and is brief in the extreme. Certainly the Masons of Minnesota cannot charge the correspondent with verbosity or squandering the funds of the grand lodge. Brother Todd has been very generous to Illinois. He briefly comments on the principal transactions of the grand lodge and refers to the correspondent report of last year, as one of the bulkiest that came to his notice. Concerning an inquiry as to why a number of lodges were not represented at the meeting held in 1917, Brother Todd says—

While admitting that the attendance upon the annual sessions of our grand lodge is not what it should be, considering the liberal per diem and mileage paid, how about Illinois with seven hundred and twenty-seven lodge reported present out of eight hundred and sixty-nine? Should not the inquiry begin a little nearer home? Connecticut is the only jurisdiction with a full representation. If one of their lodges fails to respond at roll call it has to show cause the following year. And the grand lodge pays nothing for attendance upon its annual communications.

Concerning the many allusions in Grand Master Berg's address to New Testament facts and characters he states that he called Brother Berg's attention to our criticism and that he replied as follows—

I made use of quotations from the New Testament in my address to the Grand Lodge of Minnesota for the same reason that the grand chaplain of Illinois injected the prayer of our Lord Jesus Christ at the opening of the grand lodge (p. 3), and the grand master's reference to Gethsemane and Armageddon in his address to the Grand Lodge of Illinois (p. 7).

Concerning the attitude of the Grand Lodge of Illinois toward military lodges Brother Todd observed that the Grand Lodge of Illinois has changed considerably from the stand taken by it during the Civil War.

The 101st annual communication was convened in the city of Meridian, February 26, 1919. The opening exercises were held in the city hall, the preliminary features being music, addresses of welcome, and an address by the grand matron of the Eastern Star. These services were held at 7:30 o'clock in the evening preceding the grand lodge session. The first business of the grand lodge was the annual address of the grand master, W. Lawrence Wilson. He says even the president of this, the greatest nation under the sun, in outlining his plans for universal peace is recommending the things taught by Freemasonry from time immemorial. This may be true. And if so, he is doing it unconsciously rather than knowingly, for so far as is known President Wilson has never evinced the slightest interest in Freemasonry. The work of the grand lecturers and district deputy grand masters is highly commended. He found time to visit forty-three lodges during the year. It goes without saying that the brethren like to see the grand master and are always pleased when he comes to visit them. Charters were issued for the formation of two new lodges, three lodges were given permission to change their places of meeting and two were allowed to change their names. Five hundred and twenty-two dispensations to ballot out of time and confer degrees were issued on account of military service. One lodge was given permission to meet in a schoolhouse until such time as its lodge room which had been blown down by a storm could be replaced.

A senior warden, who permitted irregular balloting, while presiding in the absence of the master was deposed from office. The grand master decided that a candidate in taking degrees could not affirm. Several lodges are commended because of the splendid record in war service. Hattiesburg Lodge conferred 914 degrees by request, besides 88 for themselves, making a total of over a thousand degrees conferred in ten months' time. Mississippi, like several grand lodges has the books of the secretary and treasurer audited by a special auditor. The grand master made several recommendations. One was that the present system of lecturing lodges be abolished for the reason that 150 lodges had been lectured at a cost of $4,658.40, which added to the amount expended by the lodges, $1,875, made the total cost $6,533.40.

The grand master believed that it would be much cheaper for the grand lodge to hire a regular lecturer at a sufficient salary, rather than to continue the present service. Another peculiar custom the grand master wanted stopped was permitting lodges to deduct mileage and per diem in remitting grand lodge dues. It seems that it has been the practice for secretaries to take this amount out of the required remittance and then never send anyone to represent the grand lodge. He also recommended that lodges, failing to pay their dues within the required time be fined $10 for the first month's delay and $5 for each month thereafter. Why not give the lodges to understand that they must either live up to the law or forfeit their charters, and do away with the idea of fines which in nine cases out of ten, are assessed and soon after remitted. The grand master reported the grand lodge very much in need of revenue to carry on the work of the Masonic Home. He expressed himself, however, as being opposed to any increase in the per capita tax, it being as high at the present time as the average lodge could stand.

The reports of the district deputy grand masters are purely formal. There is nothing to be gained from them that will prove helpful to the craft. The grand secretary gives a list of 79 lodges which conferred more than 21 degrees, or a total of 3,321 degrees. The grand treasurer makes no report inasmuch as the details of his office are reported by the Finance Committee. The Jurisprudence Committee make a long report in which they present seventeen questions to which they formulate answers which they call opinions. They decided that a man who can neither read nor write could not be made a Mason. Quite a long report is presented from the Masonic Home Board. The need of greater revenue is emphasized, and a recommendation made that an assessment of one dollar per capita upon all lodges in the state for the maintenance of the home. A resolution was introduced requiring every candidate for the honors of Masonry to answer the questions "Do you believe in the existence of God? Do you believe in the immortality of the soul?" The Law Committee made a recommendation that the petition for degrees be changed to embody these questions. One good thing the grand lodge did was to do away with perpetual jurisdiction over rejected candidates, requiring every candidate for the degrees, to state in his petition the fact of a former rejection should such be the case, leaving the lodge to make such investigation as might appear necessary. The report of the Committee on Necrology is short covering barely a half page. The record states that George C. Myers was elected an honorary past grand master. A modification was made in the law on physical qualifications so that the loss of a hand or foot would not debar a petitioner. The Finance Committee make a report and append thereto a detailed statement made by a public accountant concerning the exact financial status of the grand lodge. The Masonic Service Association received the endorsement of the grand lodge and a pledge was made to do its pro rata share of whatever work the craft might engage in. A special committee was appointed to inquire into the present system of lecturing lodges and to recommend some form of improvement at the next annual session. A special committee was also appointed to ascertain all the facts relative to the laws, customs, and practices, of the Grand Lodge of France and to report their findings and recommendations at the next annual meeting. The election and installation of officers ended the session. There is no report on foreign correspondence made a part of the proceedings although the record shows the appointment of a fraternal correspondent with a salary fixed at $150 per year.

It requires a book of 550 pages to record the transactions of the 98th annual meeting held in the city of St. Louis September 17, 1918. Illinois is always interested in its bordering jurisdictions, and looks with much interest at their annual transactions. It is a matter of sincere regret that there is not a greater and more frequent exchange of visits between grand officers of the several neighboring grand lodges.

The grand lodge evidently did not wish to have its proceedings interrupted with extraneous matters. For preliminary to the opening the children from the Masonic home were presented and rendered a most acceptable program of music. Following the opening ceremonies which were brief, the grand master, William A. Clark, read an address of 20 pages in which he chronicled the principal matters which came under his supervision, during his term of office. He reports the year just closed as the most prosperous in the history of the grand lodge. Referring to the tremendous increase in membership he thinks that the experienced Mason sees great dangers arising from this unusual influx into our society.

He points with pride to the fact that no Mason in Missouri has been untrue to his country and that there are no slackers in the Masonic membership of the state. Dispensations for the formation of two new lodges were issued and the charter of one lodge arrested, it having fallen into decay. Brother Clark had much to say concerning Freemasonry in France. He sums up the question in the following language—

The history of the fraternity in France is confused and somewhat difficult to follow. Originally the French Freemasonry and the English Freemasonry seem to have been identical. Neither of them required a Bible to be upon their altars. Later the English speaking lodges adopted the Holy Bible as one of the Great Lights and soon after the French Freemasonry followed their example. This innovation seems to have brought upon them many troubles, and the lodge struggled for many years under various forms of oppression.

We must remember that they were working in a Catholic country and that this religion has always been inimical to Freemasonry. The Catholics claimed that it was forbidden to have the Bible in an unconsecrated building, which they considered a Masonic hall to be, and the brethren were compelled by this longtime enemy of Freemasonry to evade in every way possible domiciliary visits and penalties for having violated this canon of the church.

Furthermore the Jews who were numbered in the membership, claimed that if Masonry were entirely Christian, then the Jews could have no part or parcel in it. That the Christian Bible contained things which they did not believe and it was proper that the Jewish Bible be placed upon its altar.

The craft in France strnggled under these difficulties for many years making but little progress and suffering many privations, privations of which we in this country can hardly conceive, and finally as a means of liberating the craft from contentions which seemed to threaten its entire destruction, the grand master of Frane, a Protestant minister, advised that the French lodges revert to the original plan which both the English and the French lodges had adopted in their beginning. This gave the Church of Rome a chance to sow dissension in the ranks of Freemasonry, which raised a cry of atheistic France. It was proclaimed that the French Masons had removed God from their constitution, the Bible from their altars, and later like accusations were brought against the schools of the Republie. As evidence that such an idea was not in the mind of the grand master who proposed the change, I beg to quote his words at the time he made the recommendations:

"Let us leave to chnches and theologians the discussion of dogmas. Let us leave to accredited church authorities the formation of systems. Let Masonry continue to be what she ought to be, an institution open to progress of every sort, weleoming all moral ideas, all elevated ideas, all large and liberal aspirations. Let us never desend into the arena of theological discussions, which discussions have never, believe me, resulted in anything but troubles and persecutions. Let Masonry take care not to aim to be an organized church, a council, or a synod, for all church organizations, all eouncls and all synods have been violent and persecuting, beeause they have all taken dogma as their base, which base is in its nature essentially inquisitorial and intolerant. Let Masonry soar majestically above all questions of churhes and sects; let her tower in her height and grandeur above all their discussions; let her be the shelter for all brave and noble spirits, for all conscientious and disinterested seekers after truth, and finally for all the victims of despotism and intolerance."

He recommends that proper recognition be given to the Masons of France. He states that he has made quite a few decisions, and reports that the practice of requiring lodges to first submit their questions to the district deputy grand master has been the means of relieving his office of a vast amount of work. He made a decision that it was contrary to the laws of the state for a Mason to sign a petition for the granting of a saloon license and comments—

I yield to no man in the delight I shall feel on that day when Imperial Missouri shall lift aloft, higher than her mountain tops, the banner of white, proclaiming to the world her freedom from the tyranny of intemperance, and debanching of her manhood by the legalized sale of intoxicating liquors.

Jurisdiction over soldiers caused the grand master some little annoyane. He held, however, that soldiers should petition the lodges of their legal residence. He discouraged rapid transit methods of conferring degrees but rendered every assistance he could in helping soldiers to receive the honors of Masonry among the lodges in whole jurisdictions they found themselves. A recommendation was made that a special committee be appointed to study the trial code of other grand jurisdictions with a view to perfecting a system for Missouri.

The New York conference is given extended notice. He favors united action among the grand lodges of the state and suggests that $5,000 be made available for ready use. The district deputy and the grand secretary received very flattering recognition because of the many burdens which they took from the grand master. The first real business of the grand lodge was manifest in sending a telegram of confidence to President Wilson. The concluding sentence was "There are no slackers, hyphenates or traitors among the Freemasons of Missouri."

A letter was read from Thomas E. Black of Ellsbury contributing a substantial sum for an endowment for the Masonic home. A Committee on Necrology make a report very much out of the ordinary in which the question of making democracy safe for the world undergoes discussion. The Grand Lodge of Missouri arranges for a blanket bond covering the offices of secretary and treasurer. Eight lodges availed themselves of the opportunity to bond officers and paid a nominal premium. John R. Parson, the venerable and efficient grand secretary renders one of his characteristic reports. He gives the present membership 74,201. A gain of 4,057 for the year. The grand treasurer reports receipts of $132,000 and disbursements of $131,800. The cash balance of the grand lodge is $45,000. The Committee on Grand Master's Address is composed of all past grand masters. This is a pretty good committee on which to place these officers who have served their time, and whose principal business is showing themselves at grand lodge and other Masonic functions.

A resolution carried providing for a special overseas war committee and an appropriation of $10,000 for the establishment of Masonic headquarters in France. The grand lodge readopted fifty fatherless children of France and set apart a sufficient sum for their care during the coming year. The grand lecturer makes a long report in which he tabulates the reports of the district lecturers as submitted to him. A cable of confidence was sent to General Pershing and a reply received. The grand lodge held an evening session on the first day, because it was deemed advisable to finish the work of the grand lodge in two days instead of one. At this meeting greetings were sent to the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of Missouri, then in session in St. Louis. The grand chaplain, Arthur Mather made a short address after which C. C. Bigger, a playmate of General Pershing, entertained the grand lodge with stories of their boy-hood days. The Committee on Chartered Lodges in Missouri certainly earn their money for they presented a report which showed that they had been diligent in their examination of the returns of lodges. The Masonic Employment Bureau of St. Louis did a good work. Nine hundred and nineteen were placed in positions at an expense of $2,867.38. This employment bureau is maintained by a per capita tax of 25 cents on the members of St. Louis lodges. The governor of the state sent a telegram to the grand master praising the Masons of Missouri relative to their leadership in war activities. A long set of resolutions were adopted setting forth the labors of J. R. Parson in behalf of the Masonic home and giving him the encomium of the Father of the Home.

The Committee on Jurisprudence presented a majority and minority report. The minority report was substituted and adopted. Somehow the sympathies of grand representatives always go to the fellow who's fighting the crowd.

A special committee on Masonic Temple brought in majority and minority reports. The minority member expressed the view that this was not an opportune time to engage in building enterprises. The grand lodge must have held the same view for it adopted the report. The grand lodge extended recognition to the Grand Lodge of Panama but the grand lodge refused to recognize the Grand Lodge of France. One thing the grand lodge did and for which it is to be commended was placing the representatives of U. D. lodges on the payroll.

The installation of officers and the presentation of the customary jewel, the singing of America closed the session. The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by C. C. Woods. He says that he approaches the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Illinois with profound respect. He says that the bulk of the volume commands attention, and gives a partial view of the virility of the order.

The prayer of the grand chaplain is quoted in full and is called striking for its fitness and beauty of expression. A liberal extract is quoted. This should prove pleasing to Walter Aitken. Brother Clark liked the idea of the Code-quiz prepared by Owen Scott and thinks that if masters could be made to study the pages of such a book the labors of the grand masters would be lessened, but aye there's the rub. Brother Clark sustains Brother Wheeler in his position relative to military lodges.

MONTANA, A. F. & A. M.

The fifty-fourth annual communication was held in the city of Billings on August 21, 1918. The session covered two days and was opened by an address of welcome which was fittingly responded to after which the grand lodge was opened and the Committee on Credentials having reported a constitutional quorum present, the grand master, Francis D. Jones, read his annual report to the grand lodge. It was a long document covering fifty-two pages. He discusses the reconstruction of the world as a natural consequence following the great war. He pays extended tributes of respect to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions. He announces the appointment of Edwin E. Mills of Chicago as grand representative of the Grand Lodge of Montana, near that of Illinois, succeeding Albert B. Ashley, deceased. He states that he instituted no new lodges in person, and that of the new lodges formed, all of them held first meetings with no formal ceremony of institution. During the year, corner-stones were laid of a Presbyterian church and a Carnegie library. The public exercises incident to the corner-stone ceremonies were held in auditoriums following the outside services.

The usual number of dispensations covering various cases were issued by the grand master, seven of which were for the formation of new lodges. Quite a number of lodges received permission to ballot on candidates in less than the lawful time. The list of official visitations made by the grand master is a long one, and shows that he was not unmindful of the lodges in his jurisdiction.

Concerning the making of a charge for the conferring of degrees for other lodges the grand master observes that the practice is one of courtesy and not a business transaction, and for that reason, no charge can legitimately be made.

The grand master reports correspondence which he had with Grand Master Austin H. Serogin, concerning a candidate for the third degree who had removed to the jurisdiction of Illinois and was being advanced in Silvis Lodge No. 898. Much complication arose concerning the fact that the candidate stuttered so terribly that he was practically deprived of speech. The result of the matter was that the candidate was raised without the usual formality of examination.

The various conferences of Grand Masters are thoroughly reviewed and the plans outlined receive his cordial endorsement. Only two decisions are reported by the grand master, and they are of local significance. A number of recommendations are advanced, the total number being twenty. They deal almost entirely with conditions of the craft in Montana.

The grand treasurer makes a very complete report covering many details which usually are to be found in the province of that official. The receipts are given at $34,605 and the expenditures $13,331. The finances of the grand lodge appear to be in excellent condition, and the work being carried forward at a substantial profit.

The question of recognizing the Grand Orient of France came up in the form of a resolution signed by one hundred thirty-six members of the grand lodge. After considerable discussion, the whole subject was tabled.

The grand secretary presents a general report of more than passing interest. He introduces one subject which ought to be brought to the attention of all grand lodges, and that is the reclamation of suspended members. He has the following to say upon the subject—

The longer that I am engaged in Masonic work, the more I am impressed with the idea that greater efforts should be put forth to secure the reinstatement of members suspended for non-payment of dues. Lodge secretaries, principally, can do a great work in the tactful collection of annual dues of the lodge members and some supplementary work on the part of masters in aiding and encouraging the secretaries in this most difficult task, will produce good returns.

While the matter of inviting Masons to affiliate after moving to a new place of residence is not generally overlooked, yet there is great merit in the extension of a fraternal welcome to such sojourners, coupled with an invitation to unite in becoming members of the lodge in the new place of residence and business. It is amazing how some of our lodges have acquired members in this way. Billings No. 113 admitted 14 the present year; Havre 12, while the lodges at Hardin and Hobson gained 7 each in this manner.

Some of our lodges erroneously have the impression that a term of residence is required before a stranger is eligible to petition for affiliation. This, however, is not the case.

One peculiar thing the grand lodge did, and that was the appointing of a special committee to censor the grand lodge proceedings, with a view to trimming down expenses as much as possible. A resolution relating to the use of electric bulbs instead of burning tapers failed to receive recognition, and the matter was left to the good taste of the lodges themselves.

Just prior to the close of the grand lodge, the grand representatives were received and accorded the grand honors. The presentation of the signet ring and the installation of officers closed the session.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by H. S. Hepner, past grand master. Illinois is considered in three pages of interesting matter. Liberal quotations are taken from the report of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler, and the various acts of our transactions for 1917 are chronicled in brief.

NEBRASKA, F. & A. M.

Through the courtesy of Francis E. White, grand secretary, we are in receipt of an advanced copy of the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Nebraska which permits the review of the transactions of that body at its sixty-second annual communication, held in Omaha, June 3 and 4, 1919.

Of the 274 chartered lodges, 229 were represented at roll call. Preliminary to the opening ceremonies, veterans of the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, and the late war met in an outside room and in due time escorted the Star Spangled Banner into the presence of the grand lodge. The brethren were called to attention and saluted the flag with the grand honors of Masonry. An address of welcome and a fitting response concluded this interesting part of the ceremonies.

Immediately following the opening Grand Master Ambrose C. Epperson delivered his annual address. He has something to say concerning the war and the cessation of hostilities, and mentions the responsibilities of Freemasonry in the period of reconstruction which is to follow. He presents the invitation from the Grand Lodge of England to attend the celebration to be held on June 27, and urges the Grand Lodge of Nebraska to be represented.

The Masonic Home of the state received his commendation, and he urges the necessity of the establishment of adequate hospital facilities.

It is noticeable that other grand jurisdictions are taking up this identical question. It has been found that grand lodges in caring for the able bodied indigent, have not been meeting their full responsibility and that in order to look after the helpless who in fact are the real objects of charity, adequate facilities must be provided to properly take care of them. The grand master has something to say about the Orphans Educational Fund, and reports that through the generosity of the lodges, the fund has now reached the magnificent sum of $101,000. The Masonic Service Association received the endorsement of the grand master, and the subject is referred to the grand lodge for its earliest consideration. The grand master refused to lay the corner-stone of a church on Sunday, and in so doing he followed the generally accepted attitude of grand masters on this subject. The corner-stone of a court house and a public school building were laid by the grand lodge during the year.

One rather unique observance is that of awarding what is known as the Jordan Gold Medal to the oldest Master Mason in the state. The holder of this memento, having died, the jewel was passed on to his successor. It appears from what the grand master has to say that cypher rituals are quite numerous in Nebraska, and a recommendation is made that lodges having them in their possession be summarily dealt with. The grand master found it necessary to issue many dispensations to confer degrees out of time. Twenty-one decisions are recorded, one was to the effect that a Fellow Craft who had petitioned a lodge and assumed the name of his stepfather rather than his own, should be permitted to receive the Master Mason's degree, but that the records in the grand secretary's office should be changed to show the real name of the petitioner. He decided that a lodge could not require a petitioner for dimit to pay his dues beyond the period or date when his petition for dimit was filed. Another decision which is rather peculiar, reads "that a Master Mason holding a dimit for more than three years and who has applied for affiliation each six months and been rejected, must be considered the same as a suspended Mason."

The grand master joins the progressives in recommending a change in the law on physical qualifications permitting the initiation of those possessing physical defects.

One new lodge was formed during the year and a dispensation issued therefore. The grand master closes his address with a paragraph on the future of Nebraska Masonry in which he says some very pertinent things. He expresses the thought that the Masons of Nebraska have been too exclusive and that the time has now come to remember that the field of Masonic activity is not limited to the territorial boundaries of the state, but that the principles of relief and brotherly love are world wide.

The report of the grand secretary is a complete document in every detail. He reports the net gain in membership to be 1,551 and the present membership 28,136.

The general receipts were approximately $56,000 and the expenditures $52,000.

The report of the grand custodian is interesting, and he has much to say concerning the promulgation of the work during the year. The central or state schools of instruction are fully endorsed, and the thought expressed that they would be of greater success if the officers of the grand lodge would attend and assist in the promulgation of the work. The grand lodge directed the grand master and grand secretary to visit the Grand Lodge of England on June 27. A Committee on Foreign Correspondence bring in an interesting report on the question of recognizing the Grand Lodge of France. The conclusions are that recognition be deferred until the fundamental requirements of Masonry, namely, restoration of the Bible to the altar and a belief in God are complied with.

The report of the Committee on Promulgation of the work contains a recommendation that where lodges take no interest whatsoever in the standard work, that the grand custodian be empowered to hold a school of instruction in that lodge and that upon failure of the brethren to take a proper interest, the grand master deal with the case as the circumstances may warrant.

The Committee on Fraternal Dead extend their sympathy to Illinois because of the passing of Monroe C. Crawford and Austin H. Serogin, two distinguished members of the craft.

On the evening of the first day, the grand orator, W. J. Ringer, delivered an oration upon the subject of Vision. It is an excellent paper and one which must have held the attention of his audience.

One thing the Grand Lodge of Nebraska did and that was to sustain the penalties assessed against lodges by the grand secretary because of their failure to send in their annual returns within the prescribed time. This is about the first grand lodge that has come under our notice wherein the penalties were made to stick. Most of them assess fines and then remit them, making the whole procedure a ridiculous one.

The Committee on Jurisprudence treated the grand master mighty well. While they naturally found some fault with his decisions, yet in the main they were endorsed and the principal points sustained.

Nebraska is codifying its laws and has a committee at work on that project. The Committee on Finance fixed the grand secretary's salary at $2,400 and allowed him $1,600 for clerk hire.

The installation of officers closed the session.

There is no report on foreign correspondence. Much space, however, is given to the publication of an honor roll giving the name, lodge, and branch of service of each Nebraska Mason engaged in the war.

NEVADA, F. & A. M.

Nevada boasts of twenty-three lodges and 2,079 Master Masons. The 54th annual communication opened Tuesday, June 11, 1918, in the city of Reno. The first order of business was the reception of grand representatives. They were formally presented and were addressed at some length by Edward A. Ducker. The representatives must have been very patient for the address delivered covers five printed pages. It may be, however, that the senior grand deacon, brought in chairs for the representatives to occupy during the delivering of the lecture, the same as is done in not a few Illinois lodges at the present time.

A pleasing feature of the first day was the presentation to the grand lodge of a handsome American flag, the gift of the wife and daughter, mother and sister of past Grand Master Trenmor Coffin, Sr., and his son Trenmor Coffin, Jr., both devoted Freemasons, now deceased.

The climax of the presentation address made by Silas E. Ross is quoted—

In behalf of Marie Coffin Summerfield, the wife and mother, and Emily Coffin Ross, the daughter and sister of these two men, tried and true, I ask you Most Worshipful Grand Master to accept in behalf of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Nevada the Stars and Stripes, and in the words of another “the flag of Bunker Hill and Lundy’s Lane, the flag of Buena Vista and Chepultepec, the flag that cast its protecting shadows where sails the Oregon, the flag that flashed and blossomed amid the snows of Alaska and anchored a watch fire upon the island of Hawaii. The same flag that sported with Freedom in the bays of Manila and Santiago, and was planted in righteous defense on the walls of China. The flag that gashes rock-ribbed mountains and causes the oceans to mingle their waters. The first flag that was born to represent a people rather than a monarch or a savage. The flag that has never known surrender. The flag that is destined to win, and to banish unholy strife and usher in ten thousand years of perpetual peace.”

Grand Master Thomas Lindsay presented a brief report which was a concise resume of his acts as grand master. He referred to the dead, of his own and other grand jurisdictions. The roll of deceased brethren was then called by the grand secretary after which, the grand chaplain offered a prayer for the repose of their souls. Immediately following this diversion the grand master proceeded with his report, which for the most part is merely a detail of degrees conferred by courtesy, approval of by-laws, visitations, and other data, of very little interest outside of the jurisdiction of Nevada. One peculiar case arose, in a lodge, wherin a commission could not be obtained to try an accused brother. The grand master recommended that the law be amended to make it possible under such circumstances, to take a change of venue to another lodge.

Brother Lindsay reports no decisions for which he is to be commended. In his report, he favored the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France and asked the Grand Lodge of Nevada to give this earnest consideration. His concluding remarks are worthy of repetition.

Today, my brethren, we hear much of this word democracy. The great American, Lincoln, defined it as government of the people, by the people, and for the people, and no better definition has been given. Where can you find a better example of its true spirit than in the lodges of Masonry? We Masons meet on the level; we discuss matters freely and get acquainted; we are fair and square in all of our dealings, consistently applying the doctrine of mutual concessions, and we ever keep well to the fore the highest ideals of liberty, truth and justice, given to us by our God for the good of all.

The grand treasurer received $2623.00 and paid out $4,295.00 for which amount $2,000 was for the purchase of Liberty bonds. The grand secretary makes a very complete and detailed report. He opens with quite a number of comments and recommendations which according to custom are usually in the province of the grand master.

On the morning of the second day the Finance Committee brought in a report fixing the budget for the year. Among the contributions recommended was one for one hundred dollars for the Y. W. C. A. for the University of Nevada. This certainly was a very generous act, but in so doing is not the Grand Lodge of Nevada, setting a rather dangerous precedent. What is to prevent the friends of other organizations from making similar demands upon the generosity of the grand lodge. If it favors one group of individuals what is it going to say to the friends of other groups. In fact where is it going to draw the line. The grand lodge voted to recognize the Grand Lodge of the Republic of Panama, also the Grand Lodge of France.

The grand lodge changed its time of meeting to the second Wednesday of June of each year. This change was deemed advisable in order that the grand commandery might meet on Monday and the grand chapter on Tuesday of the same week. The grand orator, Lewis G. Campbell, delivered a most excellent address upon the subject of The Builders. His remarks were timely, and in accordance with the spirit of the hour.

An amendment to the laws was submitted prohibiting any lodge in Nevada from conferring degrees by courtesy upon anyone who has not received the first degree in the lodge in which he was elected. This proposed amendment went to the jurisprudence body which august body reported adversely and their report was adopted. Installation of officers and concluding addresses closed the session. The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Edward D. Vanderleith, who is styled the grand commissioner of review.

He briefly reviews the report of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler for 1917, commends the code-quiz compiled by Owen Scott, and excerpts a paragraph from the oration of Oscar A. Kropf.

NEW BRUNSWICK, A. F. & A. M.

This grand lodge celebrated its semi-centennial January 22, 1918. The affair was held in the city of St. John, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, the program being made up of music, religious services and an able sermon delivered by the grand chaplain, Archdeacon Crowfoot, who took as his subject the mission of Masonry. He traced the history of liberty as it has come to the nations of the world, and drew the conclusion that the true mission of Masonry is to keep the taper of liberty alight.

The fifty-first annual communication was held in the city of St. John on the 23d day of April, 1918. The grand master, D. C. Clark, made a very competent report concerning the transactions of his office during the year. He opens with the remark that 10,000 Masons from New Brunswick have fought the fight and kept the faith on the battlefields of Europe. He reports the growth in membership to be most satisfactory and urges lodges to keep the standard high.

One corner-stone was laid during the year, that of a school building. Numerous visitations were made to the lodges of the jurisdiction. On each occasion the grand master was received with every courtesy and made to appreciate the hospitality of Freemasonry. Among the recommendations made is one that the grand secretary be given a permanent office and a salary sufficient to enable him to devote his time to his duties. The grand secretary reports receipts of $3,800 all of which was paid to the treasurer. One hundred and nine were raised, the net increase for the year being seventy-eight. The report of the grand treasurer shows the assets to be $18,000.

The election of officers occurred early in the transactions and according to the law, four scrutineers are required to supervise the taking of the ballot.

The grand lodge appropriated $400 to defray the expenses of visits of instruction to subordinate lodges. It also waived the payment of grand lodge dues on all soldiers in the service who had been exempted from the payment of dues by their respective lodges. The installation of officers and the singing of the national anthem closed the meeting. No report on fraternal correspondence was made a part of the proceedings.

NEW JERSEY, F. & A. M.

The Grand Lodge of New Jersey is entitled to take rank among the Ancients, for the one hundred and thirty-second annual meeting was held in the city of Trenton on Wednesday and Thursday, April 16 and 17, 1919.

The grand lodge was opened in ample form, and under the leadership of the grand organist, an ode was sung, after which distinguished visitors from several neighboring jurisdictions were received and accorded the honors due their various stations and places.

The grand master, Herbert C. Roriek, read an address in which he presented in a concise, interesting manner, the various matters which he had been called upon to administer during the year. He refers to the close of the war, and expresses much joy in the fact that we are about to realize in the world, liberty, equality, and fraternity. During the year the grand master received 187 applications to act upon the petitions of persons possessing physical defects. In each case the grand master ordered a physical examination to be made with the result that 164 applications were granted, fifteen refused, and eight are now pending. Requests to confer degrees were numerous, and the grand master complimented the lodges for the way and manner in which they looked after the conferring the degrees by courtesy.

Grand Master Rorick found time to visit forty-three lodges, where he was received with the honors due his exalted station. The grand master reports the condition of the Masonic Home to be excellent. After the signing of the armistice, a change was made in the form of application, it being made to include the name "Mother," in order to provide suitable care for those mothers who became dependents through the death or disability of their sons who were serving in the American army.

The grand master appears to have had the same trouble with lodge bulletins that other grand masters experienced, and he found it necessary to caution his lodges against publishing the names and addresses of candidates. The proposed Masonic Service Association is fully outlined by Brother Rorick, and he recommends its approval by the grand lodge.

From what the grand master has to say concerning war work, it is apparent that our brethren of New Jersey were by no means remiss in their duties.

The report of the grand treasurer states that he received from the grand secretary, $69,784 and disbursed $80,413. However, the grand lodge is in a most excellent condition financially.

The grand secretary reports a net increase in membership of 2,307 and gives the number of Master Masons in good standing, as 49,788.

In the list of requests to confer degrees by courtesy, Illinois is credited with thirty-eight, while the record shows that eight Illinois lodges conferred degrees for New Jersey lodges.

The report of the Committee on Masonic Homes goes much into detail, but presents conditions and finances in a way and manner that leaves no doubt but that the committee are discharging their duties in a thoroughly efficient and painstaking manner.

The report of the Committee on Necrology is a long one. They record the Masonic data of each past master who died during the year.

The Grand Lodge of New Jersey held an evening session on the first day at which the grand lecturer exemplified the esoteric work of the three degrees.

The Committee on Library present a report which is of more than passing interest, and it shows that they are not so much concerned in collecting books and periodicals for the casual reader, but that their greatest desire is to furnish the Masons of New Jersey with that information which will help them to know something about the fraternity of which they are members. A letter of inquiry which was sent out, brought the following information: Out of 66 lodges, 5 have libraries; 4 adopted plans to promote interest in the study side of Masonry, not one of the 66 had a study class; 21 had occasional Masonic talks or lectures; 43 expressed themselves as being interested in a Masonic Lecture Bureau. A resolution was passed directing the grand master and grand secretary to attend the especial Grand Lodge of the United Grand Lodge of England in the city of London, on June 27, 1919.

The Committee on Masonic Jurisprudence decided that the grand master was fully within his province in advising the lodges that they must not print the names of candidates in lodge bulletins, but that the committee could see no objection to a continuation of the present practice of lodge secretaries notifying the members of petitions received so long as the same were sent under sealed cover, and the intention was to furnish data that would be valuable in balloting.

The committee apparently believe in conducting Masonic lodges for the benefit of the stay-a-ways. If a member of a lodge hasn't sufficient interest in its affairs to attend its meetings, he certainly is not entitled to have sent to him each month, the names of petitioners under consideration in order that he may use the information thereby gained to visit his lodge and cast a black-ball against someone for whom he holds petty spite.

The grand lodge appropriated the sum of $5,000 for the benefit of sick and wounded Masons in the various war camps of New Jersey.

The grand lodge also modified the requirements of admission to the Masonic Home so that the mother of a Master Mason might be received.

The election and installation of officers was practically the last act of the grand lodge. Just before closing, a petition signed by several brethren requesting the privilege of using the German language in the ritual, was presented and referred to the Committee on Ritual for consideration and report at the next annual communication.

Robert J. Sherrifs, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence, presents a report covering 118 pages. In a very laconic manner, he reviews the principal events and transactions of our grand lodge session of 1918. He concludes his observations on our correspondence report of last year, with the following comment—

If we were the word juggler Brother Darrah accuses us of being we would throw a dash in between his first two initials and let it go at that, but we know him and like him, and offer him our compliments upon his judgment in appending some good copy to his altogether interesting review.

NEW MEXICO, A. F. & A. M.

The Grand Lodge of New Mexico held its forty-first annual communication in the city of Tucumcari on October 14. The grand lodge convened at 10 o'clock A. M. and was opened in ample form. A constitutional number of lodges not being represented owing to the health conditions throughout the state the grand lodge was called from labor to refreshment, subject to the call of the grand master. On December 9, the grand lodge reassembled and proceeded with the transaction of business.

The grand master opened with the usual references to the war and the victory which has been achieved. He enumerates the names of the dead in his own and other grand jurisdictions and reports a long list of approvals relating to the conferring of degrees by courtesy. In one instance a lodge in New Mexico was requested to install the senior warden elect of a lodge in Minnesota. Several dispensations were issued permitting Masonic lodges to sublet their places of meeting to other organizations. The grand master was quite liberal in waiving the time limit on soldier candidates both as to balloting and conferring of the degrees. He reports the suspension from office of the grand treasurer of the grand lodge, in order that the interests of Masonry in New Mexico might be properly conserved. Ten decisions are reported, one question related to receiving the petition of a German who had been eighteen years a resident of the jurisdiction. Of course the grand master decided in the affirmative. Another decision was that there was no law requiring Masons to be buried east and west. He refused to render an opinion asked for by an individual lodge member to settle a dispute, holding that the question should be submitted by the lodge under seal in order to gain recognition. Dispensations for the formation of three new lodges were issued. The grand master concluded his report by recommending that the usual banquet served in connection with the meeting of the grand lodge be dispensed with. The deputy grand master who served during the period that the grand master was absent, made a report covering his acts which are given in detail. The grand treasurer gives his receipts at $6,673. The disbursements $5,884.

The exhibit of work gives a net gain of 362 for the year and the total membership in the state 4,338. The Committee on Grand Masters Address approved all of his decisions with the exception of one, which it sends to the Committee on Jurisprudence. This committee approves the report of another committee relating to electioneering for office, and recommends that what they said, be not incorporated in the printed proceedings.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence which had been considering the question of recognition of the Grand Lodge of France asked for further time. The grand lecturer asked permission from the grand lodge to exemplify on the evening of the second day, the third degree, and the permission was granted. One brother who was in destitute circumstances received attention from the Committee on Charity. From the report, it appears that this man had a wife and four children dependent on him and had reached the stage of life when his earning capacity was quite limited. The lodge, of which he was a member had been contributing $15 a month, and the committee recommended a further payment of $15 per month to the destitute brother. Just how far anybody is going to get on an allowance of $30, who has a wife and four children to support with the present soaring prices of everything, is a matter of conjecture.

The Grand Lodge of New Mexico was not at all generous, in this case and it is a fair example of how Masons in general preach charity and administer it most penitiously. The report of the grand lecturer is interesting because it shows that in New Mexico, that officer visits all prospective new lodges, instructs the officers, and sees that they are Masonically well organized before recommending them for dispensation. The installation of officers and the presentation of the jewel closed the session. The Committee on Foreign Correspondence is a committee consisting of John Milne, and James M. Wroth. They open their report by expressing admiration for Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler, because he placed before the grand lodge without mincing words, conditions as he found them. Various other acts are briefly reviewed without comment.

NEW SOUTH WALES, A. F. & A. M.

This grand lodge holds quarterly meetings. The transactions, however, are presented in one volume. The first quarterly meeting under review, was held September 12, 1917. The deputy grand master read the report of the grand master, who was unable to be present, on account of sickness. Routine matters, only, are recited.

The chain prayer comes in for consideration and the Masons of the state are asked not to engage in the dissemination of this piece of literature. The Board of General Purposes which handles the principal affairs of the grand lodge, makes a customary report, but disclose nothing of unusual interest. The longest report is made by the grand inspector of workings and deals with various affairs which came under the direct observance of this official in his visitations to the lodges of the jurisdiction.

One thing for which the brethren of New South Wales are to be commended is for their zealousness in benevolence. The roll of honor which is made part of each quarterly report and contains the names of soldiers in overseas service, is a long one. The list of those killed in action brings home the seriousness of war. At the second quarterly meeting held December 12, the grand master makes a report which has to do principally with his visitations to lodges. He gave 108 dispensations, 8 of which were for the initiation of a Lewis, showing that the grand lodge believes in the initiation of those under 21 years of age. The Board of General Purposes report nothing unusual. When the motion was made to adopt the report of the board one brother objected on the ground that a question on physical qualifications which had been submitted to the board from his lodge had been ignored. The grand master declared the speaker out of order, because the question of physical qualifications was more in the hands of the grand master than in those of the board. So much for having a double-headed administration. The grand inspector makes a detailed report of his visitations. The freedom with which he uses the name of individuals ought to make his report interesting to those who like to see their names in print. At the third quarterly meeting held March 13, 1918, the grand master addressed the grand lodge concerning the visitations he had made to lodges. This time he reports 69 dispensations, 8 of which were for the initiation of a Lewis. The craft in New South Wales evidently believe in keeping in close relationship with the governing powers, for a grand master and his warden called upon the newly elected governor and extended him a hearty welcome on the commencement of his term of office as governor of the state of New South Wales.

The governor made no formal reply but thanked the committee for their call. The governor is evidently quite a foxy politician and is taking good care that no opportunity be given for knocking pickets off his fence. The following conclusion to the grand master's address is reproduced in full. It is so interesting that it will no doubt be taken home by thoughtful Masons—

On my recent visitation to West Wallsend, I found the supper spread in the lodge room, and only consented to sit down when assured by the brethren that the room had not been dedicated. I found upon inquiry, however, that the lodge room had been dedicated five or six years ago, and have written the brethren of the lodge that other arrangements must now be made. I learned with surprise that other lodges follow the same practice in their dedicated rooms. The ceremony of dedication must not be regarded as a mere farce, but as a setting apart of a room for the solemn purposes of Freemasonry. It renders the lodge room for ever holy, and brethren should regard such a room as what it really is, a place of divine worship, for once they lose respect for their sacred surroundings, our Freemasonry will assuredly suffer. To every thoughtful Mason the idea of a festive board within the hallowed walls of a regularly dedicated lodge room is most repugnant, and I trust no lodge in this jurisdiction will ever again offend in this direction.

From the report of the Board of General Purposes it is learned that the lodges of the state are subject to the federal income tax. The last quarterly meeting was held June 12, 1918. The grand master in his address reports 116 dispensations, 10 of which were for the initiation of a Lewis. Under the head of Co-Masonry he says that it came to his notice that some of the brethren had been attending clandestine lodges and that he found it necessary to interdict such visitations. A war fund which had been created was drawn upon for the sum of $9,500 for the relief of 24 cases.

He calls the laws of Masonry of two kinds: local and universal. The local laws he describes as those which each grand lodge sets up for its own government. The universal laws he calls those ancient landmarks which cannot be altered or changed. For this reason he expressed the belief that the law on physical qualifications is irrevocable. Believing Freemasonry to be a progressive science he urges all Masons of the jurisdiction to support the local Masonic paper. The Board of General Purposes made one decision that there is no difference between an honorary member and a life member. That each must be elected by a unanimous ballot.

The report on correspondence is prepared by a committee, K. II. wrote that of Illinois. The principal transactions of our grand lodge are chronicled in a brief manner and without comment.

NEW YORK, F. & A. M.

The one hundred and thirty-eighth annual meeting was held in the Masonic Temple, New York City, on the afternoon of May 6, 1919. The Grand Lodge of New York, like that of Illinois, is a very large body, and must necessarily meet in the largest city of the state where hotel facilities are ample.

The opening ceremonies were brief, and the first business of interest was the address of the grand master, William S. Farmer. It is a document of more than passing interest, and shows that official to have been thoroughly alert and attentive to his duties. His opening remarks are in reference to the signing of the armistice and the possibility of a League of Nations. He devotes considerable space to the dead of his own jurisdiction, his tribute to Theodore Roosevelt being exceptionally fine. He also mentions the death of Henry Guttman, representative of the Grand Lodge of Illinois near the Grand Lodge of New York, whose demise occurred May 5, 1918.

He reports dispensations for the constituting of three U. D. lodges and six dispensations for the formation of new lodges. One cornerstone was laid, and two Masonic halls dedicated. R. W. S. Charles Greene, was appointed grand representative of the Grand Lodge of Illinois near the Grand Lodge of New York, vice Henry Guttman, deceased. The grand master refers to the Sinking Fund of the grand lodge and states that out of 867 lodges, all but 162 have paid the assessment of $1.40 per capita, which was voluntarily assumed when the temple was completed. The financial statement shows that within five years the grand lodge has accumulated the magnificent sum of $1,300,000 by voluntary contributions. He urges the lodges to get behind the $1,000,000 war and relief fund and to raise the money at the earliest possible moment. But while the grand master discussed the business affairs of the grand lodge, he offered the lodges of his state, some most excellent advice—

There are other things I would have you do,—admonish the brethren to be very particular, especially in these times, in the selection of men for membership. We must have good material,—men of courage, men of thought, men of conviction.

We do not want and must not elect to membership the unworthy, cowards, grafters, trimmers, weaklings, men lacking back-bone, floaters with the popular tide no matter whither that may trend. Direct your lodge members in passing upon applications to do their full duty, manfully, bravely, without fear, without favor. Direct them to scrutinize closely the character of those who seek to join. Direct them to make exception of no man, howsoever great, howsoever wealthy, howsoever influential.

Direct them to see to it that no person be admitted to the rites of Freemasonry who does not measure up to the full standard of a man, bearing in mind this axiom, that the end of man's human destiny is not to be counted as the best Frenchman, the best Englishman, or the best American in any other sense than that he is the best man that his physical, mental and moral faculties can make of him.

Direct them to use caution, investigation, deliberation, in the privileges accorded them, and to deny no man entrance into the order Masonic, be he ever so lowly and humble, so long as his character is above reproach.

Admonish them further, that after they elect a man they teach him Freemasonry, not in the sense of mumbling over the ritual in a half-hearted, unintelligible sort of a way, but in its broadest and most significant terms. Teach him that to be accepted as a Freemason is to be counted as a man possessing noble aspirations and high ideals.

Teach him to cultivate friendship, morality, brotherly love, service, truth. These qualities should be brought out in the beginning. The best way to teach them is ever to practice them yourself.

It would be a mighty good thing, if the above could be copied and sent to every lodge officer in the United States. Grand Master Farmer reports the issuing of dispensations for the formation of Sea and Field Lodges, Nos. 2, 3, and 4, for work and instruction over seas, and advises the grand lodge that the report of their activities will be made in time.

The Masonic Home at Utica and its management received the commendation of the grand master, and he urges Masons to remember the home in their wills. This is something that ought to be brought to the attention of every Master Mason. There are many members of the craft who are without heirs, and who would no doubt be glad to will a part of their estate to the Masonic Home if the matter was properly called to their attention.

Grand master reports the indebtedness on the Masonic Temple as amounting to the sum of $2,400,000. He suggests as a means of raising this money, a voluntary per capita assessment of $7.00 payable in five years. The grand master states that he granted a limited number of dispensations to confer the degrees upon more than five candidates at one time, but that since the close of the war, all requests for such privileges have been refused. The Cedar Rapids conference is very thoroughly discussed by Brother Farmer, and the plan of a Masonic Service Association for the United States is fully outlined. He recommends it to the favorable consideration of his own grand lodge. His report on War Relief administration is interesting and shows what Masonry can do when it is properly offered.

What Grand Master Farmer said perfunctory to his edict of abolishing all German speaking lodges is reproduced herewith because it is so genuinely American in spirit—

For the sake of the Republic, we should plead for American unity. Unity cannot obtain or be preserved with foreign colonies fenced in and neighborhoods closed to callers and with preaching and teaching in foreign languages.

Brethren, I would break up all cliques in our Government. It is a big undertaking to govern this people. Even now the forces of dissension and anarchy are beating upon our shores and it will take the steadfast patriotism of all our people to drive them back and to assure the life and perpetuity of this nation.

Here and at this time, we should all possess the American spirit. Indulge in American music; American art; American literature; American customs; American ideals; American education and above all, we ought not to flatter everything which is brought here from other countries, and whether that be humans or merchandise does not matter. America cannot attain its highest standing among nations, half foreign and half American.

All newspapers printed in this country should be in English. All public speeches on national questions should be in English. All telephonic and telegraphic communications in this country should be in English.

Yes, every man should be required to transact his business at the bank, the counting-house, at the grocer, the tailor and at all public places in the English language, not by reason of spite or to annoy or harass but to adopt simply a wise precaution.

An alien language gives the alien viewpoint and if this country is to endure, we must have nothing but the American viewpoint.

If we all set to and earnestly and faithfully follow these things, ere long we shall be cemented into one complete and undivided people possessing one country, one flag, one language, one contentment, one God.

The grand secretary, Robert J. Kenworthy, presents a very brief report. He gives the number of the lodges of the jurisdiction as 872. The number raised during the year 15,287, the net increase is 8,095. The grand treasurer gives total receipts of $281,026.96 and expenditures of $278,872.23.

The trustees of the Masonic Hall and Asylum Fund present a very long report concerning departments under their supervision.

The grand librarian in his report states that the attendance at the library in the year has been the largest in the history of the grand lodge. This would indicate an increasing interest in Masonic literature on the part of members of the craft.

The report of Sea and Field Lodge No. 1 is interesting as it shows the number raised to the sublime degree to be 734, while the total receipts from all sources were $14,802.73. The grand historian presents a most interesting report concerning the history of Freemasonry in the state of New York. It covers 30 pages, and should prove highly interesting to the fraternity in the Empire state.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence presented a report fully endorsing the proposed Masonic Service Association, and the grand lodge by adopting the report placed itself on record as favoring the proposition.

A resolution was unanimously adopted directing the War and Relief administration to build at Utica, a hospital, in accordance with a plan suggested by the grand master in his address.

In a lengthy report from the Committee on Constitutions, an amendment was adopted providing that every candidate for the degrees shall pay in addition to the prescribed lodge fee, the sum of $13.50, $3.00 whereof shall go to the Hall and Asylum Fund for general purposes, and $10.00 to the trustees to be held in perpetual trust, the income to be used for the benefit of the Home and Hospital. According to the report of the Finance Committee, the grand secretary receives a salary of $6,000 and is allowed $5,800 for necessary clerk hire.

A resolution was introduced by William Shearer providing—

That upon the official documents issued by the grand lodge of this state, particularly to foreign jurisdictions, all correspondence to foreign jurisdictions and all the literature stand in the name of or have the words "In God We Trust."

This is all right, and the writer is for it. Of course, there will be those who will cry that such procedure is not orthodox, and is a violation of the landmarks. The action of the Grand Lodge of New York demonstrates clearly just exactly how Masonry has grown and developed in the past two hundred years. Now that In God We Trust has become a part of the official nomenclature of the Grand Lodge of New York, it goes without saying that a time will come when this expression will be regarded as fundamental and one of the distinguishing landmarks of Freemasonry.

The election and installation of officers closed this very interesting session.

Appended to the proceedings is a complete report of the efforts made by the Masonic Overseas Mission to secure permission from the Government to engage an Independent War Relief Work abroad. It is one of the most interesting Masonic documents that has recently been published, but lack of space forbids any reference at this time.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by a committee of which William Shearer is chairman. Illinois is given one and one-quarter pages of brief review in which nothing of a critical character appears.

NEW ZEALAND, A. F. & A. M.

This grand lodge has 203 constituents with an aggregate membership of 15,000. The 29th annual communication was held in the town hall at Wellington on May 8, 1918. There were in attendance besides grand officers and representatives a large number of past masters. The opening ceremonies were brief, after which the grand master read his annual address. He has much to say concerning the war, the raising of war funds and the establishment of what he calls Masonic hutsments at the front. Quite a number of amendments to the established laws of the jurisdiction were considered at this meeting showing that the grand lodge is disposed, to fix up its rules and regulation in the most approved style and fashion. The proceedings are largely made up of tables covering the various funds which the grand lodge maintains and for which they are to be highly commended. Report is made of the appointment of James A. Steele of Illinois as representative of the Grand Lodge of New Zealand near the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Five new lodges were awarded charters and an effort made to conserve the finances of the grand lodge by a reduction of the printing cost of the proceedings.

The grand lodge paid the war bonus of 10% on the salary of the grand secretary and his assistants. An effort to locate permanently the office of the grand lodge in the city of Wellington was after lengthy discussion defeated. A long report was made on the question of French Masonry and an effort made to get the grand lodge to formally recognize the Masons of France. After much discussion and parliamentary maneuvering the question was finally referred to the Board of General Purposes to be reported on next year. There is no report on correspondence made a part of the proceedings.

NORTH DAKOTA, A. F. & A. M.

The twenty-ninth annual meeting was held in the Masonic Temple at Fargo on Tuesday, June 18. The session covered two days. The first item of interest was the introduction of the national colors by veterans of the Civil War who wore their blue uniforms. They halted at the altar while the national anthem was sung. The grand master, William J. Reynolds, presented an address which required him fifty minutes to read. He opens with references to the troublesome times which are confronting the country, and offers a pledge of loyalty on the part of the Masonic Fraternity. He issued many dispensations, two of them were for the initiation of young men under the age of twenty-one. Three new lodges were formed during the year, also one military lodge, known as No. 2. He reports no decisions for the reason that no questions arose which seemed to merit the necessity of making a special interpretation of the law. He laid the corner-stone of a court house, and dedicated two Masonic temples.

The various Masonic conferences held during the year received favorable mention. The grand master expresses his gratitude to other jurisdictions for the very kindly manner in which they came to the relief of the lodges of North Dakota during the strenuous war times. He reports that special war certificates were issued to all members of North Dakota lodges engaged in war service.

He takes a fall out of the Groto in the following—

During the year we have had some correspondence relative to this institution, the full designation of which is The Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm. We have also received a visit from Mr. Edwin S. Schmid, grand monarch. There has been some talk of organizing in this jurisdiction.

While the order makes no claim to being Masonic, no one but Master Masons can become members. Our investigation has not been very thorough, but we are firmly convinced that there is already enough distraction in Masonry now, that no good could come to Ancient Craft Masonry here and there is possibility of infinite harm. We recommend that steps be taken to restrict the introduction of this or similar organizations in this jurisdiction.

This is not the first case on record wherein grand masters have found it necessary to place restrictions upon this pocket edition of the Mystic Shrine. The pernicious activity of officers of this organization in camping around Masonic lodges, and soliciting petitions for their society has worked untold harm to the fraternity and it is not surprising that many grand masters have been disposed to start after the Grotto with a club.

The number of visits to lodges made by the grand master is quite limited. His business engagements prevented him from going as much as he would have liked. He endorsed the George Washington Memorial Association and recommends that a substantial donation receive the attention of the grand lodge.

He also recommends that the salary of the grand secretary be properly increased.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of approximately $13,000 and disbursements of $11,895. The grand secretary in his report shows a net gain in membership of 565, and the total enrollment of the lodges, 11,233.

The grand secretary makes a number of recommendations which have come to him as the result of his experience.

The report of the librarian is most interesting. It shows that 224 Masons borrowed from the library 954 books. Of the books loaned, 387 were on history and travel, 143 on sociology, and 107 on Masonic history and symbolism.

The grand lodge disbursed for relief of dependents, the sum of $650 from which it is apparent that the Masons of North Dakota are in a prosperous condition of affairs.

The grand lodge stopped long enough during its busy session to witness the conferring of the third degree which was done by the grand master, assisted by a degree team from Fargo. On the Tuesday evening, a public patriotic rally was held at which Mr. Hewison Pollock, the winner of the Thompson Memorial prize for the year 1918 gave his oration, the World Citizen.

The Jurisprudence Committee is a big one, containing eleven members. One thing the committee did was to order all lodges that had been remitting fees to immediately collect the amounts due and which had been remitted. At this point in the proceedings, a delegate from the Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star appeared, the grand lodge was called to ease, the visitors introduced, and quite a long speech of greeting delivered.

The question of recognizing the Grand Lodge of France was referred to a special committee to report later on.

A telegram containing a pledge of loyalty was sent to President Wilson during the closing hours of the grand lodge.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Grant H. Hager. He gives Illinois five and a half pages of very courteous review. Liberal extracts are taken from the report of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler. He admires his backbone in stopping vicious practices among the lodges and in general considers our proceedings illuminating.

NOVA SCOTIA, A. F. & A. M.

The Masons of Nova Scotia assembled in 53d annual communication in the city of Halifax, June 12, 1918. The grand secretary, not being able to be present the grand lodge on motion directed the grand master to appoint a committee of three to consider the position of the present grand secretary in relation to the grand lodge and to report prior to the election of officers. The grand lodge then suspended business, formed in procession under the direction of the grand marshal and marched to St. Paul's Church where a sermon was preached by T. C. Tellor from the text "Our Father Which Art in Heaven."

The sermon was all right but the many references to Jesus Christ will hardly find favor with many of those Masons who hold to the opinion that such references are largely sectarian and for the most part should be avoided in all Masonic addresses. The grand master, Donald F. Fraser, read an address to his grand lodge of more than passing interest.

He says considerable about the sacrifices of the Canadian soldiers in the war. Special mention is made of the Halifax disaster, which he characterized as one of the most horrible that ever befell any community on the American continent. In this hour of affliction, the Masons of Nova Scotia were not found wanting. The state of the craft is characterized by the grand master as flattering. The Masonic home comes in for much praise and commendation. Detailed reference is made to the lodges visited by the grand master which will no doubt prove pleasing to those who received mention at his hands. The grand master calls attention to the finances of the grand lodge. It appears that the fund collected from the constituent lodges for the maintenance of the Masonic home is not sufficient. And that it is necessary for the grand lodge to appropriate from the general fund sufficient monies to carry on this good work.

He recommends that each particular candidate for the degrees be required to pay the sum of $10, the same to be used for the support of the homes. An imposter who sought to prey upon the craft was summarily dealt with, when he was sent to the penitentiary for two years.

The grand master invited an avalanche of brickbats when he referred in his address to the fact that James C. Jones, assistant grand secretary, had received the 33d degree at the hands of his Scottish Rite brethren. It will now be in order for the standpatters to commence to heave. All rulings, official acts, dispensations issued are very properly enumerated in an appendix made to the report. One decision is worthy of notice. That a young man who has served a term in the penitentiary is not eligible to the degrees of Masonry. The grand secretary gives the total membership as 7,124. A net increase of 197 for the year. The grand treasurer gives his receipts at approximately $10,000 and expenditures of almost the same amount. A special committee on the Halifax disaster reported that 17 Masons were killed as were 48 members of Masons families. Assistance was rendered in 145 individual cases, the amount expended being $11,973.42. The grand lecturer in his report recommends that a ritual be published by the grand lodge which shall be available to the officers of constituent lodges to supplement the work of the grand lecturer.

The reports of the district deputy grand master which appear in the proceedings show that those officers have been diligent in the discharge of their duties. The reports which they make reveal a very good idea of the condition of the lodges throughout the jurisdiction. The grand lodge officially expelled one member who was serving a term in the penitentiary for bigamy. The committee appointed to inquire into the condition of the grand secretary reported a recommendation that that officer being in a poor state of health be given a retiring allowance of $75 per month.

The Jurisprudence Committee brought in a report backing up the grand master in his various decisions. It appears that certain changes in the ritual were suggested by the grand lecturer. The committee on his report urged the grand lodge to be very careful in considering changes or alterations and urged that the Mouth to Ear Doctrine be followed as closely as possible.

The report on foreign correspondence is by James C. Jones, grand secretary. Illinois is well considered, liberal extracts being taken from the reports of Ralph H. Wheeler. Concerning club rooms he observes, "fancy having clubrooms where billiard and pool tables are prohibited." Brother Jones evidently has a good idea of what constitutes a club for without the cues and the ivory balls it would hardly measure up to the accepted idea of the modern loafing place.

OHIO, F. & A. M.

The one hundred and ninth annual grand communication should have been held in the city of Columbus, on the 18th of October, but owing to the prevalence of influenza, all public meetings were prohibited. As a result, the meeting was postponed until Wednesday, November 26.

The officers and members of the grand lodge assembled at the Deshler Hotel in Columbus at 9:30 A. M. and under escort of Mt. Vernon Commandery No. 1, were conducted to the Masonic Temple where the sessions were held.

Preceding the opening, there was a program of music and addresses. After the public ceremonies, the grand lodge was opened and immediately proceeded with the business of the session. The Grand Lodge of Ohio boasts of an unbroken line of twenty-six past grand masters, and their group picture appears in the opening pages of the proceedings.

The grand master, Henry M. Hagelbarger, presented a report which is not only interesting to read but shows him to have handled the affairs of his office with discretion and care. His opening paragraphs pertain almost wholly to the war. He enumerates the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions. He appointed twenty-five district lecturers, and advises the grand lodge that those officers performed their duties in a highly efficient manner. He issued 131 dispensations, and these are printed in full in the appendix. He states that he refused many dispensations showing that he believed that as far as possible, the rules and regulations of the fraternity should be adhered to. Three dispensations for the formation of new lodges were granted. Six lodges were constituted, eight Masonic temples dedicated, and five corner-stones laid. Of the corner-stones laid, two were for Masonic temples, two were for school buildings, and one a Methodist church.

The grand master states that other grand jurisdictions were very generous in conferring the degrees by courtesy on candidates belonging to Ohio lodges. The three lodges at Montgomery, Ala., alone conferred over 400 degrees for Ohio lodges.

Brother Hagelbarger advises the grand lodge that a number of requests reached him to have the degrees conferred by lodges in France, but inasmuch as the Grand Lodge of Ohio was not in fraternal communication with the Grand Lodge of France, there was nothing he could do in the premises. At the time of the Halifax disaster, the grand master reports sending $500 for the relief of Masonic sufferers. The sum of $3,000 was donated to the Commission for Relief in Belgium.

Grand master reports the collection of $26,714 which was donated by the lodges of the state for the purpose of building a Masonic House at Camp Sherman, Ohio. He reports that the results attained fully compensated the brethren for whatever sacrifice they may have made. The grand master found time during his busy administration to make twenty-six official visits to the lodges of his jurisdiction. The Washington conference as well as the New York conference received favorable commendation. He states that the two German speaking lodges working in the state of Ohio voluntarily changed to English speaking. He remarks in conclusion—

The feeling has grown up in my heart that the war has increased the attachment of men for Masonry, that they have been willing to live more for others and less for themselves, that men have been thinking more about the essentials of life than at other times, that they have found a real joy in performing a real service for some one who had a real need, that this helpful service has opened up avenues of friendships never before dreamed of. To the Mason thus engaged even in the midst of the hardships of war, this period has been the greatest time in his life.

Masonry is founded upon eternal principles that answer every demand made in either times of peace or times of war, and while we remember the landmarks of Masonry, we shall not forget the landmarks of Liberty.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $102,273 and expenditures of $85,016, leaving a balance in the General Fund of almost $100,000.

The report of the grand secretary gives the net increase in membership for the year of 3,849, and the Master Masons in good standing, 122,343.

An amendment was submitted fixing the per capita tax at $1.25, of which amount twenty-five cents is to be retained by the grand lodge, and one dollar turned over to the trustees of the Masonic Home. Of this one dollar, fifty cents is to be placed in the building and equipment fund, and fifty cents used for maintenance. After a prolonged discussion which the grand secretary records in full in the proceedings, together with an attempt to amend the amendment, it was carried. Ohio has simply done what every other grand lodge must do which maintains a home. It must have revenue to sustain these institutions, and as the grand lodge grows, and its dependents increase, there very naturally arises the demand for more revenue.

The election and installation of officers closed the session.

The grand secretary, J. H. Bromwell, is to be commended for the very tasty manner in which he has arranged the appendix to the proceedings proper.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Nelson Williams, past grand master. He gives 155 pages to the consideration of the various grand jurisdictions in the United States. Any one can gain a most excellent idea of the condition of Masonry by a perusal of his report. Illinois received generous notice. The principal acts transacted at our annual meeting of 1917 are carefully reviewed. All that Grand Master Wheeler said upon the subject of military lodges is quoted in full, because it expresses the ideas held by Brother Williams. He likes the legislation enacted by Illinois, prohibiting Masons from appearing in saloons in Masonic clothing, and thinks the amendment prohibiting smoking in lodges is excellent.

While the amendments in question are undoubtedly for the best interests of Masonry, it seems strange, however, that a great jurisdiction like Illinois should have been compelled to resort to legislation to accomplish that which it failed to secure through its teachings.

OKLAHOMA, A. F. & A. M.

The eleventh annual communication was held in Oklahoma City, April 29 and 30, and May 1 and 2, 1919. After an address of welcome and a response, the grand lodge was opened, and distinguished visitors received.

The first thing was the presentation of the rules and order of business in which a specified time was set for the discussion and presentation of various matters which were scheduled to come before the grand lodge. This is a most excellent plan. Too many grand lodges go at their business in a careless, slipshod manner with result that every fellow having something to offer watches his chance and pops it through at the first available opportunity. The result is a lack of continuity and sequence, and when the grand lodge meeting is over it is found out that somebody forgot something.

The grand master, Joseph W. Morris, presented a long report and submitted the various affairs which had come under his notice during the year. After paying suitable tribute to the dead of his own and other jurisdictions, he reports the laying of corner-stones of a Baptist church, four Masonic temples, a Y. M. C. A. building, and a dam. This is the first dam corner-stone that has come under the observation of the writer. The grand master also laid the corner stone of a court house. He was generous in the matter of issuing dispensations but refused to permit the initiation of anyone under the age of twenty-one. He states that the lodges of Oklahoma conferred 2,928 degrees by courtesy for other jurisdictions, and were the recipients of like courtesies to the extent of 897 degrees.

Of the lodges of the state, 112 bond their secretary and treasurer, and 89 carry insurance on lodge property.

Three new lodges were organized during the year, and six lodges under dispensation, were duly constituted. Among the recommendations made by the grand master was one relating to the bonding of lodge officers, in which he suggests that it is not right to ask members of the lodge to sign personal bonds, and that it would be better if these officers were bonded in a surety company. Two acts of lodge consolidation were accomplished, the charter of one lodge arrested, while one lodge voluntarily surrendered its warrant.

The grand master makes no decisions, but renders what he calls interpretations of law. He decided that a brother suspended for non-payment of dues was not entitled to a Masonic burial.

The New York conference of grand masters, as well as the Cedar Rapids conference are reported in full, and the grand master reports a recommendation favoring the Iowa plan of National Masonic Service.

The grand master took up the question of a Cipher Key, and wrote various grand jurisdictions to ascertain what their practice was. The answers that he received are presented in tabulated form—

North Carolina—We have no such thing and know nothing about it.

Massachusetts—Possession of one here is sufficient grounds for expulsion.

California—No, the obligation prohibits it.

Arkansas—No, we are drastically against it.

Wyoming—Yes, we have it. Don't like it very well.

Nevada—No, No, No.

Louisiana—Forbidden in this jurisdiction.

Alabama—No key of any kind is used.

New Jersey—We have none.

New York—Its use is prohibited.

Missouri—No.

Pennsylvania—Not in Pennsylvania.

Nebraska—An offense to use it.

Virginia—Our work taught orally. Opposed to key.

Delaware—We swore we wouldn't and we won't.

Maryland—Have no key in any shape or form.

New Mexico—Ilegal in this state.

Minnesota—We have it here. The brethren in general know nothing about it, and I doubt if one in a hundred could make anything out of it.

Iowa—We have none.

Utah—Very much opposed to its use.

Illinois—if you decide to adopt it well and good, but we have always frowned on such action.

Wisconsin—I know my advice as grand secretary of Wisconsin does not amount to a great deal, but I would suggest to the brethren of Oklahoma to think a great many times before they permit an official key to the work.

Florida—Don't have it. Always voted down.

Colorado—Yes, we use them, but they are a ghastly thing.

Tennessee—Old fashioned enough down here to stick to the old way.

Kentucky—Grand lodge has never authorized its use and I hope it never will.

The result was that the grand master made a report advising against the adoption of a cipher ritual.

The grand treasurer gives his receipts as $122,000 and his expenditures $120,000. The grand lodge stopped long enough in its proceedings to listen to an address delivered by W. Marx Sexson on the Service Flag and Old Glory.

The grand secretary, in his report, shows the net gain in membership for the year 1918 to have been 3,865, a most excellent showing. The membership of the lodges on January 1, 1919, was 36,200.

A resolution was introduced fixing the mileage and per diem at $3.00 and 6½¢ per mile one way.

The report made by the Board of Control of the Masonic Home is a long one, but it shows that the Masons of Oklahoma have their charities well organized and in a most excellent financial condition.

The Committee on Law and Usage make a report wherein they approve part of the things which the grand master did and disapprove of other things. They recommended that no recognition be given to the Iowa plan of National Masonic Service at this time, and that the subject be held over for one year. They also recommended that nothing be done toward the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France. However, when the grand lodge got hold of the report, they amended it to the extent of voting to take membership in the Masonic Service Association of the United States. This clearly demonstrates one thing. The committee to whom this subject was referred, undoubtedly belong to the old school of Freemasons, while the grand lodge itself was more or less progressive, and didn't propose to stand for committee rule.

The Finance Committee made a report fixing the salary of the grand secretary at $2,700 and allowing him an assistant at $1,200.

The election and installation of officers closed the session.

The report on foreign correspondence is written by Thomas Chauncey Humphrey. He gives Illinois a page and a half of kindly mention quoting liberally from the address of Grand Master Austin H. Serogin, as well as from the correspondence report of last year.

OREGON, A. F. & A. M.

The sixty-eighth annual meeting was held in Portland on Wednesday morning, June 12, 1918. The roll was called and a constitutional quorum being present the grand lodge was opened in ample form.

The first thing done was to receive representatives of other grand lodges and accord them the grand honors of Masonry.

The grand master, Weston G. Shelenbarger, presented his annual report. He refers, first, to the dead of his own and other grand jurisdictions; reports the constituting of two lodges and the instituting of three.

The grand representative of the Grand Lodge of Illinois, near the Grand Lodge of Oregon, William T. Wright, having died, William J. Kerr, was appointed to succeed him.

Concerning the conferring of degrees by courtesy, the grand master suggests that the work done near military camps became more of labor than of courtesy. He states that he has always been opposed to issuing dispensations to confer degrees in less than the lawful time, but waived his own prejudices in the case of soldiers going overseas.

He reports eleven cases under the caption of decisions, all of them are merely constructions of Oregon laws. Concerning military lodges the grand master expressed himself as being favorable toward them, for the reason that every opportunity for fraternal association should be given our soldiers boys.

Nineteen lodges failed to make their annual reports to the grand secretary. The grand master got after them and was obliged to listen to a lot of flimsy excuses and apologies. The grand master reported that he made a sixty mile trip into the country to personally investigate one delinquent lodge and while there took disciplinary action.

Much of the trouble with delinquent lodges is largely due to lax methods on the part of grand officers. The threat to arrest the charter of a lodge which fails to comply with the requirements is very seldom carried out. Lodge officers know this, and the few charters arrested leads them to believe that their shortcomings will be forgotten and their sins forgiven. A generous lifting of charters in chronic cases of delinquency would go a long ways toward weeding out organizations which are not a credit and would impress officers with the idea that grand lodge means business.

A man who had been previously rejected in one of the lodges of the state turned around and petitioned another lodge without making the fact of his rejection known, he was elected and received the degrees. The grand master upon being informed of the fact ordered charges preferred against him which was done and judgment rendered. No doubt the man's curiosity was satisfied even if it did cost him a little trouble and money.

The grand master had quite a little to say concerning the Grand Lodge of France but it was more sentimental than Masonic or historical. He recommended, however, that recognition be given to French Masons. The supply of rituals being exhausted, the grand master recommended that a new supply be printed, and calls attention to an alleged improper use of the rituals. He says, it is not to be used as a text book to slip into a half concealed place from which to read the work as he has seen done several times.

Well gee whiz! what's the book for if it isn't to make it easy for the lodge officer to get by. Maybe the work might be more easily recognized as Masonic when read from the book than when rendered orally from memory.

Lodge officers in these days are becoming very crafty. Many of them carry flash lights in their pockets so that if the room happens to be dark or the lights go out they can still use their eyes and their books, and make a bluff, at getting by with their work.

The grand master makes two observations in his conclusion which are so apropos and timely that they are reproduced in full—

There is a desire on the part of a large number of our brotherhood to learn more of the philosophy of our teachings. This desire has led many to be duped by mercenary rogues and fakers going about under the guise of Masonic lecturers. When they have finished the discovery is made that the "cards" were stacked or they are up against a "shell" game. Unknown and itinerant lecturers should present their credentials and have the approval of the grand master before being permitted to appear under the auspices of Masonry.

Masonic lodge rooms have been used for the purpose of calling together and organizing bodies for implied patriotic purposes, but whose aspect is largely political. I believe in stimulating and encouraging patriotism in every legitimate way, but let us be sure that it is patriotism; it takes more than a patriotic handle to make it so.

The grand treasurer reports total receipts of $24,000.00 and disbursements of $18,787.00, apparently the grand lodge is being operated at a very neat profit. The grand secretary reports that one hundred and forty-four lodges raised 925 during the year. The net gain in membership is given at 648. Of the fifteen thousand Masons of the state 263 are permanently exempted from the payment of dues and over 500 were relieved from the burden during the year 1917.

The report of the Committee on Necrology is brief. However, a special memorial service was held in honor of three grand masters who had died during the year. A very good oration on the Temple of Masonry was delivered by the grand orator, William W. Youngson. He didn't bother himself about the origin of the society but sought to draw lessons from its teachings that would be helpful in the building of character.

The fraternity of Oregon in cooperation with the Eastern Star are preparing to construct a new Masonic home and judging from the report of a special committee having that matter in hand substantial progress is being made.

An amendment to the by-laws of the grand lodge was adopted fixing the fee for affiliation at $5.00, the amount to be paid to the grand secretary to go into the Masonic home fund. The minimum fees for the degrees was placed at $35.00.

The first thing the grand master did on Friday the last day of the meeting was to announce that delegates not present at the final roll call would not be entitled to mileage. The grand secretary then proceeded to call the roll and the absentees had their names expunged from the payroll. This was pretty hard on the boys who were sleeping late that morning or who had hiked out for home thinking the pay check would follow.

As a result of the grand master's recommendation concerning the issuance of a new edition of rituals the Committee on Jurisprudence brought in a report advising a more judicious use of these text books, and recommended that all rituals be called in leaving but just two in each lodge to be in the possession of the master and senior warden.

The Committee on Recognition of the Grand Lodge of France made a favorable report recommending the establishment of full fraternal relations and the report was adopted. The grand lodge did one good thing—it adopted a form of request for conferring degrees by courtesy. It is apparent from the report of the Committee on Mileage that representatives are allowed their actual expenses for a recommendation is made that hereafter representatives take receipts for all money expended and for which reimbursement is claimed. It is noted from the report that those who draw mileage from the grand chapter meeting held at the same time as the grand lodge are not paid by the grand lodge.

It might be very pertinently asked what the grand lodge knows about the grand chapter. The grand lodge got into quite a muss over an appropriation of $5,000 to be used for the purchase of four trucks to be loaned the government during the period of the war. After considerable discussion the amount of $2500.00 was finally allowed for this purpose.

The election and installation of officers closed the session and the retiring grand master was given the customary apron as a reward for his devotion to the craft. The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by David P. Mason. Illinois receives four pages of courteous treatment.

The principal acts of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler are recited without criticism. He calls the action of the grand lodge concerning clubs impracticable. A liberal quotation is made from the oration of Oscar A. Kropf and the oration pronounced excellent.

PENNSYLVANIA, A. F. & A. M.

It is always a pleasure to look over the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania. This jurisdiction is not only one of the oldest on the American continent but it is likewise one of the most conservative. Its charities are unbounded. In its work it still adheres very closely to the old ritual of the original Freemasonry of England. It may be said to the credit of Pennsylvania that it has not gone wild over ritualistic perfection, but has contented itself with making degrees a means to an end and has devoted the major part of its efforts toward the exploitation of the real principles of Freemasonry.

In its early and formulative period Freemasonry, in Pennsylvania must have been fathered by some very wise and able men with keen foresight, for through wills and legacies there have been created numerous trust funds totaling a good many millions. There is no reason why wealthy men should not leave trusts to the Masonic fraternity. Many of them will no doubt do so just as soon as the society quits dabbling in trifles and commences to place itself before the world as a genuine fraternal institution.

If men are willing to leave legacies to churches, hospitals, schools and colleges, why shouldn't they make donations to the Masonic society, an institution founded upon the principles of fraternity among men.

The proceedings at hand contain a most excellent steel engraving of James Krause, grand master, who is personally known to the writer, who is only too glad to vouch for the ability and integrity of the grand master at any time. The Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania holds quarterly meetings following the English plan. At the quarterly meeting held March 6, 1918, a very peculiar case is reported by the Committee on Appeals. A physician was charged with adultery and rape, the victim being a child under the age of sixteen. The Trial Board found the accused guilty and recommended to the lodge that he be expelled. The lodge, however, refused to comply with the recommendation. The result was that an appeal was taken from the action of the lodge and the grand lodge ordered the accused expelled. It is hard sometimes to understand why it is that lodges refuse to do their duty in such flagrant offenses as is reported.

Two generous gifts are reported; one, the deed of ten acres of ground to the Masonic home at Elizabethtown, the gift of William Donaldson, also a present of $10,000, the income to be used in planting trees and shrubs about the home properties.

The war fund raised by this grand lodge totals $72,400. At the second quarterly meeting held June 5, 1918, a request for a new lodge at Pittsburgh was received and referred to the grand officers. The grand master had the following to say which will be interesting to the Masons of Illinois—

The Grand Lodge of New Jersey at its recent meeting, upon motion of the representatives of the German-speaking lodges, abolished the use of the German language in the work of the lodge. Following that published action, your grand master was requested by newspapers to state what action the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania might take.

We declined to speak publicly, or to anticipate the action of this grand lodge, especially as the question has never been raised in Pennsylvania.

The Ahiman Rezon, as well as the charter rights of our German lodges, permit the use of the German language in ritualistic work, and they cannot, therefore, be deprived of that right by summary action of the grand master, were he disposed so to do.

While we must be ever watchful for enemy intrigue, let us, however, keep level heads and be fair, just and considerate toward all our fellow citizens and brethren, even though the language spoken is German, who by their daily walk and conversation give evidence of unreserved loyalty and patriotic devotion to the flag of their adopted country and its mission in this stupendous world conflict.

Grand lodge for many years has considered that the welfare of the fraternity would be best served by requiring all our lodges to use the English language exclusively, and in abundant time this may be accomplished by the voluntary act of the brethren.

It is apparent from the above that Pennsylvania has been disposed to temporize with the subject. This writer upholds the course pursued by Grand Master Austin H. Serogin of Illinois, who interdicted the use of any but the English language, in the conferring of the ritual and gave the nine German lodges of the state a limited time in which to comply with the terms of the edict or forfeit their charters. It is not a question which involves the German language alone, it is simply a principle that in the great United States none other, but the English language shall be employed.

At the quarterly meeting of September 4, George Schoonover, grand master of Iowa was present among other distinguished guests and was accorded the grand honors of Masonry. The quarterly meeting of December 4, appears to be the important one of the year for at this meeting the annual business was transacted.

The first order was the election of officers and the committee on Masonic homes. This came early in the proceedings probably for good and sufficient reasons. The various funds and trust funds are given very careful consideration and analysis. There are so many of them and they are so complicated that no attempt will be made to go into them in detail. Some idea of the volume of business transacted may be obtained from the fact that the total receipts for the year were $772,640 and the expenditures $766,227.00. Among the receipts is an item of $132,208 from Masonic home petition fees. In Pennsylvania each petitioner for the degrees is required to pay $20 over and above the regular charge for the honors of Masonry. This amount goes into the Masonic Home Fund. It is apparent that the Pennsylvania plan is not only yielding a handsome revenue but is working no hardship on anyone. Among the expenditures is an item of $4,000 for the expenses of the grand master. He draws no salary, however. According to the report of the Committee on Masonic Temple 4,695 visitors were conducted through the Philadelphia Masonic Temple last year.

The report of the Masonic Home Board gives the number of guests in the home at 310. The maintenance of this institution is stated as $166,372. The reader may figure out for himself the cost of maintaining the 310 Masonic charges. This is exclusive, however, of interest on the investment, estimated at somewhere around a million dollars. The annual communication was held December 27, and seems to have been principally for the installation of officers. An address of more than passing interest is made by Grand Master James B. Krause. He gives a long list of petitions, declared null and void. Two of the reasons assigned were that the petitioners had been rejected in Illinois.

The grand master did not evidently believe in wholesale dispensations, for the number that he issued was limited. He made a number of decisions most of them of local effect. He directed that notices of lodge meeting must be mailed to members in the service upon their request. He refused to allow a lodge to have an address upon war conditions delivered at a stated meeting. He suggested that it be given during the social hour of the lodge.

He reported that the German lodges of the state were about to conform to the English language in their business transactions and ritualistic performances. The Grand Lodge War Relief Fund was announced as having attained the sum of $135,000. The Masonic Home was commended in the highest degree. He concludes his address to the grand lodge by directing attention to Freemasonry in general, and says that with the reconstruction of the nation will come greater opportunity for the propagation and extension of Masonic principles. He, therefore, calls upon all Masons to be God-fearing and true to their professions. The installation of officers concluded the session.

The report on foreign correspondence is by Thomas N. Penman with the assistance of a committee. The telegram sent to President Wilson by the Grand Lodge of Illinois is quoted in full. Attention, however, is called to the fact that the record does not disclose any act of acknowledgment of the telegram on the part of Mr. Tumulty. The principal matters discussed by Grand Master Austin H. Serogin in his report are taken up and enumerated in turn. Concerning Grand Master Serogin's recommendation suggesting a donation to the George Washington Memorial Association, Brother Penman says—

Grand lodge, however, took but passing notice of it. But we predict that our Illinois brethren will some day arrive on this project. "Large bodies move slowly." When they get the right perspective of this Washington Memorial enterprise and its profound significance to American Masonry, they will be found somewhere near the head of the procession, where their leadership in Masonic affairs entitles them to be.

Concerning remarks made by Senator Lewis in the grand lodge, he observes—

It is a strong statement to make, in view of the many philanthropic endeavors manifested by the people of the Allies in the war, but assuming that it is true, it should make every Mason proud of his association with such a fraternity and resolve to be worthy of it.

Of the report on correspondence he says that Pennsylvania received fraternal and extended notice. Concerning the reference made last year to the appointment of sixteen grand chaplains by the grand master of Pennsylvania, the reviewer follows his comment with the question, "Do we lack a sense of humor?"

We should say, "Maybe not." Perhaps it's just a case of taking one's self too seriously.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, F. & A. M.

The Grand Lodge of the Philippine Islands held its seventh annual meeting in the city of Manila, on Tuesday, January 8, 1919.

The opening ceremonies occurred at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon. Forty of the forty-three chartered lodges were represented by one hundred and fifteen grand lodge members. Following the opening ceremonies, the mayor of the city delivered an address of welcome, after which the grand representatives were presented and formally welcomed.

The grand master being absent from the Islands, the deputy grand master delivered the annual message. He refers to the conclusion of the great war and speaks in a feeling manner of those who gave up their lives on the field of battle. His various Masonic acts are chronicled in full.

A new funeral service prepared by the grand lodge has been placed in the hands of the various bodies as well as a Blue Book containing the laws, rules, and regulations of the grand lodge.

The report of the grand treasurer shows the finances of the grand lodge to be in a most excellent condition. The grand secretary presents a report in which he goes much into detail concerning the affairs of his office. The net gain in membership is given as 639, and the present membership of lodges 3,533. The grand lecturer has something to say concerning his visitations to the lodges of the district, which leads to the conclusion that he not only gives instruction in the work, but at the same time makes diligent inquiry into the general condition and standing of the lodges. An oration was delivered on the first day by Theodoro M. Kalaw upon the subject of past and present, which in fact deals with the progress of Freemasonry in the Philippine Islands.

The Committee on Charters advised that they had under consideration requests from nine lodges for the necessary official documents, and the papers were directed to be issued.

The grand lodge is creating a Masonic Home Fund which is already commencing to grow to substantial proportions.

A long report comes from the Committee on Masonic Study and Research. The course, as marked out by this committee, is quite interesting, and if the Masons of the Philippine Islands would pursue the line of endeavor that has been indicated, they will no doubt become proficient Masons.

One thing the grand lodge did was to direct the Committee on Study and Research to prepare a series of "canned" lectures to be sent out to lodges upon application. This has been tried in other jurisdictions and the results obtained have stamped the plan as more of a failure than of a success. A lecture has very little value unless it has the personality of the man who wrote it directly concerned in its presentation.

An amendment to the constitution and by-laws providing for life membership, failed to receive a five-sixth vote and went over until the next year. A minimum charge for the degrees was fixed and all lodges required to adhere to that sum.

The election and installation of officers and the appointment of committees, and district deputies, closed the session.

The Committee on Foreign Correspondence prepares a very interesting report. However, Illinois is not reviewed, probably for the reason that our Grand Lodge Proceedings did not reach our brethren of the Philippine Islands.

QUEBEC, A. F. & A. M.

On Wednesday, February 12, 1919, the forty-ninth annual communication was opened in the city of Montreal. The first item of interest, in the proceedings, is the report of the Committee on Credentials, showing the exact number of votes in the grand lodge. This is a most excellent plan because, in most grand lodges the vote taken by show of hands is not always indicative of a proper expression of a Masonic majority, for the reason, that some representatives possess one vote while others are entitled to three, and when the vote is taken it is impossible to arrive at a correct result. In his opening remarks, the grand master refers to the war and mentions the entry of America into the conflict—

We fully appreciated the immeasurable importance of the entry of our powerful neighbor into the conflict, and his support at a critical period inspired our warworn legions to greater efforts than ever, and, while the dark days of March, April and May almost caused us to despair of a victory by force of arms, we never lost confidence in the men who grimly held back the evil forces arrayed against them, and against whom the enemy repeatedly shattered itself, and, when those glorious days commencing with July passed in rapid succession before our wondering and delighted eyes as we saw victory upon victory accorded our arms, we were the better able to appreciate the privilege of having a part in the struggle, and aiding those who were making the world safe for us and our posterity to live in, and who were adding imperishable lustre to an already brilliant past in which we, as loyal Canadians, have a full share, and what honor and renown has come to this land which so speedily took up the challenge and ranged herself alongside the motherland in defense of all that is most precious to us as a free and untrammeled section of the British Empire. We now know how that motherland, with the invaluable aid of her young and vigorous nations, raised a mighty army of eight millions to give the same freedom to the rest of the world which she herself enjoyed, and our hearts glow with a new pride to know we have taken a prominent part therein, and never should we prize more highly our citizenship in the empire and the common history of the Anglo-Saxon race. When a master pen writes the full and true record of the past four years, what a lesson for our posterity to ponder over and emulate!

The grand master approved the by-laws of a number of lodges. A practice which not a few grand lodges recognize. There is no doubt but that the by-laws of lodges need supervision and it is well that someone in authority passes upon contemplated legislation in these bodies in order that they may be prevented from indulging in rampant methods not consistent with the general regulations of Freemasonry.

The grand master reminds the grand lodge that the next meeting will be the fiftieth annual and suggests the appointment of a committee to arrange a fitting commemoration. He states that the material progress of the craft in Quebec has been beyond the wildest expectations. The grand secretary's report gives the present membership at 9,244 an increase for the year of 387. The report of the grand treasurer gives his receipts at $6,712 and his disbursements $5,160.

Incidental to the meeting of the grand lodge the grand chaplain, Dudley H. Farrell, made an address of a practical character devoid of generalities and the usual far-fetched Masonic imagery. The reports of the district deputies are complete in themselves and show those officers to be fully cognizant of what is required of them in their official capacity. These officials perform many acts which usually fall to the grand master. The report of the Committee on the State of Masonry as made to the Grand Lodge of Quebec is interesting. They do not hesitate to go into the reports of the district deputy grand masters and to mention the shortcomings of those lodges which apparently need grand lodge supervision.

This is the only way to secure real progress and to improve the condition of our lodges. Nothing can be accomplished in dealing in generalities. It is only when the individual lodge is marked up for criticism and its sins of omission and commission discussed, that we can hope that the lodge will move for improvement. The Finance Committee made the discovery that genuine parchment had become a very expensive and rare article, and recommended, that hereafter Masonic documents be printed on a substitute. For a long time the idea has obtained that a Masonic document was not valid unless printed upon genuine parchment. It has taken the war to prove the utter folly of this idea. Parchment is by no means durable, it is hard to write upon, and is outworn by the modern imitation parchment which the paper makers have devised. The Masonic temple owned by the grand lodge is being operated at a reasonable profit. The present mortgage, however, stands at $47,000.

The Committee on Jurisprudence apparently passed on all Masonic trials which are appealed to the grand lodge, for they report having reviewed evidence in certain cases and make suitable recommendations to the grand lodge.

The closing feature of the grand lodge was the report of the Committee on the Address of the Grand Master. This report is merely a review of his act with such comments thereon as the committee seemed to think proper and wise. There is nothing said about separation and reference and it is supposed that what the grand master does is his own business. The election and installation of officers closed the session. The report on correspondence is prepared by E. T. D. Chambers, past grand master. He opens the report with a discussion of live questions, among which is that of French Masonry. His review of Illinois is kindly, and he presents in a very concise form the principal items of Grand Master Austin H. Scroggin.

He quotes in full all that he has to say concerning French Masonry. He calls Brother Scroggin's remarks words of wisdom, which happily commended themselves to the rank and file of the grand lodge. We wish Brother Chambers hadn't used that expression "Rank and File." The writer has always considered it out of place in Freemasonry, because, we, all, stand around a common altar, upon a common equality. Concerning the correspondence report of last year, Brother Chambers makes the following observation—

With much regret, we find that we have but scant space left in which to refer to the scholarly and instructive correspondence report of Bro. Delmar D. Darrah. It takes rank with the best of the year. The craft in Illinois is fortunate to have for its reviewer a brother possessing the safe Masonic conservatism and keen, critical perception of Brother Darrah.

His review of Quebec's (1918) Proceedings is a generous and kindly one, covering over four pages.

The proceedings under review are made up of a large number of special and stated meetings. It would be quite impossible to consider each meeting separately, and in this particular review there will be chronicled merely the principal items of interest as gleaned from the year's work.

Grand Master H. T. Hurtzburg, because of ill health, found it necessary to sever his official connection with the grand lodge. His farewell address to his brethren is touching and shows him to be a true man and Mason. James Stodart was elected to succeed him.

The Board of General Purposes appear to handle most of the important matters which come up during the year. They exercise financial supervision over the various funds of the grand lodge. A peculiar thing came up concerning the Grand Lodge of Ohio. It appeared that the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Queensland had for some time been regularly reviewed by the Grand Lodge of Ohio, although no action had ever been taken by the Grand Lodge of Ohio, looking toward the recognition of Queensland. However, that subject was given due consideration and the omission corrected by the Grand Lodge of Ohio. From one of the reports of the Board of General Purposes the idea is gleaned that lodges in Queensland must apply to the board for permission to ballot on candidates for initiation, for eighty applications were reported as having been granted. Action on the matter of the Grand Lodge of France was deferred. An address delivered by the grand chaplain, H. T. Molesworth, was based upon the text, Honor All Men, Love the Brotherhood, Fear God, and Honor the King. Kings are not, however, very much in favor at the present time. And we Americans are not disposed to go very far in our desire to do them homage.

Queensland has seventy-two lodges. The total membership of the grand jurisdiction is given at 2,600.

The twelfth annual communication was held in the city of Moose-Jaw on Wednesday, June 19, 1918. The mayor of the city welcomed the grand lodge, and after the opening ceremonies the grand master proceeded with his annual address. He opens with a tribute to the fraternal dead. He expresses the thought that of all the jewels of Freemasonry, the brightest is charity. He has much to say concerning the fall of Jerusalem and thinks that all good Masons will rejoice in this achievement. One thousand dollars was sent to the Halifax sufferers. The grand master asks the grand lodge to make a special effort to augment the grand Lodge Benevolent fund by gratuitous contributions.

One Masonic temple was dedicated during the year. Among the rulings was one that the working tools in the second degree must be presented to the candidate in full form. It would no doubt be interesting to know just what this ceremony happens to be, since lodges have been prone to seek a shorter method in the ceremony. The grand master states that he has been very generous in the matter of granting special dispensations. Seven requests for the formation of new lodges reached him during the year, and none of them were denied.

This grand lodge has one very good rule, it requires that every newly elected master shall become proficient in the work, before being installed. The grand master cautions the lodges in his jurisdiction that this provision must be strictly lived up to. Several letters are printed in the proceedings from grand representatives in other jurisdictions. All of them are quite interesting and show that there is a possibility of grand representatives becoming of some practical use provided they follow the plan of sending a letter to the grand lodge which they represent, to be read at the annual meeting. The reports of the district deputy grand masters are also interesting, as each lodge is taken up and thoroughly discussed. This discrimination ought to stimulate the officers of these lodges toward better work.

The grand chaplain made an address to the grand lodge upon the subject, The Unique Feature in Masonry. The oration is not printed. We are, therefore, unable to determine just exactly what is unique in Masonry.

The report of the grand secretary is quite a long document and goes into detail concerning charters issued, dispensations for new lodges, special dispensations, and many other items of routine business. He reports the number of chartered lodges as 127. The total membership of the jurisdiction 8,286, a net increase of 678. The receipts from all sources were $32,669.00.

The Finance Committee recommended the grand secretary's salary to be fixed at $2,400 a year, a splendid salary to be paid by a small grand lodge. The grand lodge voted to co-operate with the Grand Lodge of Canada in its War Lecture Bureau Service.

Following the installation of officers the retiring grand master was presented with a set of regalia. After which, the newly appointed district deputy grand masters, were called together and given their instructions for the coming year. There is no report on foreign correspondence made a part of the proceedings. *

SCOTLAND

A comprehensive review of the Grand Lodge of Scotland is rather difficult for the reason that frequent communications are held, at which various business matters are transacted. The proceedings under consideration are quite different from the average American grand lodge book. Much statistical matter together with lists of names, officers, etc., are placed in the front part of the volume.

Among the various items which are observed, is a vote of thanks to the Grand Lodge of Illinois for a copy of its annual proceedings. The principal business of the grand lodge appears to be handled during interim by what is called a Grand Committee consisting of seventeen brethren elected by the grand lodge in quarterly communication.

It is apparent that the Grand Lodge of Scotland has felt the high cost of printing and paper, for it took under consideration an increase in the cost of printing the annual proceedings.

One decision is noted. A lodge received an unfavorable report on a petitioner for the degrees. The report was approved by the lodge and no ballot taken. The decision was that this act constituted a rejection, and that the candidate in applying to another lodge would be required to state a previous rejection. The committee expressed the opinion, however, that a ballot should always be taken regardless of the nature of the report of the Investigating Committee.

The Grand Lodge of Scotland administers its charities through what is called an annuity fund. A complete list of all persons receiving assistance from the grand lodge, together with their ages is given. The total number of recipients was 261, and the amount distributed in the neighborhood of $14,000, somewhat cheaper than the Grand Lodge of Illinois is enabled to take care of its dependents.

From a careful perusal of the proceedings, it is apparent that the Grand Lodge of Scotland is in a prosperous condition and working out its Masonic destiny in accordance with the traditions of Scottish Freemasonry.

SOUTH CAROLINA, F. A. M.

The one hundred eighty-second annual meeting convened in the city of Charleston on Tuesday, December 10, 1918.

Two hundred thirty-one out of two hundred seventy-two lodges were present at the opening ceremonies which were brief. The first thing that the grand lodge did was to appropriate $30.00 for the employment of an official stenographer. On motion, representatives of all U. D. lodges were placed on the roll for the payment of mileage and per diem. The grand representatives of other jurisdictions were officially received after which nine past grand masters were presented with appropriate aprons.

The grand master, William W. Wanamaker, presented an address somewhat voluminous in character covering fully ninety pages. He refers to the state of the craft and pronounces the patriotic spirit to have been predominant during the year. He refers to the relations with other grand lodges and emphasizes the need of coordination. He makes a long report on the status of Freemasonry in France and submits his findings to the grand lodge without recommendation, other than to say—

Expressing a personal view, I have come to believe that Masonry can best serve mankind, advance civilization and assist in the establishment of a universal brotherhood, with the resultant virtue of peace on earth, by only obliging world membership "to that religion in which all men agree, * * * that is, to be good men and true, or men of honor and honesty, by whatever denominations or persuasions they may be distinguished," leaving the Dogma to the choice of the particular grand body. Unquestionably such was its character up to 1877, and it is only in this broad and liberal interpretation that it can be made world-wide and thus accomplish the great mission of serving humanity, for poor, weak humanity's sake; of recognizing every human being as a brother, one of God's creatures, on the same journey, though, perhaps, in devious paths, to that "undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller returns."

The various war industries of the Grand Lodge of South Carolina received much favorable comment, and the New York conference of grand masters is discussed in full. Numerous dispensations were issued by the grand master, all of them were to set aside existing laws of the jurisdiction.

The list submitted covers thirty-one pages. The by-laws of four lodges were approved and seven lodges were duly constituted. According to the grand master, the lodges of South Carolina did a vast amount of work by courtesy, and received numerous favors at the hands of other grand lodges.

During the year the grand master officially visited seven of the lodges of the state. He attended the meetings of the George Washington Memorial Association, and strongly commends the good work being accomplished by that society.

The grand master rendered several opinions. He did not call them decisions. One was that when the master of a lodge removes from that state, the senior warden becomes acting master. He decided that a petitioner for the degrees who is a native of a country at war with the United States is eligible for the honors of Masonry. He decided that fees required for initiating, passing and raising were not dues to the lodge, and for that reason, a lodge might require or remit these dues. One decision is out of the ordinary and that is that a petition for degrees having been received by the lodge could not be withdrawn, even though there might be an error in the form of the petition and that the petitioner might not be within the jurisdiction of the lodge.

The reports of the district deputy grand master which are made to the grand master are for the most part brief and merely formal in character.

The grand treasurer received $30,669 and paid out $32,435. The report of the grand secretary is largely numerical. He states that 1875 members of lodges were in war service, and that the total amount contributed to the war fund was $2,729. The grand lodge maintains a cemetery at the city of Magnolia and the sum of $75.00 was contributed for the care of the grounds. The grand lodge fully endorsed the Iowa plan of universal Masonic Service. Among the appropriations made by the Finance Committee, was one of $1,000 to cover the traveling expenses of the district deputy grand masters.

The Jurisprudence Committee make a characteristic report. They however, disapproved nine of the opinions rendered by the grand master.

A recommendation that the sum of $600 be paid to O. Frank Hart for services rendered in connection with war work, went to the Committee on Grand Treasurer's and Grand Secretary's Books. This committee recommended the adoption of the recommendation. The writer hasn't the slightest objection to Brother Hart being paid for war services, so long as the money given him was taken out of the grand lodge treasury and not from the amount voluntarily contributed by the brethren for the pursuit of the usual war activities.

The proceedings contain some very interesting illustrations of a gavel presented to the grand lodge by Charles H. Callahan. The gavel was made from magnolia, taken from the last tree planted by George Washington at Mt. Vernon. The grand lodge also ordered the purchase of 100 aprons for the use of delegates to the grand lodge, and exempted lodges from the payment of the per capita tax on soldiers provided their dues were remitted by the lodge. The session was closed by the election and installation of officers.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by J. L. Michie, past grand master. He gives Illinois four pages of critical review. Concerning the Advisory Council of Brother Ralph H. Wheeler, Brother Michie says—

He created an "Advisory Council" to consult "on every question of any importance," and is "proud indeed" to tell his grand lodge that their views, in practically every question, were his views. He fails to tell us, however, who expressed said "views" first, he or the "Council," reminding us of the Irishman who said he once made twenty men run like mad, "but," he added, "I went first."

Concerning club rooms in lodges, he expresses the thought that if the brethren would cut out all revenue features from their club rooms and such appurtenances as are supplied, and make them free to every member of the lodge, that much of the trouble arising from this source would disappear. He engages in a lengthy argument with Brother Charles H. Martin concerning the Past Master's Degree. The subject is passed by this writer for the reason that he does not consider it worth discussing.

SOUTH DAKOTA, A. F. & A. M.

The grand lodge believes in doing things properly, for a most excellent steel engraving of Grand Master Fred H. Rugg opens the proceedings. A Shrine pin in the lapel of his coat and a Knight Templar charm on the end of his watch chain might lead the novice to conclude that he was a Mason, although among the emblems displayed the square and compass are not visible.

The forty-fourth annual meeting was held at Aberdeen, South Dakota, on Tuesday, June 11, 1918. Preliminary to the opening ceremonies, the American flag was presented by the grand steward, after which the roll of officers and representatives was called. The grand chaplain offered a most excellent prayer alluding to war times. The grand master, Fred H. Rugg, presents an address, brief, but interesting. He says in his opening remarks that he made it just as easy as possible for young soldiers to become Masons. Four lodges were constituted and a dispensation issued for the formation of one new lodge. The grand master had the pleasure of dedicating one Masonic temple. He urges the lodges of the state to undertake the collection of as much money as possible, the same to be used in increasing the charity fund of the grand lodge.

The usual number of dispensations to elect and install officers is reported. The grand master advises that he declined all requests for dispensations waiving the time limit between the conferring of degrees and required every candidate to show suitable proficiency before advancing. Under the head of decisions a number of questions and answers are submitted. He decided that a lodge could not retain the fee of an elected candidate who failed to appear for the degrees on the ground that Masonry is something greater than a mere money-making institution. The grand master is absolutely right in the conception of the functions of the institution, although it would be a pretty hard matter to get some lodges to take that view of the matter. He states that he is personally in favor of army lodges, but after the ruling of the war department in reference to lodge meetings about army camps, he concluded that it would be unwise to further consider the subject.

He closes with an appeal on behalf of the Masons of the world and expresses the hope that the grand lodge will take the necessary steps to secure proper recognition abroad and thereby prove the truth of the much vaunted Masonic attribute of universality.

The grand treasurer reports receipts of $12,000 and expenditures of $11,328. The report of the grand secretary covers the many items which pass through his office. He states that war certificates to the number of 883 were furnished by the grand lodge to soldiers going overseas. He urges the lodges to prepare for peace, by raising sums of money for the care of such cases as require immediate relief. The number of lodges in the state is given at 147 and the members in good standing, 12,908. One thousand and three were raised to the sublime degree of Master Masons and 682 given as the net gain. The first real business of the grand lodge was to pass a resolution recognizing the Grand Lodge of France. A committee was appointed to convey the greetings of the grand lodge to the Eastern Star, then in session. The obituary committee make a short report, but mention the names of none who passed away during the year. The Committee on Jurisprudence approved all decisions and dispensations of the grand master. The proceedings of the grand lodge were interrupted by the return of the committee appointed to visit the Eastern Star, who were accompanied by a delegation of women from the grand chapter.

The grand lodge was called to refreshment and the ladies admitted into the presence of the grand lodge. A memorial service was then held for S. A. Brown, and short addresses were made by several brothers. It beats all how these Masons like to show off before the ladies of the Eastern Star. The memorial services out of the way the Twinkler delegation were then formally introduced to the grand lodge and each star twinkled for the edification of the brethren present. Amen, so mote it be.

The grand lodge raised the grand secretary's salary to $2300 and gave him an office assistant at $1200. The Committee on Library make a report in which the statement is made that the library had been made more valuable by the addition of the proceedings of several Grand Councils of Royal and Select Masters of the United States. This writer is of the opinion that a liberal translation of the above means that the grand library acquired just so much junk. Proceedings of grand bodies possess no educational value whatsoever. Their purpose is to put into permanent form transactions for future reference. This is one trouble with the average Masonic library and explains why it is so poorly patronized.

It is because the shelves are loaded down with irrelevant matter which no intelligent man is going to waste his time over.

The grand lodge increased the mileage of representatives to seven cents one way. It was estimated that the increase would take care of the war tax. The installation of officers and the presentation of the jewel closed the session. In an appendix to the proceedings is a very interesting picture of a flag raising held during the session of grand lodge. This is followed by the honor roll giving 1,216 names in war service. The report on correspondence was prepared by Samuel A. Brown prior to his death. It was presented to the grand lodge by C. L. Brockway, grand secretary. Illinois is given five pages in which the various acts of our grand lodge are detailed. He calls our proceedings a Masonic text book from which one may gather education, statistics, law, administration, and a good corking report on correspondence.

As we read between the lines from the comment on the Grand Master's Advisory Council, we gain the idea that Brother Brown believed that while the council might work out satisfactorily in the hands of him who conceived it, yet he preferred to watch the operation of the scheme in other hands, before passing final judgment. Brother Brown must have been a prophet for when Grand Master Austin H. Serogin, who followed Brother Wheeler came in he tried to put the scheme into operation, but very soon suspended it, for the reason which he gave to the writer, that the members of the council were not disposed to give advice, but wanted to run the whole show, and that he soon found that he had fourteen grand masters to contend with. If we may judge from the report, Brother Brown would like to put a question mark after the statement of Brother Wheeler that Masonry is pro-religious. He says—

The committee and the grand lodge agreed with the grand master. We have been trying for years to get our Illinois brethren to live up to that, but they will not lay the corner-stone of a church, nor permit a lodge to attend divine service, so we are not surprised that the Masonic press of Illinois is becoming anti-religious.

The twenty-eighth annual communication was held in the Masonic Hall at Launceston on Thursday, February 27, 1919. The grand lodge was opened at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The Board of General Purposes make the first report. It is a paper which deals almost exclusively with routine matters.

The grand secretary renders a detailed report and covers much of the business matter of the year such as naturally would be expected in the address of a grand master. He mentions the formation of one new lodge, and calls attention to the fact that too many newly made Masons drop out of the fraternity before they have had time to understand its aims and principles. This is charged in a measure to lodge laxity, and the grand secretary expresses the hope that lodges in the future will wake up and take sufficient interest in their members that will enable them to retain their membership.

The grand master, the Hon. C. E. Davis, addressed the grand lodge in some length. He deals for the most part with a general condition of the craft and speaks about the careless manner in which lodge secretaries take care of the details of their respective offices. The old charge about letters being lost is the excuse which is so often offered as the reason for inattention to lodge details. The grand master says that notwithstanding the large number who are leaving the fraternity, that many new applications are being made and so great is the congestion in some lodges that the formation of more Masonic bodies is imperatively necessary. One thing for which the brethren of Tasmania are to be congratulated, is the very excellent manner in which they administer their benevolences. Contributions are liberally supplied and it is apparent that the brethren believe that the first Masonic duty is to take care of the helpless members of the society.

The proceedings under review contain just thirty-eight pages and yet they faithfully record the transactions of the grand lodge, give the necessary statistical tables and contain a brief report on foreign correspondence. Illinois receives one page of very favorable comment.

TENNESSEE, F. & A. M.

The Grand Lodge of Tennessee can make no claim of belonging to the younger generation. The one hundred and fifth annual communication opened in Nashville, Tennessee, on Wednesday, January 20.

The first thing the grand lodge did after the ceremonies of opening was to read that portion of the law concerning furnishing information of the proceedings to newspapers, so that all might take due notice and govern themselves accordingly. It is apparent that the Grand Lodge of Tennessee has discovered leaks in its organization, and proposes to plug them up as much as possible.

The first item of interest is the annual report of the grand master, S. C. Brown. He opens by referring to the coming of peace to the world, and expresses the hope that in the great reconstruction work which the world must undertake, that Freemasonry will be in the front lines. Grand Master Brown was not present in grand lodge when elected to the exalted station which he now occupies. He refers feelingly to the fact that a commission of seven past grand masters, the grand secretary, and representatives of twenty-six lodges, came to his house and installed him as grand master.

Two new lodges were constituted during the year, and the cornerstone of one Masonic temple laid.

A long list of dispensations is reported, three of which failed to meet the approval of the Committee on Jurisprudence. They related to changes in the meeting time of lodges. All requests to waive the time limits on soldiers, were refused.

The grand master reports thirty-four questions and answers under the heading of Official Rulings. The grand master held that a Quaker desiring to join a Masonic lodge might be permitted to affirm. The Committee on Jurisprudence, however, declined to concur on the ground that the grand lodge had already decided that a lodge could not change any part of the ritual in order to suit the religious views of a profane.

Several other decisions of the grand master were shot full of holes by the Jurisprudence Committee, but they related wholly to local constructions of law. The average jurisprudence committee very seldom lets an opportunity go by of taking a fall out of a grand master when they are not afraid of their jobs.

The charter of one lodge was arrested because of its failure to place on trial a brother who had shot another.

Another lodge lost its charter because it tolerated among its membership a brother who had defrauded so many in the community that he fell into disrepute and as a result many members of the lodge took their dimits rather than to associate Masonically with the brother in question.

Tennessee was very generous in conferring degrees for other jurisdictions. Illinois is credited with seven of the degrees so conferred.

The grand master does not like the idea of military lodges, and thinks they are not in accordance with the usual canons of Freemasonry.

The grand master got into a little trouble, however, because of his generosity. He made a ruling, admitting to the Masonic Home, the widow of a man who had been sixty-five years a Mason in good standing, and who died at the age of ninety years. Four years prior to his death, he took a dimit, but failed to deposit it with any lodge, notwithstanding the fact that it was believed that his intentions in this respect were good. He also recommended for admission, the widow and three children of a deceased Mason who was afflicted with rheumatism and who had been suspended by his lodge, after being carried for six years. The Jurisprudence Committee, however, failed to concur in these recommendations of the grand master, on the ground that the rules governing admission to the home were fixed, and neither the Board of Control, nor the grand master had any right to override them.

The grand master made several recommendations to his grand lodge one was that the offices of grand marshal, grand sword bearer, and grand steward be abolished because of their uselessness. The Jurisprudence Committee, however, stepped on the recommendation for the reason that these offices have historic standing and being universal among all grand lodges, should be preserved.

The grand master called attention to the district lecture system which he stated was not measuring up to what was expected from it.

In two districts, it was found impossible to secure competent lecturers.

The Jurisprudence Committee thought there might be something in the recommendation, and suggested that the incoming grand master give the subject thoughtful study with a view to improving the system if possible. The grand master suggested an increase in the per capita tax making it at least one dollar more than the present amount, this would give the grand lodge a yearly increase of $30,000.

The grand treasurer reports total receipts of $59,000. The total expenditures for all purposes were $72,663.84. In his report he accounts for one item borrowed at various times, $14,000, showing that there have been occasions when the income of the grand lodge did not take care of the current expense.

The grand treasurer of Tennessee is a well paid officer, as he drew three percent on the general fund, one and one-half percent on charity funds, a total of $1,630 this year.

The report of the grand secretary is a comprehensive document. The total net gain in membership for the year is given as 1178. Two hundred and eighty-five lodges show an increase while one hundred fourteen show a decrease. Fifty-four lodges show neither increase nor decrease. A rather peculiar situation arose as reported by the grand secretary. Lodges were exempted from paying per capita tax on brethren to the amount of $2,196. Inasmuch as $1,464 must be paid to the homes of the state for these exempted brethren, the grand lodge was asked to decide just how to calculate the amount due the home as a result of this condition.

The Board of Control of the Masonic Homes presents an extended report that shows those institutions to be well managed and in excellent condition.

The grand lodge held a night session in order to witness the conferring of the degrees by the Board of Custodians.

The Grand Lodge of Tennessee has what is called a Committee on Ways and Means. This committee take a great diversity of items and make such recommendations to the grand lodge as in their judgment seems wise.

The Committee on Returns did a little investigating of their own, and discovered that thirty-three lodges with a membership of twenty or less had conferred no degrees during the year. Representatives of these lodges, however, had been assiduous in attending the meetings of the grand lodge, and had drawn in mileage and per diem sums much in excess of the amount of grand lodge dues paid. As a result, the grand lecturers were directed to investigate the conditions of these lodges and to affect consolidations wherever possible.

Following the adoption of the report of the Committee on Jurisprudence, a resolution was adopted by the grand lodge authorizing the Board of Control to receive into the home the dependents of the deceased Master Masons for whom the grand master had made his sympathetic appeal.

The Committee on Appeals and Grievances makes quite a lengthy report in which the names of miscreants are printed in full as well as details of the offenses for which they were tried.

The Committee on the Recognition of French Masonry declined to recommend the accordance of fraternal relationship and suggested that the subject be placed in the hands of a committee for further consideration. A motion to raise the per capita tax to $2.00 was presented and adopted.

Just before the close of the grand lodge, the Committee on Ways and Means made a recommendation fixing the salary of the grand treasurer at $600 per year. Evidently the committee did not propose that the grand treasurer grow rich on his commissions for handling the monies of the grand lodge.

The grand lodge voted to become members of the George Washington Association, and appropriated the sum of $2500 to be paid in five annual installments.

The installation of officers and the presentation of a signet ring to the newly installed grand master, closed the session.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by a committee of which H. H. Chambers is chairman. Illinois is accorded two pages of very courteous review. Several quotations are taken from the address of Grand Master Austin H. Serogin. This is no fault found with anything which our grand lodge did.

TEXAS, A. F. & A. M.

It requires a volume of practically one thousand pages to record the proceedings of the eighty-third grand annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Texas, together with various data; 587 are given over to printing the names of officers and members of the various lodges.

The annual meeting was held at Waco on Tuesday, the third day of December, 1918. Prior to the opening ceremonies, the roll of grand representatives was called and those ambassadors were formally welcomed by the grand master. The grand lodge was then opened and after the usual formalities, the grand master, John R. Arnold, read his annual address. In his opening remarks, Brother Arnold refers to the immense amount of business that has passed through his hands. He refers to the coming of peace, and makes the following observation—

Saul, the son of Kish, in search of his father's asses, found a kingdom: Wilhelm II sought the earth and found a temporary refuge in The Netherlands; and his followers, in quest of the approbation of their war-lord have, may we not hope, found liberty and that no more, forever, shall exist what has been, since a far-off elder day, when humanity as beasts of burden were and Caliphs, Sultans, Czars and Kaisers beasts of prey.

Now let that portion of the Allied army, which turned the tide of battle from defeat to victory, land on the American continent and see what the American people will do for them.

The illustrious dead of other grand jurisdictions are mentioned and the matter of foreign relations discussed at some length, but there is nothing which would indicate any unusual conditions.

Four new lodges were constituted, and three lodges which had failed to meet during an interim of three months, and whose charters were arrested, had the documents restored to them. It is apparent that the grand master does not believe in the promiscuous granting of dispensations, for the list which he submits is quite limited. He refused to issue a dispensation to lay the corner-stone of a band stand. He also declined all requests to confer degrees on Sunday or to appear in parades other than for burial purposes. He refused to permit lodges to hold their meetings in theaters where more commodious meeting places were temporarily required.

The grand master severely took one lodge to task because it had permitted the conferring of the degrees on soldiers by the use of ceremonials other than those prescribed by the Grand Lodge of Texas. It is apparent from what the grand master said that he believes the ritualistic work of Texas has been developed at great effort and expense by some very smart men and is the only legal way in which a candidate can be made a Master Mason, and that any other system can have but one effect, and that is to make the petitioner appear as illegally made. From the report, it appears that the lodge under censure was doing considerable work on soldiers and not infrequently would invite competent degree teams among the soldiers from the different jurisdictions to confer a degree according to the ritualistic attainments of the jurisdiction from which they hailed. This brought the lodge in question into trouble.

It is a matter of sincere regret that Freemasonry has not yet proceeded far enough in its evolution to divorce the ritual from the principles of the fraternity. Today, there are numbers of Masons who regard the ritual as Masonry and everything of a Masonic character is judged wholly and solely by adherence to certain ritualistic practices which are generally accepted as having been handed down to Masonic posterity by King Solomon, the alleged first grand master. It is true that no grand master should permit a potpourri of work in his jurisdiction, but it is a mighty good thing and highly educational in effect, to witness the work of other jurisdictions. Freemasonry will never amount to anything until the fraternity is taken out of the hands of the ritualists and its affairs given over to men who look upon ritual merely as a means to an end, and who are broad enough to see in the fraternity a potent force for social and moral development and the upbuilding of the human race.

Much is said by the grand master concerning the conferring of degrees by courtesy and the many abuses that frequently arise therefrom. He gives a table showing the exchange between Texas and other grand jurisdictions, in which it is shown that Texas lodges conferred 182 degrees for Illinois lodges, while Illinois lodges conferred 25 degrees for Texas lodges. The grand master reports no decisions, stating that nothing was presented to him during that year that could not be satisfactorily answered by reference to the established code.

One peculiar case which the grand master reports was in reference to the efforts of a district deputy grand master to settle a difference which arose between two lodges. He endeavored to exact a promise from one of the offending masters that he would thereafter obey the constitution and edicts. He stated that he was unable to make such a promise, assigning as a reason his inability to read or write.

The grand treasurer reports total receipts of approximately $75,000 and disbursements of $62,683.

The report of the grand secretary gives the total number raised during the year as 7,595, and the present membership of Texas lodges 77,600, a net gain for the year of over 6,000.

The War Relief Fund collected is given at $15,886.47. On the evening of the first day session, an oration was delivered by the grand orator on the subject of Masonry and Patriotism. He makes considerable reference to distinguished men of colonial days and quotes numerous actors in the great drama of the American Revolution as having been Masons. His statement that the Boston Tea Party was a band of Masons dressed as Mohawk Indians will have to be challenged. It is true that the members of the Boston Tea Party met in the lodge room of St. Andrews Masonic Lodge, Boston, Massachusetts, but there is nothing to show that the entire party was made up of Masons, or that the enterprise was even inspired by Masons. In the absence of proof as to the Masonic connection of the fraternity with the Boston Tea Party, we have no right to make an assumption which cannot be substantiated.

George L. Schoonover was present and submitted the matter of the National Masonic Service Association. A long report comes from the Committee on Masonic Homes, and that institution is shown to be in an excellent condition.

The net per capita cost per month is given as $22.43 which includes the salary of the teachers in the school. The number of children in the home during the past year has averaged 230.

The Committee on Masonic Research present a very interesting paper entitled Masonry in the World War, written by George W. Tyler. It contains very much data of interest to the Masonic student.

The Jurisprudence Committee report nothing unusual and commend the grand master for having stood firm and immovable upon the constitution of Freemasonry.

The Committee on Appeals and Grievances present a long report but they do not mention the names of the accused, merely using the initials.

The salary of the grand secretary was fixed at $3,000. The grand master draws no salary but is allowed $1,200 for traveling expenses.

The presentation of the past grand masters jewel, together with the election and installation, closed the session.

The report on correspondence is brief, 77 pages taking care of the matters submitted by James D. Crenshaw, who wrote the review. Illinois received one page of consideration.

UTAH, F. & A. M.

The record states that on Tuesday, the 21st day of January, 1919, the grand lodge met in forty-eighth annual communication in the city of Utah. One feature of the proceedings under review is to be highly commended. The grand secretary, Freeman A. McCarty, prints marginal references, so that it is very easy to follow the disposition of any matter presented to the grand lodge by merely referring to the page indicated in the marginal notes. He is the first grand secretary to make use of this plan, and he is thanked by this writer who expects to follow the plan in the preparation of the proceedings of the Grand Commandery of Illinois.

The roll call disclosed seventeen representatives present, out of the twenty chartered lodges of the jurisdiction. The grand lodge was opened and the rules of order read for the information of those assembled. The entire forenoon appears to have been taken up with the report of the Credentials Committee and the appointment of various other committee-men. The grand master, Herbert M. McMillan presented his annual address at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. It is a short document, but a faithful report of the various business which passed thru his hands. He reports that he closed the lodges of the state during the flu epidemic and authorized all Masonic burial services to be held in the open at the grave. He visited quite a number of the lodges of the jurisdiction. Concerning his official visits he has the following to say—

In making the visitations a new plan of procedure was carried out in following the plan proposed by me on the night of my installation. The lodges were requested to turn the time over to the grand lodge. No work was exemplified. Instead written addresses prepared by the grand lodge officers on specially assigned subjects were read. The change was refreshing and in this manner many subjects of interest to the craft were discussed. Wherever we went we received words of commendation for the new order of things.

Addresses were delivered upon the following subjects:
What is Freemasonry and When Did It Originate.
Symbolism in Masonry.
Requirements of Masonry as to Religion.
Innovations in Masonry.
Our Ritual—Whence and How Derived.
Washington—the Mason.
History of the Grand Lodge and Development of the Three Degrees.

I recommend a continuation of this procedure at least for a time. It would be a means of supplying the work which the Committee on Masonic Education consistently fails to supply.

The plan as suggested by the grand master is most excellent, and clearly demonstrates that the official visits of grand officers can be made of genuine value to the craft. Too often the visits of grand lodge officers are made the occasion of unusual display and much expense. Each official is paraded to the front, formally presented to the brethren assembled, falters a few feeble ideas, receives a bouquet and goes home. In Illinois the visit of the grand master or any of his associate officers is made the occasion for the conferring of a degree. The idea seems to be fixed that a meeting is not a success unless there is a degree conferred. The result is that with the reception of officers, the speeches, the degree work, and the midnight lunch, it is about or half past one in the morning, when the folks get home and little of real value has been accomplished.

The grand master of Utah appears to have departed from the old order of things and it is refreshing to note that he has devised a new plan of making the grand master's visit one worth while. The grand master was asked for a dispensation to initiate a candidate who was minus one foot. He was obliged, however, to refuse the request, and referred the subject to the grand lodge for its action. The grand master submits to the grand lodge a question relating to the status of a suspended or expelled Mason who is restored to good standing in the fraternity only, and is given a certificate of the fact by the grand lodge. He wants to know how long this certificate remains good. There is, however, nothing in the proceedings to show that the grand lodge wrestled with the proposition.

The sum of $120 was donated from the charity fund for the relief of a past grand master. Brother McMillan states that he found it unnecessary to render any decision during the year and makes the following comment which will be appreciated by every past grand master—

Thus I hope I have escaped the searching review of the Jurisprudence Committee, the hoary headed spectre which points its threatening finger before the trembling gaze of every grand master. But perhaps the microscopic eye of that honorable and most respected committee, may after all detect some act of mine which needs must be uncovered and, stripped of its habiliments, dragged naked before you for a rude and cruel condemnation. Who knows? Well, if come it must, then let it come.

Much is said concerning the Masonic Service Association of the United States, and the need of Masonic unity in prosecuting great reforms.

The conclusion of Brother McMillan shows that he has been looking beneath the externals of the society and sees possibilities, which if taken seriously can make Freemasonry a world factor—

Conflicts between the employers and the employed are threatening and disaster portends. All will be affected. What organization is better fitted, with its cosmopolitan membership, to withstand this break than is our own? Our members come from every walk of life. Employers and employees gather in our temples and meet with each other on the level. All have been taught the ennobling virtues of justice, equality and charity. If in our regular and special meetings the attention of our members be kept riveted on this subject until they are inspired with a desire and purpose to go out into the walks of life, counselling composure and equanimity among their neighbors, and practicing the teachings of Masonry in their own dealings with their fellowmen, such an influence will be wielded by Masons and Masonry, with its millions of members, as to render this threatened strife well nigh impossible. What a wonderful victory this would be for us. Here indeed is a great throbbing humanitarian work challenging the attention of Masonry. What will her answer be?

Both the senior and junior wardens made reports to the grand lodge. They are interesting in the extreme. They cover such matters as they were called upon to attend to during the year. The receipts as reported by the grand treasurer were $4,682.65 and the disbursements $5,303.

The grand secretary makes the customary report giving the net gain for the year at 114 and the present number of members 2,841. The grand lecturer reports the appointing of deputy grand lecturers and the issuance of certificates of qualification. He held one school of instruction and his total expenses for the year were $11.90.

A school of instruction was held on the evening of the first day of the grand lodge and was attended by the grand master, grand officers, and representatives. The Committee on Foreign Correspondence brought in a report favoring the recognition of the Grand Lodge of France, and the grand lodge upon recommendation of the Jurisprudence Committee adopted the suggestion. The Committee on Correspondence declined to favor the recognition of the Grand Orient of Italy, because of its unwarranted invasion of the jurisdiction of American grand lodges.

A question was submitted to the grand lodge as to whether a candidate with a stiff knee could be initiated. The Jurisprudence Committee rendered a decision that he could not. The Jurisprudence Committee also recommended that the grand lodge join the Masonic Service Association of the United States. The four lodges of Salt Lake City invited the grand lodge to partake of a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock and it is needless to say that the members were not at all reluctant in accepting the invitation.

The question of a universal Masonic emblem was referred to the Committee on Jurisprudence and that august body decided that the question was one of expediency and not of law and recommended that it be not accepted.

The election and installation presentation of the signet ring and the past grand master's jewel closed the interesting session.

The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Sam Henry Goodwin. He opens his report with the following comment on the prayer of our grand chaplain, Walter Aitken. Just what Brother Goodwin is driving at is not clear to the writer, perhaps the reader may solve the riddle—

The prayer of the grand chaplain fronts us, as we open the proceedings of this great jurisdiction. We realize that

“ * * * * apt words have power to swage
The tumours of a troubled mind,
And are as balm to festered wounds.”

But more than words are necessary to life the spirit Godward. And if what we sometimes ask for should be granted, we might share Manoah's feelings though we hesitate long before using his words,

* * * * Nay, what thing good
 Prayed for, but often proves our woe, our bane?
 I prayed for children, and thought barrenness
 In wedlock a reproach; I gained a son,
 * * * * * Oh, wherefore did God grant me my request,
 And, as a blessing, with such pomp adorned?
 Why are his gifts desirable, to tempt
 Our earnest prayers, then given with solemn hand
 As graces, draw a scorpion's tail behind?"

The following comment on the chartering of Nauvoo Lodge No. 1021 is interesting—

Among lodges chartered at this communication, we note one, the name of which has a passing interest for Utah Masons. It is "Nauvoo 1021." A dispensation was granted to a Nauvoo Lodge, once before—back in the early 40s—and that Lodge U. D. made hundreds of Masons, over night as it were, often with only a few hours between the reception of the petition, the election and conferring of the degrees. And those Nauvoo Masons came to Utah, under Brigham Young, established here their theocratic-politico-ecclesiastical government, and transferred many of the Masonic ceremonies—which they had learned in Nauvoo—into their endowment house rites.

He takes up that part of Brother Austin H. Serogin's address referring to recognition of the Grand Lodge of France and indulges in a critique which is reproduced in full for the information of Illinois brethren.

The grand master referred to some unauthorized circulars issued by certain lodges of the jurisdiction, for the purpose of creating opinion, favorable to the recognition of the Masonry of France. The merits of the question entirely aside, the grand master very properly stopped this work. In this connection, he takes up the matter of recognition of the French bodies. We recognize that there are two sides to this controversy. At no time, in our observations on the subject have we criticized any grand lodge for the position taken, but we have not hesitated, nor shall we hesitate, to criticize the grounds upon which grand masters and committees base their reports on the subject. And this for the purpose, not, primarily, of seeking to establish our individual viewpoint, but in order that facts on both sides may be brought out, and, if possible, the truth established.

Grand Master Serogin bases his conclusions—adverse to the claims of French Masonry—apparently, upon certain authorities: P. G. M. Joseph Robbins, "the profoundest Masonic jurist and scholar Illinois ever produced," and Mackey. We presume the grand master would not take the position that Brother Robbins exhausted all the sources of knowledge, or that, by some strange prescience he anticipated all future changes and conditions. Because he led the grand lodge to assume a certain position near half a century ago, it does not follow that the considerations upon which such action rested, have remained untouched by the finger of Time. In fact, the grand master shows by his characterization of the Illinois law on physical qualifications—for the present form of which Brother Robbins appears to have been responsible—which he says “is rigid in the extreme,” and which, in his judgment should be changed so “as to permit these returning heroes, though maimed and torn in our defense, (conditions of which Brother Robbins had no knowledge, and for which he did not, and could not provide) to apply to our lodges for admission”—he shows by this, we say, that neither he, nor grand lodge—which agreed with him—consider Brother Robbins, as an authority, to be above the mutations of the years. And if in respect to physical qualifications he failed to anticipate the readjustments made necessary by this unprecedented war, may it not well be that some conditions have arisen—due to the same war—which should modify our views with reference to French Masonry? We do not say that this is so, but simply ask the question, for we have the feeling that there are many respects and matters in which we, personally, should be unwilling to have brothers of half a century ago, do our thinking for us. Martin Luther and John Calvin brought a message to the people of their day, and subsequent time, which profoundly affected the currents of thought and history, but that fact would hardly justify us in emulating Luther’s bigoted and unchristian attitude toward Zwingli, or lead us to the side of Calvin, while he holds the garments, as it were, of those who burned Servetus at the stake for heresy.

The grand master, apparently, leans more or less heavily upon Mackey. He mentions “landmarks,” and then quotes Mackey’s 19th Landmark, as though the final word had been spoken. But our distinguished brother knows that few Masons or grand lodges accept Mackey’s list of landmarks. And why? Because that author’s definition of a landmark is the “worm in the bnd,” as it were, which makes acceptance out of the question. That is not the only reason, but it will suffice here.

Nor do we quite catch the force of our brother’s logic when, after saying, “It has always been admitted that a denial of the existence of a supreme and superintending power is an absolute disqualification for initiation,” he follows with a reference to the much discussed changes in the constitution of the Grand Orient which left this not required, as though that elenched the argument. We do not agree that not requiring the affirmation of a certain theological or philosophical statement, is, per se a denial of it. It may well leave the matter outside, and as not being considered at all. And this latter course would in no sense involve the consequences of the grand master’s assertion.

Concerning the report on foreign correspondence, the following is taken—

Many full and valuable reports, which show what has been accomplished by the craft of this jurisdiction, are given in the volume before us. With these we cannot tarry, nor can we consider the interesting and informing report on correspondence, as we would like to do. P. G. M. Darrah has taken hold of this task with an understanding that does not always appear in a first effort.

Utah for 1918 is reviewed, and to this he gives between five and six pages. All that is characteristic of our work is noted. One statement calls for a word. The reviewer says: "Here is another grand lodge to espouse the latest Masonic fad. The retiring grand master passed on to his successor the signet ring." Not quite right, brother. An even quarter of a century has passed since the then retiring grand master presented to his successor this ring to be passed on to succeeding grand masters. January, 1894, is the date of the inception of the practice in Utah. The age of the custom, so far as Utah is concerned, would seem to lift it out of the class of the "latest Masonic fad."

VERMONT, F. & A. M.

The writer picks up the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Vermont with considerable interest, for the reason that Henry H. Ross, grand secretary, and Henry L. Ballou, past grand master, who have much to do with shaping the destiny of Freemasonry in the State of Vermont, are personal friends.

The one hundred and twenty-sixth annual meeting was held in the city of Burlington, on June 11 and 12, 1919. The opening ceremonies were very brief, after which the grand master, David A. Elliott, read an address of seven pages. It is quite apparent that the grand master of Vermont does not believe in exhausting his brethren with a recital of business details. He refers to the close of the war and the large number of wounded soldiers who are being returned to this country, and suggests the splendid opportunity for service that is being offered Freemasonry. He reports the condition of the Craft to be most excellent, and under the subject of dispensations states that he was by no means reckless in the matter of issuing these documents, and only gave them out after careful inquiry into the necessities of the case. He made no decisions as no situation arose which seemed to warrant anything of the sort. Among the Grand Representatives whom he commissioned was Richard C. Davenport to represent the Grand Lodge of Vermont near the Grand Lodge of Illinois. Owing to the demands of his personal affairs, Bro. Elliott was unable to do as much visitation as he would have liked.

The report of the grand secretary is interesting. The membership roll shows a net gain for the year of 353, while the present membership is given at 14,821.

The grand treasurer shows receipts of approximately $7,000 and expenditures of a like amount.

The Masonic Temple operated by the grand lodge shows a net profit of almost $1,000.

The Committee on Doings of Grand Officers contains a paragraph to the effect that the greatest regard should be shown to the flag we love so well, but they do not approve of any change in the ritual in order for its accomplishment. This committee also expressed its disapproval of the discussion of extraneous subjects in either subordinate lodge or grand lodge, and made special reference to remarks on thrift and salvage which had been made at the opening sessions of the grand lodge.

Brethren attending grand lodge were allowed seven cents per mile, traveled, instead of four.

The election, installation, and presentation of the jewel closed the session.

The brethren of Vermont appear to be very well satisfied with the condition of Masonry in their jurisdiction, for from the report under examination, there is no evidence of any desire on the part of anyone to introduce amendments or to tamper with existing legislation.

The report on Foreign Correspondence as prepared by Charles H. Darling is topically considered. It is a document of more than passing interest containing much valuable information for the Masonic student.

VICTORIA, A. F. & A. M.

This grand lodge holds quarterly communications. Much of the business is handled by a Board of General Purposes. A perusal of the report submitted shows the Grand Lodge of Victoria to be in a prosperous condition and its benevolences liberally administered. It appears that a position on the Board of General Purposes, is a coveted honor, and some brethren in the jurisdiction sent letters to various lodges asking their support for this station. The board, however, stepped on the practice and declared that "touting" for votes in any form was highly unmasonic.

This grand lodge looks after the education of the children of worthy Master Masons. At an examination held for free scholarships, there were seventy-six entries, and seven candidates reached the required percentage and were awarded scholarships.

When a brother in Victoria fails to pay his dues, he is excluded from his lodge and the fact announced in grand lodge. When he pays his dues, he reinstates himself and the fact is again announced in grand lodge.

The lodges made very satisfactory progress during the year, showing a net gain of 707, while the present membership is given as 17,026.

In the matter of dispensations, the Grand Lodge of Victoria is extremely liberal. Among the various reasons for the issuance of these special privileges were to wear Masonic clothing at funerals, at choral services, at socials, and to withdraw candidates from ballot.

The grand master does not make a report to the grand lodge such as is customary among the jurisdictions in the United States. At some time during the grand lodge meeting, he makes a general address, largely of a congratulatory character.

One thing that the Grand Lodge of Victoria does which shows that it has advanced, is that it permits grouping of candidates in the matter of conferring degrees. Some day, all grand lodges will permit the conferring of the degrees on more than one candidate at the same time, for the reason that men will come to understand Masonry better and to realize that there is something else to the fraternity, besides the mere ceremonies of making men Masons.

The question of physical qualifications has received the attention of our brethren of Victoria, and the necessity for a modification of the laws is being seriously brought home to the brethren because of the large number of soldier Masons who have returned to the jurisdiction in a crippled condition. One candidate for the degrees got himself into very serious trouble. When he filled out his petition he stated that he was a single man, later on he confessed that he had made a false statement, and had done so for family reasons. The case came before the Board of General Purposes who directed the lodge not to proceed with the ballot, but that after a lapse of twelve months the candidate might repetition, and if elected, receive the degrees.

It goes without saying that if every man who petitions a Masonic lodge were to apprise his wife of the fact before he took the fatal step, the chances are that much of the mad rush for degrees at the present time would be slowed up. Our sympathies in this case are very naturally with the man, because we have always held that if a man does the right thing by his family and furnishes them with those comforts which human life demands, his joining a Masonic lodge is none of his wife's business. But no man has a right to deny his family the necessary things of life in order to procure the privileges of Masonry, and one of the most important functions of every investigating committee is to find out whether a candidate can afford to take the degrees.

A motion was put before the grand lodge providing for the appointment of a grand lecturer to visit the lodges of the jurisdiction and not only instruct them in the work, but also to deliver to them lectures concerning the history, philosophy, object, and purposes of the fraternity. One brother spoke upon the motion and said some mighty pertinent things which are reproduced herewith. It was M. W. Bro. G. E. Emery who said—

I am quite sure we realize the importance of the suggestion brought before this grand lodge, but it is a proposition which cannot be dealt with in an offhand manner. A great deal of consideration must be given to such an important question. If we appoint a lecturer we give him a status which in effect endorses the statements which he puts before his audience. That is an objection, because the history of Freemasonry, although clearly traced back through a long period, still contains many debatable theories of speculative writers. I think, for that reason, it would be perhaps a little dangerous to appoint a lecturer with full authority to deliver lectures as a grand officer. It seems to me that what we want is a small body of voluntary lecturers who would assist each other. They could go from lodge to lodge, and their lectures would be subject to debate. In the meantime the Lodge of Research endeavors to fill the gap. I would like to support R. W. Bro. Steane in carrying out his ideas, as we all appreciate his lectures, and do not doubt the authority of them, but a grand lecturer could not have the same freedom in dealing with debatable points, and for that reason I am rather favorable to the idea of voluntary lecturers.

The question, however, went to the Board of General Purposes for their final consideration at a later date.

At a subsequent quarterly communication, the motion to appoint a grand lecturer was taken and the board made a report stating that they had been deeply influenced by the remarks of Brother Emory, and believed that such educational work as was carried forward should be purely voluntary, and the grand lodge supported that idea and defeated the motion to appoint a grand lecturer.

One thing the Grand Lodge of Victoria did, and that was to hold a Thanksgiving service in commemoration of the cessation of hostilities. This event took place in the town hall in Melbourne, on Monday, December 2. There was plenty of music and some most excellent addresses.

VIRGINIA, A. F. & A. M.

What is called the one hundred and forty-first grand annual communication of the commonwealth of Virginia opened in the city of Richmond on Tuesday, February 11, 1919. The grand master at once listened to the address of Ernest L. Cunningham, grand master, who presented an address consisting of sixty-one pages and an appendix of forty-five pages. His address is full of literary and scriptural allusions, which show him to be well versed in literature. He has considerable to say about the war and pays a beautiful tribute to the soldier dead from Virginia. Some trouble was experienced over what was alleged to be invasion of jurisdiction. On the part of jurisdictions initiating soldiers, among the guilty ones were the states of Illinois, North Carolina, Ohio, and the District of Columbia.

The grand master reported that the grand master of West Virginia had issued an edict against a Mason by the name of Carper denying him the right of visitation in West Virginia due to the fact that the said Carper had been rejected in West Virginia and had petitioned the Virginia lodge before the lapse of the three-year period. This is another evidence of the desirability of universal laws on the subject of jurisdiction.

The grand master has considerable to say concerning claims made by various grand jurisdictions over rejected material. Several decisions are reported. One worshipful master who took it upon himself to loan some of the lodge funds to a brother and to take a promissory note for the same came in for a severe criticism on the part of the grand master on the ground of his decision, that a worshipful master cannot disburse the funds of the lodge except for strictly Masonic purposes; and that funds of the lodge can be loaned neither by the lodge nor the worshipful master. One peculiar point brought out is that the by-laws of the lodge cannot designate the hour of meeting this being wholly in the province of the master. He declined to set apart any portion of the law relating to physical qualifications. He refused to approve a by-law which limited the amount of money which the master and his wardens might expend in attending the sessions of the grand lodge. He refused to approve a by-law which prohibited smoking in a lodge room during the session of the lodge, claiming that the master rules and governs his lodge and that it was wholly in his hands to permit smoking if he chose. From several of the decisions of Grand Master Cunningham the idea is gained that he is disposed to place considerable importance upon the worshipful master of the lodge, and to invest that official with extraordinary powers. There is some danger in exalting the station of master too much, because no official is greater than the body which creates him. The lodge itself is the supreme authority and not some individual called to provide over its destinies for a short time.

Evidently Grand Master Cunningham does not believe in over indulgence in the dispensation habit, for the number issued by him is quite limited. Lodges in Virginia have the right to lay corner-stones, for several dispensations were issued for that purpose. He declined, however, to permit one lodge to lay a corner-stone on Sunday, and refused to pass an opinion concerning a Masonic life insurance company for fear what he said might be construed as an endorsement. He refused to permit circulars begging money for non-Masonic organizations to be sent to the lodges of state. He recommended the automatic restoration of lodge members suspended for non-payment of dues upon liquidations of their indebtedness. He told the Masons of Virginia to observe law and order, and recommended fixing the per capita tax at $2 per annum. Much is said concerning the charity fund of the grand lodge which is supported by voluntary contributions from the lodges. The amount expended during the year of 1917 is $3,200. He states the Masonic home to be in a most excellent condition. One thing the grand master did which was a little out of the ordinary was to issue an edict reinstating to the rights and benefits of Masonry a brother who had been suspended for non-payment of dues. He also expressed himself as being opposed to the lodges of Virginia, making any charge for conferring degrees on candidates from other jurisdictions. Two grand jurisdictions took upon themselves to confer the degrees on apprentices hailing from Virginia lodges without first getting permission from the lodges holding jurisdiction. The Masonic Journal of Virginia is warmly commended by the grand master and the brethren urged to give it generous support. During the year several circulars were sent to Virginia lodges by churches soliciting funds with which to construct edifices. He advises lodges to throw all such appeals not having the approval of the grand master into the waste basket. He closes his address to the grand lodge with some very interesting remarks upon the subject The Cliffs of Masonry.

The Virginia Committee on Masonic defense make quite a long report, quoting liberally from the document of the New York committee showing many of the difficulties encountered in the attempt to do overseas service. The report of the grand treasurer gives the total receipts of the grand lodge at $126,063. Of this amount, $60,000 was borrowed. The disbursements were approximately $125,000. The reports of the district deputy grand masters compare very favorably with those made by the district deputies of Illinois, their chief burden of information being peace and harmony prevail. Lodges are well officered and in a healthy condition. Congratulating you upon the success of your administration and thanking you in the honor of my appointment, I am, fraternally yours, etc.

Several of the district deputies of Virginia did, however, in their reports request the grand master not to reappoint them. The Committee on Masonic Home reported one gold star in the service flag of that institution. It also approved the purchase by the Board of Governors of fifty-five and one-half acres adjoining the home property. The Committee on Grand Master's Address approves some of the grand master's decisions and disapproved others. And now comes the Committee on Jurisprudence with a report covering matters of similar import. It is sometimes hard to get a committee on grand master's address to understand that their principal function is separation and reference of the grand master's address and not to pass judgment upon his acts. The election of officers did not take place until the third day. The grand lodge elects the senior and junior grand deacons. The installation of officers closed the session. Virginia like many grand lodges prints the roster of lodges with the name of every member, a burdensome and expensive thing to do. The report on foreign correspondence is by Joseph W. Eggleston. He devotes 160 pages to the review. Illinois is unnoticed probably from the fact that our proceedings were not placed in his hands.

WASHINGTON, A. F. & A. M.

This grand lodge held its 61st annual meeting in the city of Taeoma on Tuesday, June 11, 1918. Some of the pages of the proceedings look like a problem in arithmetic, for the reason that after the name of each brother mentioned is given the number of the lodge to which he belonged.

All lodges of the state were represented with the exception of twenty. After a vote of thanks to the order of the Eastern Star, for the patriotic decorations which adorned the place of meeting, the American flag was brought into the lodge room as the assembled brethren sang the Star Spangled Banner. Several patriotic addresses were delivered, and the grand lodge formally welcomed by the mayor of the city of Tacoma.

Another feature in the preliminary exercises occurred when the grand marshal arranged at the altar all members of the fraternity who were present and wearing the uniform of the army and navy. The soldier Masons were given the grand honors of the fraternity. The preliminary incidentals to the meeting consumed the entire forenoon and it was 2 o'clock in the afternoon before the grand master, George Lawler, had an opportunity to present his annual message.

He commends the loyal spirit of the Masons of Spokane who had expected to entertain the grand lodge, and who stepped aside in favor of Tacoma in order that the grand lodge might save $2500 in expenses, the same to be invested in Liberty bonds. Three dispensations were issued for the formation of new lodges. The grand master found it necessary to refuse a petition for permission to form an army lodge. He reports the Masonic Home as settling down to a steady gait. He recommends that each lodge be required to pay into the home fund a minimum of one dollar per month and such maximum as the Board of Trustees may deem reasonable for each member they have domiciled in the home. During the year the monitor was revised and the new edition published. He calls attention to the arduous duties of the grand secretary and recommends that the grand lodge force him to accept a higher salary and to take a vacation each year.

He refused to allow one lodge to move its place of meeting to an Odd Fellows' hall because the door contained wickets for peep-holes. He declined to allow a lodge to attend church services in Masonic clothing. He also prohibited the use of a Masonic float in a Red Cross parade. His list of dispensations issued is moderate and is well offset by those which he denied. He laid the corner-stone of a federal building, also of a court house, during the year. He made one decision, permitting men in military service to petition the lodge nearest their present Masonic residence within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Washington. He recommended that the law be changed so that a man shall not lose his Masonic residence in one place until he shall have opportunity to establish it in another, he also recommended concurrent jurisdiction among lodges from five to ten miles apart. He thinks that the grand master could be given some latitude in the matter of shortening the time between the conferring of degrees under circumstances which appear worthy of consideration.

The grand master believes in Masonic education. What he says is reproduced because it is worth while—

I am convinced that the best part of Masonry is being neglected; that the "work" of conferring degrees occupies the time and thoughts of the lodges and brethren to the exclusion of the "meat" of our institution. We are busy men as well as busy Masons. We have neither the time nor the inclination to dig into the gold mine of our treasure-house; to uncover the hidden meaning of Masonry. We are guided as a people by the headlines of the newspapers, the portraits in the magazines, and the moving pictures of the new theatre. Arrest our attention, and we will investigate and absorb any fact worth using.

It should in some way be so planned that the individuals who compose our lodges should be interested in the real purpose of the fraternity; should have the fact so forcibly brought to their attention that it could never be lost sight of, that Masonry is much more than a ritualistic formula, that its formal lectures "are but hints to put them on the track of discovering" a philosophy of living that will be of priceless value to each of them as an individual Mason.

To this end I recommend that a "board of education"—to be composed of the grand master, the grand historian and the Committee on Correspondence—be formed to devise and put into execution some plan whereby the beauties of Masonry, as well as its esoteric side, may be taught to every lodge in our jurisdiction; and that the sum of $1,000.00 be appropriated for that purpose for the coming Masonic year.

He cautions the craft against itinerant lecturers, and says—

It is a comparatively easy matter for any one to compose a lecture, or several of them, on symbolism, that most ethereal and impractical chatter that catches the popular ear and gives to the mind nothing but husks. The test of a lecture or talk should be that it develops a helpful, practical, livable enthusiasm for Masonry, and suggests ideas that will enable us to help others, as well as ourselves, to live better and happier lives. Beware of the itinerant lecturer.

The grand master must have listened to some of the bunk that is being handed out by those traveling lecturers who draw upon their imaginations rather than the historical data available.

During the year the grand master curtailed as much as possible the efforts of the grand lecturer in order to save expense. French Masonry comes in for a severe grueling on the part of the grand master. Two letters are printed from soldier boys giving their view of French Masonry as they observed it first hand. The conclusions on this subject are as follows—

It is most opportune at this time for this grand lodge to assert in unmistakable terms that autocracy is no part of Masonry. Any organization that rejects the principles of democracy in its government has no right to call itself Masonic; nor would an Elks' lodge, composed entirely of men who had received the Degree of Master Mason, be entitled to the name Masonic. The mere fact that the Grand Orient of France or the Mother Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite claims to be Masonic, does not make either of them so. By their fruits shall they be judged. Democracy is an immovable landmark of Masonry.

The freedom and development of the individual—his equal opportunity with other men, all children of one Father—is the touchstone of Masonry.

Any organization that places some men above their fellows—by titles, by degrees, by honors which may not be obtained by another except through the favor of individuals—is not Masonic, but is autoeratic; and it breeds that detestable spirit which develops a Kaiser—the synonym of all that is evil and ghastly, horrible and of the devil.

Reference is made to the Masonic Ambulance Corps of California made up entirely of Masons who volunteered their services in the interests of the war. Horace W. Tyler, grand secretary, makes a report complete in detail. He states that the card index system being installed is well on the way to completion. Of the 222 lodges in the state 38 show a loss in membership, while the remainder show a net gain of 1432. The report of the grand treasurer shows the grand lodge to be in an excellent condition financially and well able to keep within its income. The invested funds of the grand lodge amount to $140,000.00.

The question of recognizing the Grand Lodge of France was presented by Ralph C. McAlister, foreign correspondent, and the subject went into the hands of a special committee who will present their findings next year. The grand lecturer reports little demand for his services during the year. He expresses the thought, however, that the labors of this officer should not be confined exclusively to the instruction in the ritual but that history, symbolism, good citizenship, true Americanism may well come within the scope of his endeavor.

From the report of a special committee it is apparent that the grand lodge has come into possession of a substantial legacy amounting to $187,460. The net income is estimated at $7,000. The grand orator, J. Hugo Tatsch, delivers an excellent oration largely historical in character. The report of the Masonic Home Board shows a total of 37 in that institution, who were maintained at an annual per capita expense of $400. The grand lodge waived grand lodge dues and Masonic home fees on all members who had been relieved from the payment of dues on account of the war. The grand secretary's salary was fixed at $2,400.00 and he was given $300 with which to take a month's vacation. He was also given an assistant grand secretary at a salary of $1800 per year.

There must have been some business men on the Finance Committee of the grand lodge and they are to be commended, for avoiding the usual Masonic skin-flint methods which are sometimes manifested toward the clerical end of grand lodge work. The report of the Committee on Jurisprudence made just before the close of the grand lodge concurs in most everything the grand master did. However, they did not like the idea of refusing a lodge permission to attend church although granting the right of the grand master to refuse such permission. They based their conclusions upon the fact that from time immemorial it has been the custom of the fraternity to attend services of this character. The grand lodge did not take with favor to the district deputy grand master system, believing that the end desired might be arrived at in a simpler and more efficient manner.

The installation of officers closed the session. The report on foreign correspondence is written by Ralph C. McAllister. Illinois is given three and a half pages of review. Liberal quotations are taken from the address of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler. The reviewer likes the code-quiz but doesn't like an arbitrary flag service. While agreeing that such a service is desirable he thinks that it ought to be made permissible and lodges requested to practice it, but that under no circumstances should the established form of opening and closing a Masonic lodge be encroached upon.

Brother McAllister can't understand why Masons want to smoke in lodge and why by-laws prohibiting such action are necessary as has been heretofore said in these pages the matter of smoking in lodge is purely one of training and culture.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA, A. F. & A. M.

It is rather difficult to review the proceedings of this grand lodge and secure continuity of thought for the reason that it holds quarterly meetings and its proceedings come to us in four divisions. The first quarterly meeting was held on Thursday, July 26, 1917.

The pro grand master, the Most Reverend C. O. L. Riley, D. D., archbishop of Perth, made an address to the grand lodge in which he referred to his services on the war fronts of Europe. He reports eighteen official visitations, the consecration of one new lodge, and the issuance of twenty dispensations.

Reference is made to the bi-centenary of the Grand Lodge of England and some very interesting historical data presented. The Board of General Purposes make a lengthy report covering the many matters that pass thru their hands. This board seems to exercise a general supervision over the craft, and to perform such duties as appear to be for the best interest of the fraternity.

The second quarterly meeting was held on Thursday, October 25, 1917. The grand master in his opening address reports the completion of a railroad connecting Western Australia with the rest of the continent and expresses the hope that there may be greater inter-communications between the Masons of this part of the world. The grand master made a decision on the subject of physical qualifications as follows—

That a candidate is eligible to initiation though not perfect in his limbs, who is able to comply with and go through the ceremonies required in the various degrees.

This decision received the recommendation of the Board of General Purposes. The grand master reports sending to each soldier in the war service a Christmas greeting personally signed by himself. The grand lodge also sent comfort kits and various supplies to the members of the craft serving in the overseas contingent. Among these were 50,000 cigarettes. And now, that John Barleycorn has been safely interred, it is proposed that the next obsequies shall be that of Prince Nicotine. Afterwhile we will all have little wings and flit about so good, that even if we want to get into devilment, we won't know where to go to find it.

The Board of General Purposes make one of their customary reports but announce nothing out of the ordinary.

The third quarterly communication was held on Thursday, January 24, 1918. From the proceedings there appears to have been a liberal attendance. The grand master delivered his annual address and reported great success in the matter of raising funds for the comfort kits of soldiers. From the report, the idea is gained that the Grand Lodge of Western Australia is quite liberal in the matter of Masonic charity, for it appears that a sum of money was easily raised for the care of widows and orphans of deceased Master Masons, as well as a substantial fund for the care of the aged and infirm.

The Board of General Purposes reported that it had received a request from the Grand Lodge of France for an exchange of fraternal relations. It was pointed out that the Grand Lodge of Western Australia having already recognized the National Grand Lodge of France, and having acknowledged it as the Sovereign Masonic body, it could not very well recognize any other, so called grand lodge. The hope was expressed, however, that the Masons of France make an effort to conciliate their differences and bring themselves into harmony with Anglo-Saxon Free-masonry.

The fourth annual meeting was held on Thursday, the 24th day of April, 1918. This must have been the most important meeting of the year for the attendance was unusually large. The grand master makes a customary report. The grand lodge, certainly did its full share in looking after the comfort of the soldiers abroad, judging from the substantial donations in the way of food and tobacco sent overseas. The grand master states the financial condition of the grand lodge, to be most excellent, the income exceeding the disbursements by nearly $10,000. A net increase in membership of 146 is reported, the largest lodge had a membership of 101.

It appears that among our brethren of Western Australia the idea of a title holds fast in the mind, for the grand master conferred a large number of honorary titles upon brothers, who had faithfully served the craft. In the report of the Board of General Purposes a paragraph was found concerning lodges creating extra offices, and investing the brother's holding them with aprons and jewels, this the board ruled as improper.

The system of district inspection is thorough and efficient. The report shows that the lodges are visited, inspected, and properly checked up. The grand lodge paused long enough to pay a tribute of respect to the soldiers who had died in overseas service. Their names were called, while the brothers stood to order after which the grand organist played the Dead March from Saul. The installation of officers performed in true English style was the closing feature, after which the grand master was presented with the customary jewel.

The report on foreign correspondence is quite complete. Illinois receives its full share of attention. The reviewer says that the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Illinois are full of interesting and instructive matter for those who are watching the progress of Freemasonry throughout the world. The report of Grand Master Wheeler is well analyzed and for the most part receives the approval of the reviewer. He expresses surprise, however, that the Grand Lodge of Illinois, does not exempt its soldier members from the payment of dues. The reviewer enters into some controversy with Charles H. Martin over statements made in his report, however, they are not of sufficient importance to be reproduced here.

WEST VIRGINIA, A. F. & A. M.

The Grand Lodge of West Virginia can boast of 54 years of active service in the interests of Freemasonry. The annual communication was held in the city of Wheeling, on Wednesday, the 13th day of November, 1918. Owing to the quarantine raised by the State Board of Health on account of the epidemic of Spanish influenza, the grand lodge was obliged to call off until the evening of December 11, when it reconvened for the transaction of business. The grand lodge was enabled to expedite its labors by holding night sessions, even if it did keep some of the boys away from the movies and the vaudeville shows.

The annual address of Charles S. Angel is a long one, covering forty-six pages. Much is said in his opening concerning the war and the part which the Masons of West Virginia were taking in the great strife. From the report of the grand master, it is learned that the grand lodge makes a business of assisting worthy young men to receive an education, for it is recorded that a past grand master requested the sum of $200 to assist his son in continuing his studies at the U. S. Naval Preparatory School, Annapolis, Maryland. The loan was approved and the money forwarded.

Here is a suggestion for all grand lodges to make themselves of practical use in the world. Why shouldn't there be created a fund for the education of worthy sons of indigent members of the craft? The writer is disposed to look with much favor upon the educational plan as adopted by our brethren of W. V., realizing fully that in espousing this movement he may be invoking the condemnation of those Masonic moss backs who believe that there is nothing about the fraternity that is progressive or even practical. The list of dispensations reported by the grand master is an extremely long one. He refused some as might be expected from the long list given. The degrees conferred by courtesy as recorded by the grand master cover 14 pages. There must have been a war camp somewhere in the confines of the state of West Virginia. The grand master reported one case of invasion of jurisdiction. A West Virginia soldier in the medical reserve corps went to the state of New York, petitioned a lodge at Oswego and received the degrees.

The grand master took this subject up with the grand master of New York and learned that that state does not recognize jurisdiction over soldiers and sailors and therefore considered that it had a perfect right to take the petition and elect the applicant.

This is another evidence of the justness of the demand for Masonic co-ordination, and the establishment of universal rules not only on the question of jurisdiction but on other matters which vitally affect the welfare and best interests of the fraternity. The grand master reports that he granted permission to one lodge permitting them to turn their banquet hall over to the Red Cross for the purpose of raising funds for war purposes. Another lodge was allowed to submit their lodge room to the Jewish people of the community for religious services during a brief period. The corner-stone of two high school buildings and the dedication of one Masonic temple were the only ceremonial sessions during the year. Twenty-four decisions are reported to the grand master. Many of them appeared to be merely answers relating to interpretation of existing laws and hardly rise to the dignity of decisions. The grand treasurer received $16,156.00 and paid out $14,077. The educational fund is reported as having a balance to its credit of $380. The grand secretary presents his report in detailed form and it is purely financial in character. The grand lecturer presents a brief report to which is appended the letters of the deputy grand lecturers. Most of these are formal and there is little idea to be gained from them as to what these officials did and of how much use they were to the grand lodge. The Committee on Correspondence to which had been referred the question of recognizing the Grand Lodge of France ask for more time. The pay of representatives was fixed at eight cents per mile and $3.50 per day. It appears that the grand lodge is looking for a site for a Masonic home, for a committee make a comprehensive report in which numerous places are analyzed and pried. Parkersburg was the choice of the grand lodge and 60 acres at a cost of $33,000 was ordered purchased. The Committee on Work brought in a report commending the grand master for enforcing the law concerning the qualifications of masters elect of subordinate lodges relating to their ability to perform the ritualistic work prior to installation.

The election of officers and presentation of the apron and jewel closed the session. The last act of the grand lodge was a vote of thanks to Nathan B. Scott for a donation of 210 shares of stock in a Washington bank, book value $130 per share. This contribution will be immediately available for use in the construction of the Masonic home. George W. Atkinson writes the correspondence report, Illinois receives just consideration, liberal quotations are taken from the address of Grand Master Wheeler and no fault found with them. Concerning Masonic clubs Brother Atkinson expresses the opinion that it would be better if they were cut out altogether as they weaken the influence of the lodge for good. He likes Brother Wheeler's "Pronuncia mento" against cipher-rituals, but thinks it would have been better if he had cut the dog's tail off close behind the ears, for the reason that such a heresy should not be gently dealt with.

WYOMING, A. F. & A. M.

Wednesday morning, September 11, the grand lodge of Wyoming, convened its forty-fourth annual communication in the city of Laramie. Immediately following the opening ceremony, the American flag was brought in and displayed in the East. The grand lodge was welcomed by the master of Laramic Lodge. After the response to the address of welcome, the Committee on Credentials made a report showing who was present. Brother T. Blake Kennedy, grand master, read his report concerning the transactions of his office during the year past. He states the net increase in membership to have been four hundred, and comments on the interest being taken in the fraternity by the young men of the state. He gives a detailed list of the dead of his own jurisdiction and enumerates the past grand masters of other grand jurisdictions who died during the year. He granted the usual number of dispensations to assist soldiers in receiving the degrees with the least possible inconvenience, and recommended to the grand lodge that the dispensation fees contributed for these purposes be returned to the lodges which paid them. The grand master found time to visit several of the lodges of this jurisdiction and would have visited many more lodges had not the duties of his office kept him at his desk. Under the head of decisions, he submits seventeen answers to questions. He was asked for a dispensation permitting a certain number of Masons residing at a point where there was no Masonic lodge to hold a school of instruction. He decided, however, that there was nothing in the law to prohibit these Masons from meeting and running over the work if they so desire. He was asked for a dispensation to confer the degrees on Sunday and ruled that while there was nothing in the laws of the state prohibiting a lodge from working on Sunday, yet he considered such procedure as contrary to the landmarks and refused to issue a dispensation. He recommends a modification in the law which requires a candidate to receive the first degree in the lodge in which he is elected. The uniform Masonic emblem was referred by the grand master to the grand lodge for its consideration.

Out of the $200 allowed the grand master for his expenses during the year he was enabled to refund $22.05 to the grand lodge. The grand secretary gives the list of members at 4,087 an increase of 346 for the year. The grand treasurer acknowledges total receipts of $7,112 and expenditures of $4,102. The grand lodge is creating a Masonic Home fund and now has $4,480 on hand. Out of this fund, worthy and deserving cases are being given assistance. A resolution was passed providing that the Committee on Foreign Correspondence shall gather all available data appertaining to the Grand Orient and Grand Lodge of France and report next year. The pay roll is apparently looked after in Wyoming by the Finance Committee for the reason that in their report they recommend the amount to be paid to each representative in attendance. Representatives draw actual expenses. The grand lodge adopted a report from the Committee on Jurisprudence permitting Masons from the state of Wyoming to visit and affiliate with members of French lodges. The grand lodge also remitted the per capita tax on members of lodges engaged in war service.

The idea of a universal Masonic emblem seemed to find favor with the grand lodge for a special committee brought in a report approving the idea and recommending its adoption. The salary of the grand secretary was fixed at $900 per year. The election of officers, the presentation of the jewel ended the session. The report on foreign correspondence is prepared by Joseph Lowndes, grand secretary. He devotes two pages to the consideration of the transactions of the Grand Lodge of Illinois. He enumerates briefly the principal points in the address of Grand Master Ralph H. Wheeler, while the transactions of our grand lodge are taken up without comment.

ADDRESS OF R. W. ROSCOE POUND.

Before Grand Lodge of Massachusetts.

A PREFACE TO MASONIC SYMBOLISM.

It is not so long ago that a learned man could take all knowledge for his province. In the last quarter of the eighteenth century it seemed to Preston entirely feasible to sum up all human learning and expound its main principles to the ordinary hearer in three lectures. At the end of that century men believed that a learned jurist by sheer reasoning might work out by himself a complete code to govern all men in all places in all times. Even later compendia of universal knowledge were projected seriously. In the nineteenth century men's attitude changed completely. Reaction from this boundless faith in the intellect, born of the Renaissance, led to an era of separate sciences, of minute subdivision of learning, of distinct fields of knowledge intensively cultivated by individual scholars. In place of the general schemes of knowledge, we got narrowly limited, water-tight compartment sciences, each self-sufficient, each content to rest on its own basis, and each assured of finding within itself a critique of itself.

All learning in the last century suffered from the self-imposed narrowness of this water-tight compartment conception. But Masonic learning suffered peculiarly. For modern Masonic learning had its inception in the eighteenth century and had still to go through some preliminary stages of development when it found itself cut off from learning at large and divided into separate, self-sufficient compartments. Thus we got a Masonic history without general historical method, a Masonic philosophy divorced from the general current of human thought, and a Masonic symbolism ignorant of psychology. Nowhere is the process of breaking down compartments and letting in air and light from the outside, a process that is going on rapidly on every side—nowhere is this more needed than in Masonic learning. Gould long ago did this work thoroughly for Masonic history. But it is still to be done for Masonic symbolism. We must view this subject for a season as but a phase of a general science of symbols; we must lay its foundation not only in Masonic history, nor solely in the history of rites and mysteries, but in psychology as well.

Symbols are visible objects which apart from their own immediate and proper significance, represent to the mind something which is not shown but is realized by association with it; some ideal content which the symbols suggest, but cannot embody. They are said to be of two sorts, natural symbols and conventional symbols. In the former phrase

"natural" is used in the sense of rational and refers to those symbols which appeal to natural reason and so achieve their purpose with the unlearned. Conventional symbols, on the other hand, have their basis in tradition and appeal only to those who know. The former may or may not be new. At any rate, they rest on analogies that are associated with the ideas of today, as, for example, when light is taken as a symbol for knowledge or truth, black for mourning, and so on. But it will be perceived that often in such cases we have simply a strong traditional association without any necessary association for all men in the absence of tradition. In consequence, well-known symbols may easily be borrowed and put to new uses, as many assert happened in the case of more than one pagan symbol taken over by the early church. Thus there is an easy transition from one type of symbol to the other. Traditional or conventional symbols rest on habitual rather than rational association with the subjects they suggest. In origin, no doubt, they were natural symbols. But after the circumstances that determined their choice have passed away, constant association with the object symbolized, kept alive by tradition, enables them still to function as symbols. A great many Masonic symbols are of this character, as, for example, the shape of the lodge, symbolizing the world, or the triads, of which Masonry in all rites is so full, symbolizing perfection.

Natural symbols require little or no study or exposition. But as the analogies upon which traditional or conventional symbols proceed have usually ceased to appeal to us, as the ideas that suggested them have been forgotten and sometimes their applications have been wholly lost, exposition of them, investigation of their history, and attempts to reconstruct their applications afford a tempting field for study. The Masonic student is attracted to them specially because symbols are among the most important of our traditions. Our ceremonies themselves are largely allegorical or symbolic and employ symbols at every stage and on every hand. To make the most of these symbols they must be studied. Accordingly, apart from its interest as a pure science, the study of symbols has a practical side for the Mason and symbolism has been recognized from the beginning as one of the chief departments of Masonic scholarship.

Psychologists have generally rested symbolism upon association. Some, however, have sought a more intimate connection. Thus Lotze says of symbols in art, "We live over again in the object the motion to produce it." Symbols are obviously associated with the things symbolized. But many have felt that there is a sympathy involved that is not true of ordinary associations. It has been said that there is "an investiture of the object with the observer's own idea and feeling in a more intimate manner than is implied by the term association." This controversy as to the psychological basis of symbolism has gone on chiefly in connection with aesthetics and the conclusions reached are not very applicable to Masonic symbolism. Unhappily no Masonic student of symbolism has taken up this fundamental question.

Another branch of learning which has been much concerned with symbols is logic. Here the theory of symbols has been treated fully, especially in connection with the nature of knowledge. Thus Leibnitz distinguished between intuitive and symbolical knowledge. The word "intuitive," so used, is deceptive. Leibnitz took it in its original, etymological meaning, in which it refers to what we know by looking on it or by seeing. Accordingly he uses the phrase to include all knowledge which we gain directly through the senses or by immediate communication to the mind. Symbolical knowledge, on the other hand, is that which we cannot gain directly through the senses, which, therefore, must be represented to us. Thus writers on logic remind us that we may learn by the direct evidence of our senses what a square or a hexagon is, but we cannot expect to learn in this way what a chiliagon or figure of one thousand sides is. If one doubts this, let him attempt by looking at them to tell the difference between a figure of one thousand sides and one of a thousand and one sides. Such conceptions can be known to us only symbolically. And this is true of all large numbers also, for the velocity of light (186,000 miles per second) or the distance of the sun (91,000,000 miles) are beyond reach of our imaginations. So we speak of infinity, of zero, of nothing. But there is nothing here that may be perceived through the senses; nor can one realize in the mind, such conceptions as "the unthinkable," "the inconceivable," the "impossible," about which we speak continually. Such things are only to be treated symbolically.

Symbols, then, enable us to know what we cannot know directly through the senses and enable us to keep in mind or to keep before the mind what is not and cannot be directly and immediately represented to it. Hence symbols play a great part in all that we do. Art is largely symbolic, endeavoring to present to us through symbols what we cannot apprehend directly. Religion uses symbols in the same way "as sensuous emblems of spiritual acts and objects." Ritual is symbolic, and so are even the sacraments in one aspect of their significance. In this aspect religion often makes use of art. For as the objects of religion are unseen and intangible, there is obvious need of "helping the imagination by means of sensuous objects which may serve as fitting materializations of the spiritual." Even the architecture of churches is symbolic. The building is not merely adapted to certain functions. Even more, the very form of the building seeks to express the spiritual import of those functions.

XVIII

Symbols are no less important in practical affairs. Large parts of mathematics are symbolic. Chemistry is full of symbols. Even in biology we are coming to think that genus and species are symbols by which we are able to represent knowledge of types, none too clearly defined, in a universe of infinitely diverse individual creatures.

No less a rôle is played by symbols in the social sciences. In primitive law symbols are used on every side, since primitive man has no general ideas and the abstractions of developed legal science are beyond him. He cannot conceive of litigation over an abstraction called a title, so in the beginnings of Roman law a bit of turf from the land in dispute was brought in before the magistrate and the parties went through the form of a fight for the possession of it, in which the magistrate intervened. If a flock of sheep was in dispute, a bit of wool from the flock was the subject of the simulated fight, and so on. Again, the Roman used the spear as a symbol of title to property, and Tacitus tells us of a like symbol among the ancient Germans. All Masons know the Jewish symbol in case of sale and redemption. In our own law the formal ceremony of conveying land by livery of seisin was highly symbolic, and we still speak of symbolic possession where one makes delivery in case of gift, for example, by delivering the key by means of which the donee may obtain actual control.

Likewise in government symbols are made use of to keep before men's minds the idea of sovereignty, to enable them to comprehend the abstraction called the State, to hold up before them some visible sign of authority. The king is a symbol. His image, his monogram, his superscription stand for the State to many who can keep before their minds the ownership and the rights of George and the duties due to Alfonso or Victor Emmanuel when the State as an abstraction would appeal to them but dimly. In the same way we speak of loyalty to the flag, love of the flag, and the like, thinking and speaking of the visible symbol rather than the invisible and intangible things for which the symbol stands. So also we speak of Uncle Sam or John Bull as symbols for the abstractions of the American or the English people. Sociology devotes much consideration to ceremonial institutions as means of social control. But these are symbolic. Homage, coronation, investiture, inauguration, are outward signs of something which is not tangible or visible. Says Professor Ross: "The picturesque, dramatic, or sensational will serve to impress an event upon the memory; but the ceremony that modifies the feelings must be full of meaning. It dwells on what would be overlooked, reminds of that significance that would be forgotten, and so reveals the full significance of what is being done."

Such, then, are the uses of symbols. They enable us to reason abstractly; to extend our knowledge far beyond what we can know immediately and directly through the senses; to hold before us through the aid of a visible sign things invisible and intangible which are of the highest import in our daily life. They enable government to keep men conscious of its reality. They enable society to exert a necessary control by keeping before men in outward forms and ceremonies the abstract principles by which they must be governed in a life measured by reason.

On the other hand, symbols are liable to abuse, and some of these abuses have crept into Masonic symbolism. The chief abuse is that symbols readily lead the careless to confuse the symbol with the thing symbolized, to think that there is some real bond between them other than association in the mind of the observer. This may easily run into nominalism; it may give rise to a belief that realities are wrapped up in names, that if one knows the name of anything, he knows the thing itself, and that in reasoning about names he is reasoning about things. "There is no worse habit for a student or reader to acquire," says William James, "than that of accepting words instead of a knowledge of things." Look at our Fellow Craft lecture and note how it is full of definitions. We have had to learn in other connections, too, that one has by no means mastered a thing simply because he is able to repeat an abstract definition of it.

Another abuse of symbolism is to be seen in the idea that a symbol not merely helps to comprehend a thing but thereby gives us control over it. We see this in its crudest form in witchcraft, when the warlock makes a wax figure of his victim and puts the latter to the torture of rheumatism by sticking the figure full of needles. We see it in its highest form in metaphysics. Thus, William James says: "Metaphysics has usually followed a very primitive kind of quest. You know how men have always hankered after unlawful magic and you know what a great part in magic words have always played. If you have his name . . . you can control the spirit or whatever the power may be. . . . So the universe has always appeared to the natural mind as a kind of enigma of which the key must be sought in the shape of some illuminating or power-bringing word or name. That word names the universe's principle, and to possess it is after a fashion to possess the universe itself. . . . Matter, Reason, the Absolute, Energy, are so many solving names. You can rest when you have them. You are at the end of your metaphysical quest." Many study symbolism in the same way, consciously or subconsciously, as if by penetrating into the original meaning of symbols, as disclosed by their history, or the true meaning of them as disclosed by logical or mystical principles of symbolism, they could acquire some sort of control of realities, some sort of power over the universe.

With this prelude as to symbols generally, a preface to Masonic symbolism may proceed to the primitive uses of symbols and next to the philosophical use of symbols, thus paving the way for a treatment of the Masonic use of symbols as a resultant or product.

Primitive society resorts to symbols for four purposes: (1) To convey messages, (2) to give instruction, (3) as a means of social control, and (4) to obtain control over nature. Before alphabets and writing have evolved men make use of ideographs and hieroglyphics, which sometimes attain their ends by picturing the very thing to be suggested to the beholder, but often appeal to the latter symbolically. Thus the Chinese ideograph for what we should call "a row" is a conventionalized picture of two women under one roof. For symbolism seems to play a much larger role in human psychology than we had perceived. A great part of what we do subconsciously is symbolic. Indeed psychologists believe that our dreams are largely symbolic. The undeveloped primitive mind, incapable of abstract reasoning, proceeds subconsciously by means of symbols.

Primitive teaching proceeds wholly by imitation and by symbols. What is not done by simple imitation of the master, is done by imparting the symbol and explaining it. Thus the primitive tribe inducts the boy into manhood by symbolic ceremonies to teach him that the boy is no more and that a man with a man's duties and a man's responsibilities has arisen in his place. Even more the primitive secret societies that grew out of these ceremonies employ symbolic dress and symbolic implements. One phase of this use of symbols has attracted much attention from Masonic scholars. It has been asserted that the ancients used symbols at the same time to teach the initiated and to conceal from the uninitiated. Albert Pike dwells much upon this aspect of ancient symbolism. No doubt there are such cases in primitive rites. But it is hard to be sure that we have any authentic cases since we are in no very good position to judge. It is seldom possible to be sure how such symbols were meant to be interpreted. There are, however, clear cases in later symbolism, and eighteenth-century French Masonry furnishes a notable example in its teaching of liberty of thought under the symbol of a contest for liberty of passage—a symbol known to one of our rites today. It is not unlikely that this device is as old as symbolism.

The chief use of symbols in primitive society is as a means of social control. Primitive man forgets authority unless its visible sign is always before him. He forgets his duty unless the duty is visibly represented to him. Law and order as abstractions have no hold on him. They must be kept before his mind by symbols. The gods must be represented to his eyes by idols or statues or he cannot regard them. In short, morals, religion, and government get and keep their hold upon him largely through symbols. Hence symbolism is highly developed among primitive peoples and primitive secret societies have independently more than one symbol of which we speak and think as Masonic only.

Developing confidence from these notable achievements by means of symbols, primitive man becomes ambitious of greater things and seeks to control external nature in the same way. This attempt to control the thing symbolized through the symbol gives us, along with magic, the crude beginnings of metaphysics and the crude beginnings of medicine. In the one case the quest is for a single simple principle of nature, wrapped up in some symbol, possession whereof will enable the possessor to direct natural forces; in the other there is a quest for the fundamental principle of disease in general or of some particular disease, which again is to be wrapped up in some symbol whereby the disease may be controlled. To primitive man the occult was a serious practical business. He looked upon it as we look upon physics or upon the study of electricity. It was a means whereby nature might be harnessed to man's use. We make a great mistake today when we attribute any more profound significance to primitive symbols of this type.

Passing to symbolism in philosophy, we may begin with the Pythagoreans. For even if we may not for other than ritualistic purposes refer to him as "our ancient friend and brother," Masons must always feel a kinship to Pythagoras because he called symbolism to the aid of cosmology. Prior to Socrates the problem of philosophy was to lay hold upon the original ground or basis of things which outlasts all change; to discover how this original basis changes into the particular things which we see about us, and how it changes these things back into itself. The Milesians sought to find this original basis of the universe in some element. The Atomists sought it in primordial indivisible constituents of matter. The Eleatics sought it in a unity in nature. Heraclitus thought he had found it in a perpetual but rhythmical flux or change. Attacking the same problem, the Pythagoreans conceived that this permanent being which men were seeking was to be found in numbers. They held that in contrast with the changing things of experience, numbers, as regards their content, possess a validity independent of time; that they are eternal, without beginning, imperishable, unchangeable, immovable. Thus, so they reasoned, numbers possess the unity and permanence sought by the Eleatics and the rhythmical order insisted on by Heraclitus. They found the abiding essence of the universe in mathematical relations, particularly in numbers, and as their solution was more abstract than that of the Milesians, more possible to represent to the imagination than that of the Eleatics, and far clearer than that of Heraclitus, naturally it had much influence.

But the Pythagorean solution of the problem of cosmology readily went into symbolism. For they believed that in the antithesis between the limited and the unlimited they recognized the antithesis between the odd and the even in numbers, and they identified this antithesis with that between the perfect and the imperfect, the good and the bad. They put over against the limited, the odd, the perfect, and the good; the antithesis of the limitless, the even, the imperfect, and the bad. Yet they conceived that both principles were united in the number one, which had the value both of an even and of an odd number, so that in the universe as a whole these antitheses were adjusted to form a harmony. In other words, they conceived of the universe as a harmony of numbers, and with this idea they exerted themselves to make an order of things corresponding to the system of numbers by assigning the fundamental conceptions in every department of knowledge to various numbers and on the other hand by assigning to every individual number, especially to those from one to ten, determining significance in the various spheres of reality. As Windelband says: "The fantastic nature of the symbolic interpretation into which they fell in doing this must . . . not cause us to overlook the fact that the attempt was made thereby to recognize an abiding order of things which could be grasped and expressed in conceptions and to find the ultimate ground of this order in mathematical conceptions." In a phrase, the Pythagoreans attempted to comprehend and represent the universe by means of mathematical symbols. Thus they have a real place in the history of human thought. But today we have better ways of trying to comprehend and represent the universe. We do little honor to the Pythagoreans when we solemnly retail the letter of their speculations as if they had some intrinsic validity, when their true significance lies in their attitude toward and their spirit of approach to a great philosophical problem. Let us approach the modern problem of philosophy with the same determination to achieve a reasoned result whereby permanence and stability may be assured, rather than continue to repeat the details of their speculations as to the exact numerical equivalent of this or that. Otherwise symbols become our masters rather than our servants.

Thus far the task of philosophy has been to comprehend external nature and to represent it. After Socrates the interest in philosophy turned from the outside of man to the inside, and when, following the conquests of Alexander the Great, in the period of decadence after the great age of Greek intellectual activity, the Hellenistic culture spread over the civilized world, the revived symbolism of the Neo-Platonists was a higher symbolism, for it attempted to symbolize the spiritual. They thought of the world immediately about us as chiefly significant in pointing the way to a higher world. Its value was not in what it was but in what it revealed. It was the sign and symbol of a higher being. Thus their doctrine, instead of seeking symbols of the actual world of sense, treated that world as having a symbolic character. Presently there came a succession of debasements of this philosophy in the writings of the Hellenizing Theosophists, the mass of writings that go by the name of Hermes Trismegistus, the Gnostics, and later the Cabbala. Albert Pike has studied these attentively and has revived much of their elaborate symbolism. But this symbolism is quite void of meaning for us if we are ignorant of its philosophic pedigree, and when we are able to comprehend it we can but see that there are better ways to represent the more critical metaphysical knowledge of the modern world.

With the revival of learning that ushered in the world of today there came presently a revival of symbolism in philosophical thought. The Middle Ages were wholly dominated by Aristotle, whose powerful intellect, perhaps "the most powerful ever possessed by any man," was yet limited to the exterior of things and unable to reach beneath to the hidden forces by which things are moved. "It was natural," says Benn, "that one who ranged with such consummate mastery over the whole world of apparent reality, should believe in no other reality. . . . The visible order of nature was present to his imagination in such precise determination and fulness of detail that it resisted any attempt he might have made to conceive it under a different form." When the reign of Aristotle came to an end and men sought once more to comprehend and to represent the unseen and the unseeable, a flood of symbolistic writing resulted. Chemistry has its roots in the half charlatan symbolism of Alchemy. The symbolic medicine of the revolt from Galen has an important place in the history of modern medicine, and the hermetic philosophers, who busied themselves with alchemy and symbolic medicine and attempted to adapt and apply the fusions of Oriental mysticism and Neo-Platonic symbolism of the Hellenistic decadence, are in the right line of descent of our Masonic symbols.

Later the rationalism of the age of "enlightenment" turned men away from symbolism. For a time men's faith in reason was boundless. The age of Preston cared nothing for symbols except as they might be made convenient vehicles of rational instruction. Indeed Preston indulges in an obvious sneer at those who would employ symbols otherwise than to impart "wise and serious truths." And when presently reaction from this age of reason came with the Romanticists of the nineteenth century, it was felt chiefly in art, and the revival of symbolism was most conspicuous in aesthetics. There was no adequate philosophic apparatus to guide the revived Masonic symbolism of Pike, and in consequence the subject is still disfigured by too much of Hermetic charlatanism. With the clearer light afforded by psychology and the juster appreciation of the rôle of symbols in man's subconscious life and the effects thereof upon his conscious activities which it reveals we may hope presently for a more truly scientific study of our mass of traditional symbols. This will build, indeed, upon the historical studies of Pike and will use much of the results of his instinct for interpretation. But it will have a critical method unknown to his time that will enable Pike's successor in Masonic symbolism to do for that subject what Gould did for Masonic history. And so with one further suggestion this preface to that work may be brought to an end. As we now think, things are important not so much for what they are as for what they do. Institutions are significant functionally rather than intrinsically. Thus our student of Masonic symbols will investigate the history of the symbols employed by the craft and will seek their original meanings and the development of their interpretations. But above all he will ask, and will seek to know by means of their history and their development, how they function today, what they teach today, and how they teach it, and even more what they may teach and how we may make them effective for teaching it.

MASONRY AND POLITICS

LOUIS BLOCK, P. G. M., Iowa

Thoughtful men will all admit that it is a very good practice for any great human institution to pause now and then to take stock of itself, to look itself over, and see what it is doing, to once more place squarely and clearly before its eyes the objects, aims, ends, and purposes for which it exists, and to inquire of itself whether it is really justifying its existence and fulfilling its mission among men.

Freemasonry, as a great human institution, is no exception to this rule. Never before have human institutions been tried and tested as they have been in the world war, but now brought to a close, and there is no time more suitable for self-examination than the present.

What, then, is Freemasonry? What function does it fulfill in human life? What reason can it offer for its existence and of what value is it to mankind?

Here are some of the answers which the forefathers made to these questions at the time they laid down the fundamental principles of our order.

They solemnly declared that Masonry consisted of a regular course of ancient hieroglyphical and moral instruction, taught agreeably to ancient usages by types, emblems, and allegorical figures; that the design of the Masonic institution was to make its votaries wiser and better and consequently happier; that none should be received within its ranks but such as were moral and upright before God, and of good repute before the world, because such persons when associated together would naturally seek each other's welfare and happiness equally with their own. Nothing was to be tolerated that would conflict with a man's duty to God, his country, his neighbor, or himself. They felt it best to oblige their members "only to that religion in which all men agree, leaving their particular opinions to themselves; that is to be good men and true, or men of honor and honesty, by whatever denominations or persuasions they may be distinguished; whereby Masonry becomes the center of union, and the means of conciliating true friendship among persons that must have remained at a perpetual distance." Above all they enjoined upon their brethren the "cultivating of brotherly love, the foundation and cope-stone, the cement and glory of this ancient fraternity."

Finally, in the exercise of a jealous care lest the precious peace and harmony of the fraternity be disturbed or broken, they decreed that "no quarrels about religion or nations, or state policy, must be brought within the door of the lodge, we, being only as Masons of the Catholiek (i. e.,

These were the theories as stated in the language of the founders and forefathers. These are the underlying principles which they adopted for the government of the institution.

How we have interpreted these, have lived up to them, or been restricted and controlled by them, is quite another matter.

Oftentimes it would seem as if we had lost sight of them and had forgotten them altogether, or if not that, then that, at least by false and forced, and strained interpretation we had robbed them of all their original spirit, purpose, and meaning. Many of us have yielded to a temptation to try to bend and mold Masonic precepts to fit our natural prejudices. Far too many there have been who seemed to think that Masonry existed solely for the promulgation of a ritual. For such as these, that man has seemed truest Mason who could reel off the ritual with all the regularity and rapidity of a machine gun. These seemed to care little whether moral lessons were really taught so long as they were glibly recited. For them real instruction in true meaning did not count—all that really mattered was rigid word—accuracy in repetition. They seemed little concerned about working these lessons into their individual lives, or of weaving the morality of Masonry as an institution into the weal and welfare of public life. We have cause to congratulate ourselves upon the fact that this class has included but a minority of our membership.

Now religion and polities are vital matters of vast importance in human affairs. One deals with our faiths, our hopes, and our aspirations, concerning itself not only with this life but with that to come. The other deals with those rules of human conduct that enable men of widely differing tastes and temperaments to live side by side in peace and in order—assuring to each one all the health and happiness it is possible to give him without hurting his neighbor.

So that when you say to the members of a vast fraternity that they shall not concern themselves with religion and polities you are taking on a big contract—one well nigh impossible of performance. To forbid a great human brotherhood from participation in such vital matters is like trying to drive out nature with a fork—always she comes running back.

In nearly all of our Grand Lodges we have witnessed the adoption of resolutions backing up the President, subscribing liberally for Liberty Bonds, contributing to the Red Cross, accumulation of war relief funds—all of which were, strictly speaking, political rather than Masonic—that is unless we are ready to enlarge our ancient definition of Freemasonry. Of course, when we say political we are using the word in its higher, broader, and nobler sense, and not in the sense of mere office-grabbing, or of providing power and pelf for any particular party, or of using public funds for private purposes.

Did the forefathers have in mind when they adopted their strictures against polities that the fraternity should never mix in polities even in this nobler and higher and better way? Did they intend that Masonry's attitude on the subject of better government should forever remain a negative one—standing forever aloof and keeping its hands off? Are we to go on perennially preaching moral precepts, and at the same time standing idly by and doing nothing to weave those precepts into the laws and life of the nation? Is that what Masonry means?

We realize full well the dangers of dissension and disruption that lurk in the path that leads to an entrance into polities, and yet is there not some way in which Masonry can avoid all these traps and pitfalls, and yet throw her splendid influence in the public scales in behalf of noble projects for the betterment of our civic life?

In time of war Masonry was at no loss to find means to prove her loyalty to the principles of the government which her sons played so large a part in forming and founding—a government rock-rooted upon principles of civil and religious liberty, and based upon the entire and complete separation of church and state. Surely she should not be hard put to it to find means to prove her patriotism in these piping times of peace, and of furnishing real help as an institution to the solving of the portentious problems with which that peace now confronts us.

There is rapidly growing in this country a fraternity, which, while ever protesting it has no political ambitions, is none the less filling many of our civil offices with its members, and making its influence widely felt in public affairs. That fraternity is pledged to the promotion of the interests of one certain church. In its eyes the state is subordinate to the church, the state is, and should be, merely the vassal, servant, and instrument of the church. Unlike the Masonic fraternity it entertains no scruples whatever about mixing in polities. It mixes and mixes persistently. During the war it mixed to such good effect that it not only compelled you and me to choose between contributing to a war relief fund, a large part of which was to be administered by it to the glory of a sectarian church, or of appearing to be a slacker, but it also persuaded our government to deny passports to our own war relief agents until the war was over, so that it might put us before the world in the light of a charitable organization of vast pretensions and little or no performance, all the while parading itself as the only truly patriotic human brotherhood.

Now that peace has come we need look for no cessation of effort on the part of this fraternity to enable its church to engraft itself upon the state, to fasten itself there like a leech, and fatten itself upon the life-blood of our civil government.

XXVIII

Yet this is but one of the many problems we are called upon to face. Along with the adjustment of the strained relations between labor and capital, the interference with government in private business, the ruining of that business by government control, and the exacting of tribute from the people to procure funds to repair that ruin—along with these have come many other perplexing problems, all of which demand safe and sane solutions—remedies which shall not be worse than the disease—remedies that shall save us from being racked by the ruin of Bolshevism.

Shall Masonry still keep her hands out of politics—play no part in making democracy safe for the world—have naught to do with the establishment of a brotherhood of nations?

Nevertheless, thank God, there is no law in Masonry that prevents us, as individuals, from doing our duty as men, in these great crises, and that is a privilege that can never be denied us.

While we may be denied the right as an organization to enter politics for the protection of our country, yet there is no power on earth that can prevent us from standing shoulder to shoulder as individuals, and to say to the enemies of our country seeking to prey either, privately or publicly, upon her sacred institutions, even as did the brave poilus to the Prussians marching on Paris—"They shall not pass."
